WOMAN'S QUESTION.

you know you have asked for the
costliest thing
Ever made by the Hand above—
woman's heart and a woman's life,
And a woman's wonderful love?

o you know you have asked for this
priceless thing
As a child might ask for a toy,
nanding what others have died to
win,
ith the reckless dash of a boy?

written my lesson of duty
you have questioned me
at the bar of my woman's soul
Until I question thee.

ou require your mutton shall always be hot,
Your socks and your shirts shall
be whole;
I require your heart to be true as God's stars
And pure as heaven your soul.

You require a cook for your mutton
and beef;
I require a far better thing;
A seamstress you're wanting for stockings and shirts—
I look for a man and a king.

A king and a beautiful realm called home,
And a man that the Maker God,
Shall look upon, as He did the first,
And say, "It is very good"

I am fair and young, but the rose will fade
From my soft young cheek one day—
Will you love me then, 'mid the fall-
leaves,
A lid 'mid the bloom of May?

A GENEROUS AND CHARITABLE WISH.

"I wish all might know of the benefit I received from your Foley's Kidney Remedy," says I. N. Regan, Farmer, Mo. His kidneys and bladder gave him so much pain misery and annoyance, he could not work, nor sleep. He says Foley's Kidney Remedy completely cured him. Sold by C. H. Redden, Denton, Md.

Carrie At Cape Charles.

Carrie Nation, the well-known temperance advocate, addressed a large audience at the Bethany M. E. Church, Cape Charles City, Va., on October 23d. Her discourse dwelt with motherhood and its duties. Col. Roosevelt and President Taft were severely criticised for not upholding a petition presented by her and some residents of Washington urging the police there to suppress brothels.

She also warned the young ladies to beware of dance halls, which she termed "hugging schools," and cautioned the young men against "small waisted women," as well as those who choose for their gowns material of the thinnest kind, and even then have holes cut in them. She suggested that lessons be taken from the lower animals in that cows always know where to find their calves, while the society woman, as a rule, knows nothing as to the whereabouts of her children.

Mrs. Naton advised the young ladies not to choose for a husband one who uses cigarettes, tobacco in any other form or liquor.

THE CALL OF THE BLOOD.

for purification finds voice in pimples, boils, sallow complexion, a jaundiced look moth patches and blotches on the skin—all signs of liver troubles. But Dr. King's New Life Pills make rich red blood; give clear skin rosy cheeks, fine complexion, health. Try them. 25c at all druggists.

Beware!

We would warn our farmers to fight shy of some of the slick gentlemen (?) who are now traveling over the country with all sorts of money making schemes. The farmers of this county are, as a class, pretty prosperous and this condition is inviting to our county all sorts of slick-tongued gentry.

We have had the hulless oats, walnut log and hay fork schemes but we understand the latest one is known as the "bundle" scheme. You may be asked to take care of a bundle and give a receipt for it so that the fellow leaving it with you can show his employer where it is. If any such appear at your residence don't allow the bundle to remain at your residence. If, however, you should agree to allow the bundle to remain don't sign any papers whatever. Some persons have signed papers as receipts which afterward appeared in a broker's office as promissory notes. Beware!

A 42-year-old Horse.

The oldest horse in the United States, it is claimed, is Samuel J. Tilden, the property of Mr. Joseph Guest, of Chestertown, Md., who claims that the animal passed his forty-second milestone last May. Owing to the ill health of Mr. Guest, who is no longer able to take proper care of the animal, Tilden will be taken to Baltimore about November 9 or 10, and will be taken care of by Mrs. Frank Kinnier, 415 North Central avenue, who is one of the members of the Animal Refuge Association. Although Samuel J. Tilden has exceeded the active life of the average horse, he is still able to do light work.

Capt. Bogardus again hits the Bull's Eye.

This world famous rifle shot who holds the championship record of 100 pigeons in 100 consecutive shots is living at Lincoln, Ill. Recently interviewed he said:—"I suffered a long time with kidney and bladder trouble and used several well known kidney medicines, all of which gave me no relief until I started taking Foley's Kidney Pills I had severe backaches and pains in my kidneys with suppression and a cloudy voiding. On arising in the morning I would get dull headaches. Now I have taken three bottles of Foley's Kidney Pills and feel 100 per cent. better. I am never bothered with my kidneys or bladder and again feel like my own self." Sold by C. H. Redden, Denton, Md.

GROWTH OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

Showing Its Rapid Increase In The Past Few Years.

BY WILDER D. QUINT

WHEN a great and world-wide religious movenment reaches a certain point in its development it is well for humanity in general, whether of it or outside it, to pause for a moment in the mad rush after material things and ask what it means; to survey it on all sides and from all angles impartially; to judge whence comes its strength and to estimate once for all its appeal to the common heart of man.

All but one of the tidal waves of religion that we know today have historical perspective, and can simply and easily be accounted for. Judaism, Brahminism, Buddhism, Christianity, Mohammedism, the Reformation—all have long since exhibited their own cause for being. Chance had no more part in their rising than it has in bringing to the gaze of mortals on this little spinning-top called the world some blazing comet marking the heavens with a trail of splendor never seen before by human eyes. And we are far enough away from the inception of them to recognize the truth.

With that important spiritual and moral movement which has arisen within a generation and whose remarkable and ever-increasing power is a part of daily experience, the case is somewhat different. We find difficulty in seeing the forest because of the trees, so that a good many just and otherwise fair-minded observers are prone to lose their usual sense of perspective in view of a new religion. That is why Christian Science, the latest and one of the most astonishing manifestations of mortal awakening, arouses a violence of controversial assault wholly out of proportion to the placidity and poise with which it proceeds on its way.

It is not difficult to find reasons for this bitterness; one is that the movement seems to threaten the permanence of certain special interests; another that its serene confidence in itself somehow provokes its hotter-tempered foes to outbursts not wholly judicious. But the chief and truest of all may justly be said to be, so far as the great masses of the people are concerned, that it is seen very much out of focus by those who will not, or cannot, sanely adjust their mental lenses.

But however it is seen, whatever is thought of it, Christian Science is a present-day, active force that must be reckned with. It is here, and apparently to stay. It is spreading over the whole world. It is drawing to itself thousands upon thousands of the unsatisfied in other denominations and as many more of the altogether un-churched. No longer can jeremaids from the pulpits of older religious institutions drown out its voice; no more is the scorn of the medical profession it is so strongly influencing, sufficient to lesson its daily accessions of converts to any appreciable degree. If it ever were a theory, it is so no more, but a big, powerful, wealthy, highly intellectual condition that confronts us.

Therefore, it is no longer the part of a sensible man to make faces like a little boy, or for any organization to bang on their tom-toms of abuse, hoping, like those mediæval Chinese armies, to put the enemy to route by mere noise. The Christian Science cohorts are curiously indifferent to anything approaching an attempted stampede.

One day, when a little more of that highly essential time-perspective has been attained, some historian with a keen sense of the romantic in religion and the just appreciation of a mental concept that appeals to the heart, will write the story of the earlier days of Christian Science as it should be written. That time has not yet come. But even now there is a certain fascination in comparing the slender, tentative, half discouring beginning with the triumphant facts of 1909.

Considering that only thirty years ago there was only one Christian Science Church in all the world—the original organization in Boston. Surely a far cry, an eloquent passage across the gap of time, from those first meetings in a little room with rarely more than a score in attendance, to the customary audiences of thousands in the majestic temple that is now the very cathedral of the faith, holding in its sheltering arms the lesser structure of the Mother Church, as dear to Scientists the world over as the ark of the covenant to old Judea.

Much has been written and pictured of this magnificent church, second to none in America for beauty and dignity, and no further description of its architectural strength or its decorative skill is needed here. It may well be taken to represent Christian Science aspiration as the smaller edifice in its embrace represents Christian Science faith. And more important than the mere grandeure of the temple, more typical of the Scientists' manner of accomplishing things are the facts that the great church was built in two years and was free of debt at every stage of its construction. From out ten thousand purses flashed the golden tributes of love and gratitude that made this achievement unique in the world's history.

Slowly enough, however, the Christian Science movement emerged from Boston in its early days. In 1889, ten years after the founding of the first organization, there were only eleven churches to fan into flame the latent fires of the faith. But the fanning was effective, the blaze ever increasing in warmth. A decade more saw three hundred and one churches; at the time the great temple in Boston was dedicated (1906) there were six hundred and fifty-seven and two hundred and seventy-five societies not organized as churches. There is today an impressive total of seven hundred and forty-three churches and four hundaed and forty-one societies, making one thousand one hundred and eighty-four societies holding church services. In almost every important city of the land at least one handsome edifice stands as a monument to a very genuine affection—and in some there are more. New York has six Christian Science churches, Chicago nine, San Francisco three, Denver three, Hartford and New Haven two each, Indianapolis two, Topeka two, Baltimore two, Minneapolis six, Kansas City three, Omaha two, Albany two, Brooklyn three, Cleveland three, Portland, Ore., two, Pittsburg two, Salt Lake City two, Seattle four, and so it goes. New churches are organizing from societies constantly, so that statistics of this sort can never be quite accurate or up to the moment. That fact should be kept in mind in the estimate of whatever figures are here given.

In this connection no one who travels much can fail to note the striving for beauty that seems to actuate Christian Scientists everywhere. They build churches of rare attractiveness; seldom do we find one of bizarre design or tawdry decoration, as too many of the religious homes of other denominations are. By some unexplained subtlety these people, collectively, at any rate, are endowed with the great gift of good taste, so that their service for art are very real and worthy of the highest praise. There is education of the best sort in the noble auditorium of the temple in Boston, or in the exquisite lines of the new church in Los Angeles.

It was said in the beginning of this study that Christian Science was world-wide. That statement needs no qualifying, for it is common knowledge. Yet it is surprising to find to what extent it is true. There is hardly a meridian of the globe where a little band of believers intensely in earnest does not gather together on Sundays and Wednesdays to proclaim anew their allegiance to the faith. The stolid Boer of Johannesburg may witness this if he chooses; the slant-eyed Celestial of Hong Kong may listen and marvel; the little brown folk of the Philippines are welcome if they like; the Indian of the Saskatchewan is not debarred, the toilers of the Big Ditch have the opportunity to read and hear; the German "Herr Doctor," the peon of Mexico, the great landed proprietor of England, the peasant of Guernsey, the gold hunter of Australia, the tongue-twisted Welshman, the boulevardier of Paris, the piping Swiss shepherd—all may now know that this thing known as Christian Sciance is in the world, and not a few of them accept it. Is it any wonder that the missionizing branches of the older churches look with amazement on its journeys over the Seven Seas?

The sweet potato harvest is bringing the annual exhibit of extra large tubers, some of the specimens weighing seven or eight pounds. C. W. Pallitt, of Laurel, is exhibiting specimens of three varieties—Red Cornwall, weighing 7½ pounds; Southern Queen weighing 6¼ poands and Goldskins, weighing 4¾ pounds. These are the largest shown so far this season.

John McClenahan, vice-president of the McClenahan Granite Company, was seriously injured Monday afternoon. He was standing at the head of an incline plane, leading from the driveway to the Pennsylvania railroad tracks, at Port Deposit, when a cart was backed against him, knocking him to the tracks, 12 feet below. His injuries consist of a severe scalp wound, several broken ribs and internal injuries.

How to make homes happier, healthier, more convenient and more artistic is the purpose of a home institute which will be held in Lewes when women speakers will lecture on domestic science and trained nurses will speak of their profession. A physician will lecture on home or home sanitation and exhibits of canned fruits, flowers, fancy work, culinary utensils and other home work will be held. The expenses of the institute will be met by the Board of Agriculture of Delaware.

Miss Margaret Breerwood, of Cambridge, found Samuel Tyler, colored, rifling a bureau drawer at the home of Mrs. Thomas Hughlett, while most of the family were at church. She called Dr. Daniel Jenifer, an Atlantic City physician, who was visiting in the neighborhood. Dr. Jenifer ordered the negro to leave the house, and on the latter refusing to comply seized a poker, with which he inflicted a deep gash in the negroe's head. Edwin Howard, son of Commander Howard, came to the the help of the doctor and summoned a deputy sheriff, who arrested Tyler.

Laurel has, perhaps, one of the youngest travelers on the Continent in the person of Master P. J. Ford Kenney, a bright lad of 5 years. When Master Ford heard that a friend, B. S. Ashby, Jr., was ill at his home in Accomac C. H., Va., and wanted to see him nothing would do but that he should go. So Thursday last, with his tiny overcoat and little suitcase he was put aboard the train and placed in charge of the conductor. In reaching his destination he had to pass through three States—Delaware, Maryland and Virginia, and had to travel from Tasley, Va. to Accomac, Va. The lad's father received word that he had arrived at his destination and reported a very big time. His only complaint was "that all the ladies wanted to kiss me."

Alberta Webster and Frank Webster, her husband, vs.
John E. Mowbray et al.

In the Orphans' Court for Caroline County, Sitting as a Court of Equity.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for the sale of certain property in Federalsburg, Caroline county, State of Maryland, which Alexine Mowbray, late of Caroline county, deceased, died seized and possessed. The bill states that Alexine P. Mowbray, late of Caroline county, deceased, was in her life time seized and possessed of all that lot or parcel of land situate in Federalsburg, on the north side of the county road leading from Fernandes Davis' store to Hynson, and is bounded by land formerly belonging to William H Goslin on the east, by cemetery lot on the north, by property of George Prince on the west and on the south by said county road, be the same land conveyed by John Collins and wife to Alexine P. Mowbray by deed dated January the Eifteh, Eighteen Hundred and ninety-one and recorded in Liber L. H. G., No. 55, folio 559, one of the land record books for Caroline county.

That being so seized and possessed the said Alexine P. Mowbray departed this life on or about the —— day of April, Nineteen Hundred and Ten intestate, leaving to survive her the following persons to whom as her heirs at law the said land descends, namely, Alberta Webster a niece who intermarried with Frank Webster, both of full age and residing in Dorchester county, Maryland, John E. Mowbray a brother, who intermarried with Annie Mowbray, both of whom are of full age and reside in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, Luther Mowbray a brother of full age unmarried and Frank Mowbray a brother of full age onmarried both of whom reside in Caroline county, Marylsnd, Fred Mowbray a brother of full age unmarried resides in New Castle, Indiana, Enola Mowbray a niece unmarried, Minnie Ulman a niece who intermarried with Ferdinand Ulman of full age residing in Baltimore City, Maryland, Willie Williamson a niece who is of full age, unmarried, Daisy Merrick, a niece who intermarried with William T. Merrick all of whom are of full age and reside in Dorchester county, Maryland, Glen Noble, great nephew infant under the age of twenty-one years unmarried and residing in Washington, District of Columbia.

That said land is not susceptible of partition among the parties entitled according to their respective interest without loss or injury. That said property is worth less than twenty-five hundred dollars.

That your orators are informed and believe that they are entitled to have such real estate sold by a decree of this Court and the proceeds arising from the sale thereof divided among the parties according to their respective interest.

It is thereupon this 4th day of October, Nineteen Hundred and Ten, ordered by the Orphans' Court of Caroline county, sitting as a Court of Equity, that the plaintiff by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Caroline county, once in each of four successive weeks before the 5th day of November, Nineteen Hundred and Ten, giving notice to the said absent defendant of the object and substance of this bill warning them to appear in this Court either in person or by solicitor on or before the 22d day of November next to show cause if any they have, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed

How To Cure Rheumatism.

The cause of Rheumatism and kindred diseases is an excess of uric acid in the blood. To cure this terrible disease this acid must be expelled and the system so regulated that no more acid will be formed in excessive quantities. Rheumatism is an internal disease and requires an internal remedy. Rubbing with Oils and Liniments will not cure, affords only temporary relief at best, causes you to delay the proper treatment, and allows the malady to get a firmer hold on you. Liniments may ease the pain, but they will no more cure Rheumatism than paint will change the fibre of rotten wood.

Science has at last discovered a perfect and complete cure, which is called "Rheumacide." Tested in hundreds of cases, it has effected the most marvelous cures; we believe it will cure you. Rheumacide "gets at the joints from the inside" sweeps the poisons out of the system, tones up the stomach, regulates the liver and kidneys, and makes you well all over. Rheumacide "strikes the roots of the disease and removes its cause." This splendid remedy is sold by druggists and dealers generally at 50c and $1.00 a bottle. In tablet form at 25c and 50c a package. Trial bottle of tablets sent by mail on receipt of price 25c. Booklet free. Write to Bobbitt Chemical Co., Baltimore, Md.
