Charles N. Decktor, a Dover shoe merchant, is the man alleged to have been robbed of $350 and a solid gold watch by two swindlers who, a few days ago, fleeced Decktor while on the train on his way to Philadelphia. Decktor grieved sorely over his loss and hopes for the arrest of the men, if not the restoration of his property.

QUESTIONS FOR MR. WASSON.

BY TILGHMAN HARVEY

Mr. Wasson makes a great ado about Christ being a liquor drinker.

1. I ask Mr. Wasson or any other saloon advocate to show me a passage of scripture where Christ ever drank a drop of ale, beer, hard cider, claret, champaign, gin, fusel oil, rum, whiskey or any other intoxicating drink.

2. I ask Mr. Wasson or any other saloon advocate to show me passages of scripture to prove that Christ ever drank a half dozen drinks of any kind of wine in all his life of 33 years.

That is not as much as some liquor drinkers would drink in one half day. Mr. Wasson knows that there were several kinds of wine used in olden times. I have sent Mr. Wasson a history of biblical wines. I have a large history of the Bible, it says that sometimes wine was preserved in its unfermented state and drunk as unfermented wine—and sometimes it was bottled off after fermentation. It also says that in the early Christian church it was usual to mix the sacramental wine with water.

Mr. Wasson knows that when wine is used for sacramental purposes that it is not used as a beverage. Mr. Wasson knows that we anti-liquor men don't find any fault with Christ or any body else for using wine for sacrament. Mr. Wasson also knows that Christ would not sanction a thing that sends millions of people down to ruin.

3. If Mr. Wasson believes that drinking intoxicating drink as a beverage is right in the sight of the Lord, why does the Bible say that John the Baptist shall be great in the sight of the Lord and shall drink neither wine nor strong drink.

4. If Mr. Wasson believes that drinking intoxicating drink as a beverage is right in the sight of the Lord, why did the Lord say to Aaron, "Do not drink wine or strong drink, thou, nor thy sons with thee; when ye go into the tabernacle of the congregation lest ye die, it shall be a statute forever throughout your generations?"

5. If Mr. Wasson believes that Christ was a lover of wine why does the Bible say he that loveth wine shall not be rich?

6. If Mr. Wasson believes that Christ was a wine bibber, why does the Bible say "be not among wine bibbers?"

7. If Mr. Wasson believes that Christ made a fermented wine, drank a fermented wine and gave a fermented wine to his friends and neighbors to drink, why does the Bible say "woe unto him that giveth his neighbor drink?"

8. If Mr. Wasson believes that Christ was what we call a liquor drinker, let him answer the other nine questions on leaflet dated Apr. 30, 1909, and let him answer the fourteen questions in this letter, or forever hereafter let him hold his peace about Christ being what we call a liquor drinker.

Mr. Wasson says that Christ never said anything in his commandments about it being wrong to sell or drink intoxicating drink as a beverage. There are hundreds of different kinds of evil that Christ never mentioned anything about in his commandments. He never said anything about it being wrong to dodge around the truth when you trade horses with your fellowman; he never said anything about it being wrong to charge $1.25 for a bu. of wheat when it was only worth a dollar; he never said anything about it being wrong to put all the good peaches on top of the basket and all the bad in the bottom of the basket. Yet you could not do either one of the three things I named without breaking his commandments. Neither can you or anybody else sell liquor as a beverage without breaking his commandments. Jesus said thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul and with all thy mind—this is the first and great commandment; and the second is like unto it, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. On these two commandments hang all the law. Christ gave us two commandments that put a veto on every kind of wrong doing.

Mr. Wasson may say, like the railroad fault-finders, that Christ's commandments don't say anything about selling liquor.

9. But I would like for Mr. Wasson or any other saloon advocate to tell me how a liquor seller can love his neighbor as himself when he is engaged in a business that sends his neighbor down to a drunkards grave.

Christ also gave us another commandment, and as ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise, or in plain English like we generally speak it, do unto others as you would have others do unto you.

10. I would like for Mr. Wasson or any other saloon advocate to tell me how a liquor seller or a saloon advocate can do unto others as they would have others do unto them, when they plead in favor of a business that ruins other men?

If Mr. Wasson believes that the license liquor saloon is constitutional let him read and answer the questions in leaflet dated March 2, 1909, and June 18, 1909.

If Mr. Wasson believes that the liquor saloon is essential to business prosperity let him answer leaflet dated August 30, 1909.

If Mr. Wasson believes that liquor selling and liquor drinking is according to Bible doctrine let him read leaflet dated Nov. 1, 1909.

If Mr. Wasson believes that liquor selling is a consistent business let him read leaflet dated Oct. 2, 1909.

Mr. Wasson says there is not a passage of scripture in the Bible in support of the total abstinence theory. He is badly mistaken; the Bible says: "Abstain from all appearance of evil."

11. I would like for Mr. Wasson to tell me how a liquor drinker can abstain from all appearance of evil when he indulges in a thing that leads millions of people into evil?

12. And I would like for Mr. Wasson to tell me how a saloon advocate can abstain from the appearance of evil when they advocate a business that continually leads people into evil?

Mr. Wasson says he wonders whether any prohibition or no-license preacher ever was known to preach from the text St. John, Second Chapter, 9th verse, "When the ruler of the feast had tasted the water that was made wine."

I ask Mr. Wasson how often does he preach from the following texts

1. They shall not drink wine with a song; strong drink shall be bitter to them that drink it.

2. But they also have erred through wine and strong drink, are out of the way. The priest and prophet have erred through strong drink, they are swallowed up of wine; they are out of the way through strong drink; they err in vision; they stumble in judgment.

3. He that loveth wine shall not be rich.

4. Wine and new wine take away the heart.

5. And they shall say unto the elders of this city, this, our son, is stubborn and rebellious; he will not obey our voice. He is a glutton and a drunkard, and all the men of his city shall stone him with stones, that he die. So shalt thou put away evil from among you.

6. Nor thieves, nor covetors, nor extortioners, nor drunkards shall inherit the kingdom of God.

(14. I ask Mr. Wasson or any other saloon advocate if drunkenness was looked upon as such an awful crime in olden times and if it is such an awful crime that no drunkard shall inherit the Kingdom of God, is it not a worse crime to be engaged in a business that continually makes drunkards?)

7. For a bishop must be blameless, not given to wine, no stickler, not given to filthy lucre.

8. Woe unto them that call evil good and good evil.

9. Woe unto them that are wise in their own eyes and prudent in their own sight.

10. Woe unto them that are mighty to drink wine and men of strength to mingle strong drink.

11. Which justify the wicked for reward and take away the righteousness of the righteous from him.

12. For John the Baptist shall be great in the sight of the Lord and shall drink neither wine nor strong drink.

13. Woe unto him that giveth his neighbor drink.

14. Touch not taste not handle not.

15. Which all are to perish with the using, after the commandments and doctrines of men.

16. Be not among wine bibbers.

17. Look not thou upon the wine when it is red, when it giveth its colour in the cup.

18. Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging and whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise.

19. And the Lord spoke unto Aaron saying:

20. Do not drink wine or strong drink; thou nor thy sons with thee when ye go into the tabernacle of the congregation, lest ye die. It shall be a statute forever throughout your generations.

21. It is good neither to eat flesh nor to drink wine, nor anything whereby thy brother stumbleth.

22. We then that are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak.

23. Let every one of us please his neighbor for his good to edification.

24. For none of us liveth to himself.

25. Abstain from all appearance of evil.

26. Christ said; "And as ye would would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise.

27. Christ said; "Thou shalt love the Lord, thy God, with all thy heart and with all thy soul and with all thy mind.

28. This is the first and great commandment.

29. And the second is like unto it, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.

30. On these two great commandments hang all the law.

I would like for Mr. Wasson to tell me how anybody can engage in a business that ruins their neighbors and their neighbors' boys without breaking all of Christ's commandments.

THE STORY OF MORSE.

In the year 1877 two young men stood up with the rest of their class at Bowdoin University to receive diplomas. One was called Bob, the other Charlie. They were Maine boys, both of them, and about the same age. Within the last few weeks those two boys, now grown into grizzled men in the early fifties, have been conspicuous in the news of the day.

One of them, Bob, went in for fame, and after devoting the best years of his life to wrestling with Arctic storms, throwing dice with death, enduring the very limits of privation and hardship, more than once glad to chew tanned leather or bite into rancid blubber, he emerged the other day with a story of discovery which thrilled the whole world, and will send his name Robert E. Peary, sounding down the ages to the end of time.

The other boy, Charlie, went in for fortune. He had already developed the knack of the money-maker, and he did not tie up his talent in a napkin. He sold candy. He sold ice. He sold lumber. He acquired banks and trust companies and juggled stocks and bonds until he amassed a fortune of twenty-two millions. Then something happened. On the day after New Year's Day of this year, his money gone, his reputation destroyed, his liberty lost, he took the 10.43 train on the Southern Limited, escorted by a United States marshal and two deputies, on the way to the Federal prison at Atlanta, Georgia, to which he had been sentenced for a term of fifteen years. Every legal device to save him had been tried, and had failed, and Charles Wyman Morse has now become convict Number 2814—that is all.—Current Literature.

When the Democrats held their State convention at Rochester, New York, in 1908, to nominate Chanler for Governor, one of the leaders thought it would be a grand idea to give a dinner to the Democratic editors and newspaper men of the State

He sent out the invitations and ordered the dinner. Then he decided it would be a good scheme to have some music. A Rochester friend told him there was an excellent quartet that could be secured and sent the leader of the quartette over to see the big man.

"Kin ye's sing?" he asked.

'Yes, sir; we can sing very well."

Have ye's dress suits? Them's necessary."

"Yes. sir, we all have evening clothes."

"How much will it cost?"

We get ten dollars apiece for such an engagement."

"I know; but how much'l it cost? How many av ye's is they in this quartet?"

Every newspaper wants to publish the news. The better the paper the more prosperous it will be. Local news items are especially hard to run down. How many times have you, dear reader, been approached by the newspaper man for an item of news and told him that you knew nothing of interest. Probably at the time your family were away on a visit or some one from out of town was visiting at your home. Of course you didn't mean to deceive the scribe, yet when you received your paper you wondered why your family or friends were not mentioned. A good way to avoid all this is to kindly inform us of the facts or drop a note in the post office to the paper. The one item may not amount to much, but several columns of such news is the life of a local paper.

The Editors' Paradise.

Fredkrick C. Beyer, a well-known Cleveland editor, told at a recent press banquet a newspaper story.

"A Medina editor died," he said "and was, of course, directed to ascend to the abode of the just. But during the ascent the editor's Journalistic curiosity ascerted itself, and he said:

" 'Is it permitted for one to have a look at—er—the other place?'

" 'Certainly,' was the gracious reply, and accordingly a descent to the other place was made. Here the editor found much to interest him. He scurried about the place and was soon lost to view.

"His angelic escort got worried at last and began a systematic search for his charge. He found him at last seated before a furnace fanning himself and gazing at the people in the fire. On the door of the furnace was a plate saying, 'Delinquent subscribers.'

" 'Come,' said the angel to the editor, 'we must be going.'

" 'You go on,' the editor answered without lifting his eyes. I'm not coming. This is heaven enough for he."

Horses in Demand.

Horses seem to be in good demand in spite of the sale of great numbers of automobiles. There were half a million more of them in the country last year than the year before, and their average value was thirteen dollars more. Indeed a horse is almost invaluable when a motor car breaks down and the owner wishes to go on. If the stock-raisers could produce the humorist's folding horse, to be carried under the seat of the car for use when the unexpected breakdown happens, the demand for horses might be even greater.— Youth's Companion.

"He smiled faintly. 'Indeed, yes,' he said. 'I hardly have a vacant seat when it is too wet for golph or motoring.' "
