LARGE ATTENDANCE AT COUNTY FEDERATION MEETING

Ten Member Clubs Represented at 2d Quarterly Meeting Last Thursday

HAD SPLENDID PROGRAM

(By our Staff Correspondent—Mrs. Laura D. Jefferson)

Largely attended and interestedly engaged in, the second quarterly meeting of the Caroline County Federation of Clubs, held in the lecture room of the Denton M. P. Church Thursday, May 25, proved a success from both a business and a social standpoint.

Conspicuous about the room, which was made attractive with many flowers, were cleverly executed posters setting forth the "Better English" movement, a scheduled feature for discussion on the afternoon program.

Assembling at 10 a. m., the meeting was called to order by its efficient and popular president, Mrs. A. K. Small, Jr., of Denton, when all sang "Maryland, My Maryland." The roll call showed ten member clubs represented, the Hillsboro Community Club having recently been affiliated with the Federation.

The minutes of the last meeting as well as those of the last Executive Board meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. J. F. Short, of Federalsburg. They were approved.

A letter was also read from Professor E. M. Noble, County Superintendent of Schools, expressing to the clubwomen the School Board's appreciation of the educational bill, the passage of which he ascribed largely to the concentrated efforts of the women's clubs throughout the state.

After some annuoncements by the president as to the personnel of the departments of health and education, Mrs. J. W. Stowell of Federalsburg, as the Federation's delegate to the recent State Federation at Baltimore, made an interesting report of that meeting.

Among the many topics discussed there which Mrs. Stowell reviewed, was Kindergartel Week, which in Maryland, it seems, has been much neglected, our state being one of seven in the union without any kindergarten legislation save in the cities. Mr. Albert Cook, State Superintendent of Education, has already recommended to the County Educational Superintendents the establishing of kindergartens in towns of sufficient size to support them and it is hoped that our next General Assembly may achieve this needed legislation and rural kindergartens become a reality. Dr. Cook in an address later, commended the Federation for its club work in educational matter, declaring its aid had been invaluable. He stressed the need of more supervisors in the schools which work, he declares, is of supreme importance and he urged all clubs to encourage it.

Other departmental reports touched upon by Mrs. Stowell were library extension, federal vocational board, art, public welfare, and American citizenship. Relative to the latter, the chairman, Mrs. Rogers, spoke of the opportunities for social service work among the migrant population—the transient foreign element transported here from the cities as workers in the country. Here is a field for citizenship work by country clubs, according to Mrs. Rogers.

The Friend's Creek project was interestingly explained by Mrs. Stowell as a remote, mountainous, undeveloped section in our state, where the people are so illiterate and crude as to appear almost barbarous. Through

STABILIZED DOLLAR PLAN IN THE HOUSE

Irving Fisher's Proposal for Price Fixation Offered by T. Alan Goldsborough

TO ADJUST GOLD CONTENT

Washington, May 23—The plan to stabilize prices by bringing about harmony between the volume of money and the volume of commodities and labor that Prof. Irving Fisher, of Yale University has advocated, was offered in the House today by Representative T. Alan Goldsborough, of Maryland, a member of the banking and Currency Committee.

Mr. Goldsborough spoke about 45 minutes in support of his bill. Price stabilization, he pointed out, would prevent enormous losses and suffering that now occur regularly.

Whether the measure will receive serious consideration in this session cannot be said, but the introduction of a bill to effectuate the plan is believed likely to create new interest in it among business men and the workers.

It already has received profound attention from economists in all parts of the world. Prof. Fisher's standing and argument have compelled that attention. Some of the economists have objected to it. Others of eminent position have said that they had been able to find no flaw in it..

To Fix Dollar Value

In a word the plan is to make the purchasing power of the dollar bear an approximately fixed relation to commodities. Roughly, that means that the dollar would buy approximately the same quantity of food or clothing the year in and year out. That would be done, according to Representative Goldsborough's bill, by adjusting at the mint every two months if necessary, the actual gold value of a dollar to the changing value of a given quantity of basic or "key" commodities. The dollar would not have a fixed value in ounces of gold, but a changing quantity of gold value to keep it even with the value of the given quantity of commodities.

"In the Bureau of Labor Statistics," Mr. Goldsborough said in explaining his bill, "there is what is known as the index number which is computed by averaging the prices levels of various commodities. There are nine groups: farm products; food, etc.; clothes and clothing; fuel and lighting; metals and metal products; lumber and building material; drugs and chemicals; house furnishing goods, and miscellaneous.

I am taking advange of the opportunity presented by the general debate on this bill to talk for a few minutes very briefly and very generally about a matter upon which long consideration induced me to introduce a bill in this House this morning. For a great many years, in fact, ever since I have been old enough to think very much, I have wondered about the gradual expansion and contraction of general price levels through long periods of years, but never until I became a member of Congress did it seem that I had time enough to even attempt any sort of a real analysis. Last summer on the occasion of a dinner, at which former vice president Marshall and I were guests, I brought up the subject and found that he had given the matter a great deal of consideration, and he made several luminous suggestions based upon his study and supported by his splendid common sense. I am profoundly convinced that the problem of stabilizing the purchasing power of money is soluble. I believe it is the second problem of economic importance confronting the people of the world at this time, and I believe this is the physiological time to bring the matter up for serious consideration.

For the purpose of this discussion, I have in mind stabilization outside of this country. World wide stabilization will come only when the Allies realize that Germany can pay her war indemnity only in goods directly or indirectly and when we come to recognize that the allied debt to us can be paid only in the goods of the allies and the goods of Germany which which will indirectly pay it. With an indemnity due by Germany of around $33,000,000,000 and only about $9,000,000,000 of gold coinage in the world, all the gold coin in the world, if it were held by Germany would pay but one-fourth of the reparations, and if perchance through some inconceivable and baleful natural force or artificial process Germany should acquire the gold with which to pay her indemnity and should pay it, the human mind can not conceive of the world-wide hell of inflation, worse than that of Austria or of Russia, which would come about, resulting in riot, revolution, and destruction of values until the sanity left in the world should have an opportunity to reassert itself and establish a new monetary basis. World wide stabilization can never come about, and the German indemnity and the allied debt can never be paid while the tariff walls are being raised higher and higher and our markets cut off from the commerce of the world. (Applause)

My friends, our people are staggering under a burden of a war debt of about $25,000,000,000. That means that the backs of our people are to be burdened with a load of taxation such as has never been known before in the history of this country. A large part of that burden must ultimately be borne by the consumer, which term

Chautauqua Will Open Next Tuesday-Few Tickets Left

Only Five Days Yet in Which to Purchase Season Tickets—Don't Forget the Children's Tickets—Only $2.50 For 17 Excellent Performances

BROWN TENT PROGRAM IS BETTER THIS YEAR

Five more days, and the big brown tent will be in position on Franklin street, and everything set for the first Chautauqua performance. Promptly at 3 o'cclock, Tuesday afternoon will begin a week of extra fine entertainment for Denton. The program arranged for this eleventh year surpasses all previous ones, and you will lose much by not attending as many of the sessions as you can.

At the meeting of the ticket committee on last Tuesday evening it was found that 100 season tickets remained to be sold. As none can be sold after the opening hour, this leaves only five days in which to insure yourself of a week of pleasure at the least possible cost. If you have not been seen by any member of the committee, see one of them, but don't let it go till it is too late. The play night alone will cost you one dollar, and the whole ticket costs only two dollars and fifty cents.

Be sure and enroll the children in Junior Chautauqua. Don't let them miss one of the biggest treats of the summer. The organization of a number of youngsters with regular methods of government, just as grown ups have, will be a definite step toward developing their idea of citizenship. This alone would be worth while, but add to that the fun of the thing, and the big day, when they have a performance of their own. Surely they won't want to be left out of it. The junior tickets cost only one dollar and admit to the regular sessions as well as to the Junior work.

No matter what your age or your business in life—you will find some special thing in Chautauqua which will appeal especially to you. Music, either classical or popular; and vocal or instrumental, with many instruments represented; dramatic reading, a jimdandy play, and lecture, either humorous or serious, full of messages to the up-to-date men and women.

But what's the use—just read over the program and see for yourself. Then hustle out to the nearest ticket seller, if you haven't bought yours, and get one for each member of the family, so there won't be any quarreling as to "who is to use the ticket tonight."

DO IT NOW—BUY IT NOW—ONLY A FEW LEFT—$2.50.

WM. WOLF MAKES RADIO RECEIVING SET HERE

Mr. William Wolf, battery expert for the Den Mar Mobile Company, of this place, has been experimenting with the radio for the last several months and within the last week has succeeded in getting his set tuned to hear concerts in Newark, N. J., and New York City, having heard two or three good concerts within the last week.

For about two weeks he has been able to get the market reports in the evenings and yesterday succeeded in tuning up to get the market reports sent out from Washington, D. C.

Mr. Wolf has made the most of his outfit, being assisted by several of the local high school boys who also are interested in radio and who gladly assisted him in this work.

Mr. Wolf is not yet satisfied with the results and is still working for better and more extensive results, expecting to hear a number of other broadcasting stations in a short time.

The regular semi-monthly meeting of the Denton Community Club will be held Friday afternoon, June 2 at their rooms in the Law building at the usual hour. A full attendance is requested as important business is to be transacted.

Farmers Attention !

Field Day at Ridgely Experiment Station Tuesday, June 6, 1 o'clock.
