Chestertown, Md., Dec. 28.—What is believed to have been an organized gang of thieves from the cities has been playing havoc among chicken houses during the last week. The raids started at the home of Frank Worrell, on the outskirts of town, where 200 fine laying hens and pullets were taken at one haul.

W. Frank Jarrell, of Washington avenue, and Bradford Titter, Mill street, lost every chicken they had, and the home of Walter T. Bramble, near Brooks' Mill, was visited Christmas eve and 40 of his best hens were stolen.

There had not been any petty thieving in Chestertown for a number of years, and it is not believed that the thefts were committed by anyone residing here, except, perhaps, in the capacity of a stool pigeon. Sheriff Goodman is investigating the robberies.

It is said that during the Christmas rush in the stores here Tuesday and Wednesday there was considerable shoplifting, a form of theft new to local merchants.

Seaford, Del., December. 28.—Tests of the lift of the draw in the new steel bridge in course of construction over the Nanticoke river here, were made yesterday and proved highly satisfactory.

The lift is 60 feet from the tip end of the girders to the river's edge. It was left in a full open position for sometime during the tests and attracted considerable attention from tourists of the state highway using the temporary bridge.

The largest haul since establishment of Base No. I of the "dry navy" operating from Atlantic City, netted 10000 cases of Scotch worth $50,000 and two ships last week.

A patrol boat pursued a schooner up the coast and into the Delaware river, nabbing the near Lewes. She proved to be the Katie C. a rakish craft valued at $10,000 by Perry C. Creighton, her captain. In the hold the guard crew found 600 cases of Scotch in neat holiday packages. The runner's crew consisted of William Woodington, Walter Wilson, John Reed, Albert Smith and William Green, who were taken to Atlantic City aboard the schooner by the guards and held in bail for the Federal Grand Jury, charged with smuggling. The schooner and cargo were interned pending Federal libel proceedings.

Activity of the swift patrol boats operating from the base crimped holiday liquor traffic. The guards report the Rum Row vessels are not anchoring off this coast, but are cruising about, trying to unload whenever possible.

Bill—Waiter, I found a hair in my honey, one in the ice cream and another in the apple sauce.

Waiter—Well, I guess the hair in the honey came from the comb, and the one in the ice cream from the shaving of the ice but I can't figure out the one in the apple sauce, for I bought the apples myself and they were all Baldwins (bald ones).
