JUDGE ROBINSON'S APPOINTMENT.

In our issue of April 22 we noted the probability that Governor Brown would appoint Judge John M. Robinson chief judge of the Court of Appeals to succeed Judge Alvey, who is now Chief Judge of the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia by appointment of the President. We took it for granted that the Governor would select him on account of his pre-eminent fitness for the high office, and in this we were not mistaken. The people of Caroline feel an especial pride in Judge Robinson's distinguished career and his latest elevation is noted with much gratification here.

Judge Robinson was born in Caroline county December 2, 1827. In 1857 he graduated at Dickinson College; studied law with Carmichael & Brown at Centreville, was admitted to the bar in 1849 and began the practice of law in Centreville. In January, 1851, under the old constitution, he received from Attorney-General R. J. Brent the appointment of deputy attorney-general for Queen Anne's county. In November of that year the new constitution went into effect and under it he was elected State's attorney. In 1864 he was elected judge of the circuit, which comprised the counties of Queen Anne's and Kent. In 1867 he was elected judge of the third judicial circuit, and again in 1882, both times without opposition either in the convention or at the polls. His present term of office will expire in 1897.

A REPUBLICAN COLOR LINE.

One night last week, in Raine's Hall, Baltimore, there were gathered fifty prominent Republican leaders and workers of that city. The great leader of all of them was ex-Postoffice Inspector William T. Henderson. They frankly admitted that their object was to separate the white from the colored Republicans, and an address was prepared.

Mr. William T. Henderson was the controlling influence. He presented the address, and in doing so said the time had come when the Republican party should free itself of the odium cast upon it by being called the "negro party." "This phrase applied to us," said the speaker, "prevents many young men, who are Republicans at heart, from coming into our ranks. This should not be, and the time to stop is now. Let the white Republicans show that they are determined to control and direct the policy of the party. If the colored voters want clubs let them organize separately."

The preamble of the address deals with the "good" the Republican party has done to the country and the injury that has been inflicted by the Democrats. It then goes on to say:

"The Republican party emancipated the negro and enfranchised him that he might not be left unprotected. We feel that the party has fulfilled its duty as regards the colored man. The continuance of the colored question as the leading political one for the party's consideration tends only to keep alive that sectional feeling which should long since have been buried, thereby rendering the attainment of success impossible. This ought to cease, as the matter is now one to be determined wholly by the courts.

"In religious bodies and sacred organizations white and colored worship and assemble in separate churches and meeting places. No effort is sought to be made to alter this mutually agreeable state of affairs. We see no reason why in political organizations the same conditions should not exist. Under such a condition both white and colored races will be benefited.

"Therefore, we ask all white Republicans and all who believe in the principles of the Republican party to unite with us in the formation of white Republicans clubs. The colored man is not a Republican by reason or color, but ought to be guided by conscience and a sense of right."

Few Republicans there are in Maryland who will as frankly and openly avow their opinions on this question as Mr. Henderson and his friends have done. Indeed, where would the Republican party be if the separate "colored clubs" should conclude to remain independent even on election day? Small wonder that the Republican party of Maryland touch the matter rather gingerly!

EDITORIAL NOTES.

At eight minutes past twelve o'clock on Monday the Columbian Exposition, the most magnificent national celebration which the world has known, was formally opened by President Cleveland. Mr. Cleveland made a brief speech, after which he pressed an electric button, and the fair was open to the world.

"What is wanted," says the Cambridge Chronicle, "is a ticket that will be representative of the party as a whole." That succinctly expresses the wants of the Democratic party in every county in Maryland.

Benjamin Whiteley, M. D., of Frederica, is an applicant for Consul-General to Teheran. This would be an excellent appointment and one that would be a credit to Delaware.

Horace Greely Knowles, of Lewes, comes away from the Bordeaux consulate, and John M. Wiley, of New York, succeeds him.

Wanamaker.

PHILADELPHIA Monday, May 1st 1893

The 110,000 yards of Ginghams at eight cents--from 12½c—are conquering the town.

The counter at which are sold the Plaid Stuffs is boasting now rich Novelties in Silk-and-wool at half prices, near by are Serges at 50c, in many colors, worth 80c. Equally cheap are the Whipcords at 60 and 75c,

Other rare things to thus:

Silk-and-wool Epingline Plaids are down, $1.75 to $1.25: same materials, changeable plaid, go from $2 to $1.25, and a choice variety, Velour and Epingline, go from $2.50 to $1.25.

Nine styles Melange Plaids, rare, trip on the price steps and fall from $1.25 to 75c. 45 in. Can't tell about them, they must be seen

Six styles Plumetis Plaids were $1.25, are $1·42 in.

Just out of the import cases and first shown this morning:

First. Silk-striped Epingle, very beautiful, $1.25. All the season until to-day $2.50.

Second. Silk-and-wool Hop Sacking, exclusive, has been $5, is $2.

Third. Mixed Stripes, gems for traveling dresses, $1.25; never before less than $2.

The last three items are fit responses to the Ginghams—the Hop Sacking is at $2 is relatvely cheap as the Ginghams at eight cents.

And so there is bargain music all along the line.

Another surprise! Nothing is a surprise at Wanamaker's. Would be elsewhere. Look!

Lupin's Iron Frame Hennanis—black. Pure silk-and-wool, No cotton carded in as with some of the mongrel stuffs which profess to be Hernani bargains. The meshes are sure, not slippery. But you and Lupin are so completely en rapport that all this seems lide merely introducing life-long friends.

This is the way prices go:

65c quality is 37½c
75c quality is 50c
$1 quality is 65c
All 23 inches wide.

The high grades and greater widths sympathize in the reductions, thus:

$1.25 quality is $1 00
$1.50 quality is $1.25
$2.00 quality is $1.50
$2.50 quality is $2.00
All 45 inches wide.

Lupin's again. This time black Mexicanne. You know the Spanish-like brunette stuff. In fibre and construction the pendant to Hernani. It goes this morning from $1.25 to Sixty-Five Cents.

A trade riddle? Yes, but don't fool your time in guessing it. Buy the stuff.

Very likely the Costume-style your dress-maker advises was suggested in that great gathering, Thirteenth and Chestnut streets, second floor.

Hints there for the brightest of them. Nowhere else in America can so many new Dress thoughts be seen.

Costumes for any service.

The more you see of them the less you'll wonder why so many women of taste and means are buying their Dresses ready-made.

Base-Ball Goods—anything.

If there's a good Bat shape or a new, you'll find it somewhere in the long line between Boys' Maple, 5c, and Spalding's New Model Oval, $1.50.

So of Balls, from Rockets 5c to League, $1.25.

Or of Masks or Gloves or Mitts or Body Protectors—or Score Books even.

Nothing overlooked.

All sorts of Sporting things are handled in the same way.

JOHN WANAMAKER.

Men's All-Wool Suits for $10. No use buying cotton goods when wool is so cheap. Light-colored Cheviots in attractive patterns and superior finish, $10, $12, $14. Dressy Dark Suits, $12 to $22.
