Farmer Has Device for Getting Auto Out of Mud

Easton, Md., Feb. 28—A farmer near Easton has perfected a simple device for pulling his car out of mud holes. He claims that it works to perfection. The lane leading from his house to the State road is very bad in winter and after heavy rains his car often gets stuck in the mud. His device consists of a plank about four feet long, a foot wide and two inches thick. A chain is fastened at two corners of the plank, which is laid in front of the sunken wheel, and the chain is passed around one of the spokes. By this means the car is made to climb upon the plank and out of the mud hole. This device is not bulky and he always carries it in his car along with other tools, and never has to call for help to pull his car out of the mud.

Talbot to Ask U. S. For Boats

Easton, Md., Feb. 28—Easton and other waterside towns in Talbot and neighboring counties are much disturbed over the prospective loss of business consequent upon the withdrawal of boat service from the rivers by the Baltimore, Chesapeake and Atlantic Railway Company.

A meeting was held in the New Theatre in this city early in the past week, the purpose of which was to consider measures of maintaining water transportation between the county and the city markets.

The boat from Claiborne to Baltimore, it was pointed out, had been withdrawn, and at Tilghman, where there used to be one or two boats every night between there and Baltimore, there are now but two or three boats a week. At Easton, where there used to be two boats every night, which went loaded with freight, there is now one boat every other night, and no boat at all to Denton. All of these places are suffering the lack of cheap water transportation between the high freight rate being charged by the railroad.

The meeting was addressed by H. M. Frampton, an attorney of Washington, D. C., who explained what the Inland Waterways Corporation, run by the United States Government, is doing to save the waterways from disuse in consequence of the lack of steamboats and vessels. At the close of Mr. Frampton's address it was agreed to place the matter in the hands of the local Rotary Club with a view of working out a plan to secure better freighting facilities. Under the present system of transportation much perishable freight is lost, it was stated, because of inadequate shipping facilities.

The Rotary Club will get in touch with Brig. Gen. Thomas Ashburn, United States Army, at Washington, chairman and executive of the Inland Waterways Corporation, and lay claims for relief before him in hope of securing boats to operate on the local waters and give relief to the farmers and business interests. General Ashburn will be invited to come to Easton and personally investigate the situation.

Church Sells Farm Tract

Chestertown, Md., Feb. 26—The vestry of St. Clement's Protestant Episcopal church, Massey, has sold to Harry Holt, of Massey, 50 acres of land for $5,500. This is the highest price paid for farm land in Kent county since the war.

The tract is a part of a valuable farm bequeathed to the vestry by the late Stephen Boyer, a wealthy landowner of Massey, some years ago, and adjoins the property of Mr. Holt. The vestry has purchased the home of the late Isaac Gibbs in Massey for $3,900. It will be occupied by the rector, the Rev. J. L. Saunders, and his family.

Substitute Crop For Peach Sought

Hagerstown, Md., Feb. 25—Peach growers from four states gathered here today to plan for emergency crops, which will have to be grown this summer to take the place of the peach crop, which has practically been annihilated by the 24-below zero weather of last month.

There were about 50 growers, some of the largest in Pennsylvania, the Virginias and Maryland.

There will be practically no peaches in the entire Cumberland Valley belt. As this crop is one of the most important in the valley, the loss will be tremendous and, in order to prevent an entire loss to the growers, experts bring a better return to the grower, on the most logical crops to put out in their orchards this summer.

W. R. Ballard told what emergency crops can be grown this year. In view of the fact that labor is the most costly in the production of crops, growers were advised to choose crops that could be grown without any great addition to labor in the orchards, giving corn as an example.

Tomatoes also stand the best chance for quick crop and string beans are promising.

Early varieties of corn would likely bring a better return to he grower, they were informed.

The meeting today was held under the auspices of the University of Maryland, Department of Agriculture, and will likely prove profitable to growers, who, in years past, when early freezes killed or partially killed their peach crops, permitted the orchards to lie idle during that season.

Crops Diversification Object of Farm Meeting

Berlin, Md., Feb. 25—At a meeting under the auspices of the Berlin Chamber of Commerce, speakers endeavored to interest several hundred farmers in diversification of crops. J. W. Jones, a grower of cucumbers, and G. H. Taylor, a broker of Salisbury, spoke on cucumbers as a crop yielding bigger returns per acre in Wicomico during 1924 than any other vegetable.

C. C. Mumford, Showellis, dwelt on the profits accruing from raising snap beans. Thomas Groton, Pocomoke, praised the quality of strawberries grown in this vicinity, declaring them superior to those in states farther south.

E. I. Oswald, county agent, talked on tomatoes. Growers in this community have not yet contracted with the canners, holding out for 30 cents per basket, which is equivalent to $18 per ton. Oswald stated that during the coming season tobacco will be grown in Worchester county experimentally, 5 acres being planted near Bishopville and the same areas near Indiantown and Stockton.

During the close of the eighteenth century tobacco was grown in this vicinity successfully.

Two Children Die in Fire Razing Negro Tenement

Crisfield, Md., March 1—Trapped in the second story of a large frame negro tenement swept by fire early this morning, two children burned to death, two other children were severely burned, but escaped death by jumping 20 feet to safety, and the mother so seriously burned recovery is doubtful.

Briscoe was slightly burned when he attempted to rescue the children who perished. Other occupants escaped with slight injuries.

A kerosene lamp explosion is believed the cause, which was left burning all night.

Although Crisfield has suffered many fire losses, this is the first fatality which has occurred for many years. The apartment house was owned by Wallace M. Quinn of Crisfield.

The entire household effects were destroyed, together with an automobile and several wagons, which had been placed in a yard near the destroyed building.

SEED STILL ALIVE AFTER 40-YEAR SLEEP

Washington, Feb. 28. — Why war against weeds? Experiments just completed by E. Brown, of the United States Department of Agriculture's seed laboratory, show that of 100 species of seeds buried for 20 years, weed seed showed the highest per cent. of germination when planted.

According to Mr. Brown, however, 20 years is as but a night to a seed, as numbers of successful experiments have been made in germinating seed which has been buried 40 years. Reports from Japanese investigators in Manchuria indicate that seed buried for about 40 years has been grown successfully.

Don' Use Second Hand Filler

The Service Bureau handles a large number of our people's claims involving difficulties in the shipment of eggs. When the returns from the commission merchant come back, deductions are often made for various shortages, including broken eggs. When we take these difficulties up with the American Railway Express Company, we find them very willing to make adjustments when the breakages are caused by their own carelessness. But when the Express Company finds that the difficulties are due to poor second hand crates and particularly to second hand fillers, used in shipping the eggs, then they refuse to pay claims. In justice, we must say that they are right in such refusal.

Poultrymen lose many thousands of dollars in the course of the year thru trying to save a few cents in using packing material and fillers more than once.

Here is a typical letter on this subject just received from the Express years terms of office, with only two to claims:

"Your inquiry is at hand. Investigation shows that second hand fillers were used, and a reference to our files shows that this shipper's attention has previously been called to the use of improper packing material.."
