The Political Situation.

The lessons which have been drawn from the result of the late elections throughout the country, observes the Baltimore Sun, and the vi ws taken of the particular moral and significance of the losses sustained by the republican party, differ materially according to the political standpoint of the observer. Democrats, naturally elated and encouraged by the success which has thus given them the control of of the next House of Representatives, look forward to further political gains in 1884 which shall transfer to their party the entire administration of the government. R publicans, on the other hand, are to be found consoling themselves with the belief that defeat in 1882 means victory for their party in 1884, and that present reverses are but the wholesome chastening, the timely warning which the party needed in order to prepare it and strengthen it for the next presidential contest. According to their view, the result of the election is not to be regarded in any sense as a proof popular confidence in the principles or leaders of the democratic party, but simply as a temporary punishment for the shortcomings and mistakes of republican administration, and the abuses of which republican politicians have been guilty. The truth, as usual, is to be found between the two extremes of political opinion. It is absurd to suppose that the mass of the American people is so wedded to republican men and measurse that nothing beyond a fatherly chastening and correction was intended by the election of a democratic House. It would be as great a fallacy to imagine that all the republicans who staved away from the polls or helped swell by their votes the democratic majorities this fall have deliberately and p rmanently forsaken their former political opinions and associations. Undoubtedly if the democrats should fail to make good use of their opportunity to enaugurate the kind of reform and legislation which the country desires, their victory in 1882 may only prove the precursor to a greater defeat in 1884. But if, on the other hand, the democrats act with wisdom and patriotism, there is nothing to prevent them from retaining and increasing the advantage they have gained. There is a large and increasing number of voters in this country, quite sufficient to turn the scale in a presidential election, who care much less for party names than they do for the substance of good government and honest and economical administration, and to whom corrupt methods in politics are equally offensive whether practiced by one party or the other. It is by this vote that the republicans have been defeated and a majority of Democrats returned to the next House of Representatives. The result of the election is equivalent to a vote of want of confidence in the party now controlling the administration of the the government. The democrats are accordingly admitted to power on probation. Will they do better? The country is willing to give them a trial, and that is about the whole moral of the elections. It is of the greatest importance, therefore, that those who have the shaping and guiding of the policy of the democratic party should understand this fully. The direct responsibility rests not upon any leader or set of leaders that can be named, but upon the body of democratic members of the next Congress. It is by thier actions, their votes and speeches, the measures they pass or try to pass and the measures they neglect, that they will be judged not only individually, but their party will be judged with them.

They have been elected in the hope that they will profit by the fate as well as the mistakes of their predecessors as was the political revolution which was effected by the November election. it was entirely unmarked by those evidences of popular excitement and enthusiasm—the hurrah feeling—by which such changes are frequently attended. It was done so quietly that to most people it produced the effect of a great political surprise. It was because the result was controlled not by a noisy passion or impulse, but by calm judgment and reason. It was the sober thought of the people, which, with intelligent discrimination in localities widely separated, in States and districts heretofore strongly republican, wrought the defeat of men who had been tried and found wanting to their trust, and transferred that trust to other hands.

AN ATHEIST'S SUICIDE.—David Evans, an atheist of over 70 years, who lived near Wilkesbarre, Pa., blew his brains out on Thursday morning of last week. He had been working for a long time on a perpetual motion machine and had been discouraged. He left a letter in which he said:

"I do sincerely prohibit any and all of the Rev. Devils to babble and lie over my old body. Bury me in my old rags just as I am now. Sell that coat of mine or give it to whomsoever you please. I die in my atheistical faith as fearlessly as the heathen dies in his faith in its existence. I believe not in conscious existence or sensitiveness after death. It is the end, the final end, of man as well as the common animals. Ye will judge this and blame it; nevertheless it is truthful. I considered and concluded that to commit suicide would be the best thing that I could possibly do. I am but eluding mis ries and pains."

There are said to be three hundred professional gunners residing at Havre de Grace, who make a comfortable living by shooting red-head and canvas-back ducks.

The Fate of Morgan.

The New York Sun prints a history of the murder of Captain Wiliam Morgan, the recreant Mason, whose take-off caused such a bitter political struggle 55 years ago; the history having been prepared by the late Thurlow Weed and subscribed and sworn to by him on September 28th last.

Much of the matter contained therein has passed into history; but the conversion of one of the murderers of Morgan, made to Thurlow Weed in 1831 and by him kept an inviolate secret until the preparation of this paper, is now made public for the first time. The name of the confessed murderer was John Whitney, and his story, as given in Mr. Weed's affidavit, is as follows:

The idea of suppressing Morgan's intended exposure of the secrets of Masonry was first suggested by a man by the name of Johns. It was discussed in lodges at Batavia, Le Roy, and Rochester. Johns suggested that Morgan should be separated from Miller and placed on a farm in Canada West. For this purpose he was taken to Niagara and placed in the magazine of the fort until arrangements for settling him in Canada were completed, but the Canadian Masons disappointed them.

After several meetings of the lodge in Canada, opposite Fort Niagara, a refusal to have anything to do with Morgan left his "kidnappers" greatly perplexed. Opportunely a Royal Arch chapter was installed at Lewiston. The occasion brought a large number of enthusiastic Masons together. "After labor," in Masonic language, they "retired to refreshment." Under the exhilaration of champagne and other viands, the Chaplain (the Rev. F. H Cummings of Rochester) was called on for a toast. He responded with peculiar emphasis and in the language of their ritual: "The enemies of our order—May find a grave six feet deep, six feet long, and six feet due east and west."

Immediately after that toast, which was received with great enthusiasm, Col. William Kline, an officer in our war of 1812, and then a member of the Assembly from Niagara county, called Whitney of Rochester, Howard of buffalo, Chubbuck of Lewiston, and Garside of Canada out of the room and into a carriage furnished by Major Barton. They were driven to Fort Niagara, rowed to the magazine, and informed Morgan that the arrangements for sending him to Canada were completed, and that his family would soon follow him. Morgan received the information cheerfully and walked with supposed friends to the boat, which was rowed to the mouth of the river, where a rope was wound around his body to each end of which a sinker was attached. Morgan was then thrown overboard. He grasped the gunwale of the boat convulsively. Garside, in forcing Morgan to relinquish his hold, was severely bitten.

Whitney made this confession verbally, in the presence of Col. Simeon B. Jewett and Major Samuel Barton. Twenty-nine years afterward he offered to commit it to writing, and have it signed in the presence of witnessess, to be published after death. The excitement of the Lincoln campaign and the secession of the South ra states, Mr Weed says, caused this to be neglected until it was too late.

"In 1861," he says, "I went to Europe, and while in London wrote a letter to Whitney asking him to get Alexander B. Williams, then a resident of Chicago, to do what I had so unpardonably neglected. That letter reached Chicago one week after Whitney's death, closing the last and only chance for the revelation of that important event."

ON Wednesday morning of last week. Thurlow Weed, the distinguished editor and politician, died in New York City, at the ripe age of 85. He has always been a prominent figure in the politics of the country, having been a Whig, then a Republican and Abolitionist. For 59 years he was connected with the newspaper business, having withdrawn from editorial life in 1868, since which time he has lived in retirement.

We desire to call the attention of our readers to one of the largest, ablest, and most popular religious newspapers published—one that secures the best writers in this country and in Europe, regardless of expense; has the best and fullest book review of any paper in the country; has able articles upon financial and commercial subjects; has departments edited by specialists and devoted to fine arts, music, science, religious intelligence, missions, school and college news of the week hymn notes Sunday school, legal and sanitary questions, Biblical research, (something that cannot be found in any other newspaper in the United States), farm and garden, insurance, weekly market reports, etc.—in fact a newspaper which, with its twenty two distinct departments is suited to the requirements of every family containing a fund of information which cannot be had in any other shape, and having a wide circulation over the country and in Europe. We refer to The Independent, of New York, now called 'The largest, the ablest, the best." See advertisement in another column, and send a postal card for free specimen copy.

CHANGE OF TIME.—On Monday a change in the running of trains on the Delaware & Chesapeake railroad went into effect. Now the freight train instead of changing engine and men at Clayton, as heretofore, comes down the road entire, as the train is made up in Wilmington. This will insure the delivery of freight in better order and with less delay in transit. A change was also inaugurated in the running of the passenger train. The train takes a position on the Smyrna Branch siding, ready to pass out on the departure of the Delaware train, without further delay.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from active practice, having had placed in his hands by an East Indian Missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma, and all Throat and Lung affections, also a positive and radical cure for General Debility and all nervous complaints after having thoroughly tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, feels it his duty to make it known to his fellows. The recipe, with full particulars, directions for preparation and use, and all necessary advice and instructions for successful treatment at your own home, will be received by you by return mail, free of charge, by addressing with stamp or stamped self addressed envelope to DR. THE SUN.

NEW YORK, 1883.

More people have read The Sun during the year just now passing than ever before since it was first printed. No other newspaper published on this side of the earth has been bought and read in any year by so many men and women.

We are credibly informed that people buy, read, and like The Sun for the following reasons, among others:

Because its news columns present in attractive form and with the greatest possible accuracy whatever has interest for humankind; the events, the deeds and misdeeds, the wisdom, the philosophy, the notable folly, the wild sense, the improving nonsense—all the news of the busiest world at present revolving in space.

Because people have learned that in its remarks concerning persons and affairs The Sun makes a practice of telling them the exact truth to the best of its ability three hundred and sixty five times in the year, before election as well as after, about the whales as well as about the small fish, in the face of dissent as plainly and fearlessly as when supported by general approval. The sun has absolutely purposes to serve, save the informat on of its readers and the furtherance of the common good.

Because it is everybody's newspap r. No man is so humble that The Sun is indifferent to his welfare and his rights. No man is so rich that it can allow injustice to be done him. No man, no association of men, is power ul enough to be exempt from the application of its principles of right and wrong.

Because in politics it has fought for a dozen years without intermission and sometimes almost alone among newspapers, the fight that has resulted in the recent overwhelming popular verdict against Rob-scum-ism and for honest government No matter what party is in power, The Sun stands and will continue to stand like a rock for the interests of the people against the ambition of bosses, the encroachments of monopolists, and schemes of public robbers.

All this is what we are told almost daily by our friends One man holds that The Sun is the best religious paper ever published, because its Christianity is undiluted with cant. Another holds that it is the best Republican newspaper printed, because it has already whipped half the rascals out of that party, and is proceeding against the other half with undiminished vigor. A third believes it to be the best magazine of general literature in existence, because its readers miss nothing worthy of notice that is current in the world of thought. So every friend of the The Sun discovers one of its many sides that appeals with particular force to his individual liking.

If you already know The Sun, you will observe that in 1883 it is a little better ever before. If you do not already know The Sun, you will find it to be a mirror of all human activity, a storehouse of the choicest productions of common sense and imagination, a malady for the cause of honest government, a sentinel of genuine Jeffersonian Democracy, a scourage for wickedness of every species, and an uncommonly good investment for the coming year.

EXECUTIVE PROCLAMATION.

STATE OF MARYLAND, EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,

ANNAPOLIS, Nov 15, 1882.

WHEREAS an election was held in this State on the 7th day of November, 1882, for six Representatives from this State, in the Congress of the United States, and it is the duty of the Governor, in the case of such election, to ascertain the number of votes given to each person voted for from the official returns of the judges of election certified to him, and thereupon, by Executive proclamation to declare the result;

And whereas, by said returns, now on file in the Executive Department so certified, and on an enumeration of the votes given for the several candidates as Representative from this State to the Congress of the United States it appears that GEORGE W. C VINGTON had the greatest number of votes in the first congressional district, FREDERICK C. TALBOTT, in the second congressional district, FETTER S. HOBLITZELL, in the third congressional district, J. V. L. FINDLAY in the fourth congressional district, HART B. HOLTON in the fifth congressional district, LOUIS E. McCOMAS in the sixth congressional district.

Now, I, William T Hamilton, Governor of the State of Maryland, by this my proclamation, declare and make known that the said GEORGE W. COVINGTON in the first congressional district, FREDERICK C. TALBOTT in the second congressional district, FETTER S. HOBLITZELL in the third congressional district, J. V. L. FINDLAY in the fourth congressional district, HART B HOLTON in the fifth congressional district, LOUIS E. M COMAS in the sixth congressional district were duly elected Representatives from the State of Maryland in the Forty-eighth Congress of the United States.

Given under my hand and the great seal of the State of Maryland at Annapolis on this 15th day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-two.

By the Governor. WM. T. HAMILTON.

PATENTS.

Send a rough sketch or a model of your invention to GEORGE E. LEMON, Washington, D. C., and a Preliminary Examination will be made, without charge, of all United States patents of the same class of inventions and you will be advised whether or not a patent can be obtained.

If you are advised that your invention is patentable, send $20, to pay Government fee of $15 and $5 for drawings required by the Government. This is payable when application is made. When allowed, the attorney's fee ($25) and the final Government fee ($20) is payable. An attorney whose fee depends on his success in obtaining a Patent will not advise you that your invention is patentable unless it really is, so far as his best judgment can determine; hence, you can rely on the advice given after a preliminary examination is had. Design Patents and the Registration of Labels, Trade-Marks, and Re-issues secured. Caveats prepared and filed. Applications in revivor of Rejected, Abandoned, or Forfeited Cases made. If you have undertaken to secure your own patent and failed, a skillful handling of the case may lead to success. Send me a written request addressed to the Commissioner of Patents that he recognize GEORGE E. LEMON, of Washington, D. C., as your attorney in the case, giving the title of the invention and about the date of filing your application. An examination and report will cost you nothing. Remember, this office has been in successful operation since 1865, and reference can be given to actual clients in almost every county in the U.S. Pamphlet relating to Patents free upon request.

GEORGE E. LEMON,

Attorney at Law and Solicitor of American and Foreign Patents,

615 Fifteenth Street, WASHINGTON, D. C.
