shop Friday and demanded a shave. The proprietor seated him in an ordinary chair. Being seated he was lathered well, the brush occasionally slipping into the corners of his eyes. The barber then, after rummaging in a chest, produced what must have been the father of all razors, and commenced strapping it vigorously. The customer, half-blinded by the soap, seeing him handling the small scythe, asked what he was going to do with it, and when told that he was going to shave him with it, said he wouldn't be shaved by any such thing, and hastily rising, seized a towel, wiped his face and left the shop.
