SOY BEAN GROWERS MEET

Lower Delaware soy bean growers held a meeting in the Sussex county court house, in Georgetown, last Saturday afternoon, for the purpose of pooling the 1924 crop, which represents many thousands of bushels.

Seedsmen, who have representatives in Sussex county, at the present time, are offering the growers $3.00 per bushel for them but those at the meeting on Saturday decided to hold their crop for a better price. Decision was reached by some of the growers, representing many hundreds of bushels, that within the next ten days they will sell for $3.25 per bushel; while others of the growers will decline to sell until next spring or until such time as they are able through a committee named by them to handle the situation, to dispose of them at a price better than $3.25.

County Agent Molloy C. Vaughn was named as chairman of the committee with former State Senator Edward Dutton, of Seaford; J. D. Stockels, of Stockley, as the other members. This committee will at once find a market for the soy beans of the farmers who have entered into the pool, and as soon as the price can be obtained which will be satisfactory many thousands of bushels will be unloaded on the market.

There are about thirty thousand bushels in the county at this time to be sold, and estimates are that nearly eighty per cent. of the Wilson variety sold in the Eastern markets are grown in Sussex county. The crop is about 30 per cent below normal, and there is a demand in all sections of the country for them.

Eastern Shore Happenings

A sad tragedy took place Thursday last week between noon and one o'clock when J. Harry Miller, one of Seaford's most highly respected citizens and influential business men committed suicide by shooting himself with a 32-calibre revolver through the roof of his mouth, penetrating his brain, which occurred in the cellar of his new home, High and Conwell streets, which is about completed.

Financial matters was not the cause of the rash act, as Mr. Miller was considered one of the wealthiest men in Seaford, but for the past several months he had been very despondent and had been going through a very trying time from a nervous breakdown.

The funeral was held Saturday from the home of his sister-in-law, Miss Hetty Wallace.

The following ministers officiated: The Rev. W. H. Darbie, St. Luke's Protestant Episcopal Church; the Rev. N. C. Clough, Mount Olivet Methodist Protestant Church, and the Rev. W. Vaughan Moore, St. John's Methodist Episcopal Church. Hiram Lodge, A. F. and A. M., of this town, had charge of the services at the grave. Interment was in Odd Fellows' Cemetery.

E. B. Thompson, jeweler, Princess Anne, was held up in his place of business last Saturday night by a lone bandit as scores of people were passing along the street. Just as the act was perpetrated and the intruder had pulled down the shades preparatory to robbing his intended victim, Deputy Sheriff Nat Dickerson, Crisfield, crashed the glass of the door in and covered the man with his gun. In a scuffle which ensued, the bandit after some shooting and the returning of the fire by the officer, escaped only to be arrested less than two hours afterwards by Dickerson as he alighted from a train in Crisfield.

The man was taken into custody and charged with the crime was William Bowen, 21, Soloman's Island, a quartermaster on the B. C. and A. Steamer "Eastern Shore," plying between Baltimore and Crisfield, and for about a year on the "Virginia" of the same line, which runs between Baltimore and this city.

Alleged to have been connected with the robbery of the gas filling station of E. B. Rash, near Harrington, early Friday morning, Richard Wilkes, was arrested at the Hotel Merritt, Front and French streets, Wilmington, early Sunday morning by Detectives McDaniiel and Wilson. Wilkes was taken to the police station and locked up pending an investigation into his activities the past few days. State Detective Warton. of Dover, will arrive in the city Monday for the purpose of grilling the man.

The robbery was one of the boldest perpetrated in Kent county for some time. According to the night clerk, Norman Sorden, negro, the holdup man thrust a pistol in his ribs and after backing him against the wall, rifled the cash register of $35.50. He then made his escape in the direction of Dover.

John G. Gray, prominent attorney of Wilmington, resident of Claymont, and well known worker in Democratic political circles, was instantly killed shortly after 10 o'clock Thursday night when an automobile he was driving was struck by a south-bound frieght train at the main railroad crossing in Bridgeville, about one-eighth of a mile from the Bridgeville station.

Mr. Gray, who was alone in his new Buick sedan, had been spending the evening with Newell Ball, at Bridgeville discussing business transaction. H left Mr. Ball's home about 10 o'clock and it was only a few minutes later when Mr. Ball received a telephone call advising him of the accident, in which Mr. Gray lost his life.

Mr. Gray, apparently did not hear the approaching locomotive. Before the engineer could apply the brakes the engine struck the automobile squarely, carrying the wreckage 45 to 50 feet before it.

Elkton, Md., Nov. 28.—After a long persistent fight, this town will have, before another year has elapsed, a new and modern postoffice building.

John. W. McCool, Jr. has bought from the Masons of Elkton the vacant lot on North street and entered into an agreement with the Postoffice Department to erect an office building.

It will be equipped with modern equipment. The building will either be two or tree stories, and besides the postoffice there will be offices and probably a store. It will be constructed of brick. Work will be started in a few days.

Easton, Md., Nov. 28.—Oyster tongers are making big money this season. Favorable weather and splendid oysters are the cause. A man at Tilgham, working with his two sons, has averaged $100 a week since the season opened. In the last three days he made $108. At Oxford the business is just as profitable.

A high school boy was sadly in need of a suit and overcoat. He refused to call on his parents for the money, as they were in need of what they had for other purposes. He asked for three days' leave of absence which was grant ed, and in tha ttime earned $45 tonging for oysters. This was enough to provide the clothing, and now he is back at his desk, wearing the new clothes.

A special dispatch from Salisbury, Md. on Monday, was as follows: Edwin M. Townsend, according the the authorities, the self-confessed terror of the little town of Marion for the past year, stands tonight upon the verge of three destinies, all or any of which depend upon the efforts of his counsel, Hoopes S. Mills, of Salisbury, to impress a special jury in the Circuit Court. In other words, Townsend, who is 23 years old, will either be sentenced to an extended period in an institution for mentally deficient patients, or he will be given a long term of servitude in a penal institution, or he will face capital punishment, for according to the laws of Maryland he is liable to the death penalty for setting fire to a public building.

Marion is a town of only 600 people but it enjoyed a peaceful existence until about a year ago when a series of fires of mysterious origin terrorized the populace.

ETIQUETTE by Flo

Readers desiring personal points of Etiquette or heart affairs may write Flo, care of this newspaper, enclosing a self addressed and stamped envelope.

Dear Miss Flo: Should a gentleman precede or follow a lady when entering and when leaving a restaurant? (2) When a man meets a woman by chance in a car, is it good form for him to pay her fare? (3) Is it necessary for a gentleman to remove his hat in an elevator? I have heard different opinions in regard to it.

Thank you. H. F.

The lady precedes the gentleman when entering and leaving a restaurant. (2) Some men insist upon paying the fare of a women whom they meet by chance in a car, which is quite proper. However, he is not under obligation to do so unless he wishes. (3) The question of whether or not a gentleman removes his hat in an elevator has long been debated. Some argue that an elevator is in the same class as a room, while others say that it is in the class of the street. However all etiquette authorities regard the elevator as a small room, inasmuch as it has a ceiling, and the courteous man should remove his hat —especially while there are women in it. If the gentleman wishes—and there are no ladies in the car—he may remove his hat upon entering the car, and immediately replace it.

Dear Miss Flo: Is there any set rule in regard to what side of an automobile a lady should take when accompanied by an escort? (2) In stepping from the car, should the lady wait for the gentleman to leave the car? S. E.

There is no rule as to which side the lady occupies in a car. She enters the car first, and takes the seat furthest away, whether it is the right or left. (2) When leaving the car, the lady waits for the gentleman to lead the way in order that he may assist her.

Dear Miss Flo: When introducing a lady and gentleman, is it necessary for the lady who is making the introduction to arise? (2) Should the gentleman or the lady, upon being introduced the second time, recall the first introduction.

(3) When a young married woman is being introduced to an older woman, whom she has already met, should she recall the first introduction or wait for the older woman to mention it? D. S.

A person making an introduction should arise. (2) The gentleman should recall the previous introduction. He might say, "I believe I have had the pleasure of meeting Miss—at Mrs. Brown's reception. (3) It is the duty of the younger woman to recall the former introduction. She might say, "I have met Mrs. Brown."

Employer (to new office boy)—Has the cashier told you what to do in the afternoon?

Youth—Yes, sir—I was to wake him up when I saw you coming.
