A TREMENDOUS BATTLE. MR. AND MRS. M'STINGER'S CONFLICT WITH

THE ROCKING CHAIR. Old McStinger was going to bed the other night a little wavy, and not wishing Attorneys and Counselors at Law, to disturb Mrs. McStinger, who has a tongue like a rat-tail-file, he thought it New Office on Court Street, oppojust as well not to turn on the gas. He got on very well until he reached the door neing himself on his heels like a pole on | iness placed in our hands.

Mrs. McStinger, with her usual exemplary fortitude, had placed the rocking chair with such gifted skill that no man could come into the room without running over it; so the first thing he knew, Mc-Stinger stubbed his toe nail off against the rock, which knocked the seat against the crazy bone of his knee, and made one o the long arms prod him in the stomach. was now fully opened. When a man be- ather's residence. gins falling over rocking chairs in a dark room, he ought to have three days rations and forty rounds.

points of the rockers embracing his abdo men, and didn't seem to want to do anything active just then. But McStinger couldn't make up his mind to give it up He rolled over sideways and upset It fell with a crash on its side, giving him a furious dig in the liver, that made him straighten out his legs spasmodically, barking one shin from the instep to the knee on the rocker which hung in the air, and getting the chair on its feet again, where it stood rocking backward and forward at him like a wary old ram making feints of bucking its adversary, 132 LIGHT STREET WHAR in order to throw him off his guard. The blow in the side nearly finished McStinger, and while lying there rubbing his wind back again, he was just beginning to reflect whether his honor required him to proceed any further in the affair, when Mrs. McStinger suddenly began screaming all the names in the crimes act, under | YARDS the impression that the Charley Ross abductors were trying to commit a burglary, bigamy, robbery, and everything else on

Up to this time she had been speechless with terror, and had laid there trembling, shedding perspiration, and accumulating shrieking power, until she had gained the screaming capacity of a camel-back engine. She had just received her third sforzando fortessimo accelerando, when old McStinger succeeded in getting to his feet again, and became dimly visible to Mrs. McStin-With one last wild parting shriek she sprung from the bed and made a dash | SHINGLES, for the door, near which the rocking chair still stood menacing the whole universe with a butting motion. Mrs. McStinger had no time for investigation just then, and she pitched into and over the rocking chair and clear on down stairs, the chair after her, turning over and over, and kicking Mrs. McStinger every bump, until they both landed in the hall below, where the chair broke all to atoms. ended the fight.

Too MUCH MONEY IN LONDON .- The anomulous condition of the London money J. H. SIMPERS. market may well serve to point the moral of having too much even of a good thing. Money, it seems, is so excessively cheap and plentiful that the banks and discount houses refuse to look at any but the very best paper, because it is not worth while to take any risk. Thus to the small trader and to merchants of limited means generally the very abundance of money is a serious disadvantage, and many will in sequence be compelled to succumb Our paper currency is just now and has been for some time quoted "easy" in the money markets. How it would be with one or two hundred millions more thrown Have just received a Large and Varied upon the country, even if it could maintain itself as English currency on a par with gold, is suggested by the present as- SPRING pect of the London market.
