EDITORIAL NOTES.

Some of the provisions of the game law which the Baltimore county association will ask the Legislature to enact for the entire State, are new and worth discussing. The protection afforded to song birds, and to other birds not considered game birds, is far-reaching, imposing a penalty of $5 to $10 for killing, trapping, or catching any bluebird, martin, thrush, mocking-bird, swallow, oriole, redbird, catbird or sparrow, and imposes the same penalty for disturbing or destroying their eggs. The pestiferous English sparrow is not afforded any protection under this law. Another feature of genuine protection to game is the imposition of a fine of $5 to $15 for dogs to run or destroy or molest game during the close season; or empowering game wardens to kill the dogs when owners are unknown or refuse to pay the penalty. The section restricting the amount of game a gunner may kill in one day to six rabbits, ten partridges, four woodcock, six squirrels and four pheasants, is not likely to be violated in whole by gunners in any part of the State, and not a great many chromos would supply all those who come to the limit prescribed in killing partridges, rabbits, squirrels or woodcock. Nevertheless, it is not a bad idea to even up this shooting somewhat. The sportsman who can manage, by hard hunting, to bag a brace of partridges a day should have the opportunity to go after that pair five times to the one of him who can boast of a dozen bagged in a day.

Former Chief Judge George M. Russum, of the Second Circuit, is the latest candidate for United States District Attorney, to succeed Mr. William Marbury, who was appointed by President Cleveland, but never confirmed by the Senate, because of the opposition of Senator Gorman. The other candidates are State Comptroller R. E. Graham, of Wicomico county, Colonel Thomas S. Hodson, formerly of Somerset county, but now of Baltimore city, and Mr. John C. Rose, of Baltimore county. Judge Russum was defeated for reelection by Mr. James Alfred Pearce. He was appointed to the bench by Governor Lowndes nearly two years ago, to succeed the late Hon. John M. Robinson. He is a familiar figure in Eastern Shore Republican politics, having on several occasions been his party's nominee for Congress. He also served as state's attorney of Caroline county, where he has always resided. Judge Russum may be voted for by the members of the legislature for United States Senator.

High tariff and high prices to consumers will soon become, if it is not already, an axiom. A well-known New York clothing dealer says: "The new tariff has undoubtedly put up the price of men's clothing considerable. A suit of clothes that could be purchased for $15 last year cannot be duplicated now under $20, and that fact is a source of annoyance to dealers and customers alike. With men of ample means, who have all their garments made to order by fashionable tailors, $5 to $10 advance on a suit is hardly noticed, evokes no complaint. It is very different, however, with those who have to be very careful in their expenditures, for to this class $5 represents a considerable sum. The number of men who array themselves in $15 and $20 suits in the United States is largely in excess of those who pay tailors $40 or $50 for a suit, and it is from the poor and middle class that the kick against the Dingley bill is sure to come."

The Baltimore Herald last Sunday published biographical sketches, with pictures, of the members of the Legislature. It gives their occupations, as follows: Merchants, 30; farmers, 26; physicians, 5; packers, 4; mechanics, 6; painters, 2; banker, 1; florist, 1; clerks, 7; lawyers, 23; teacher, 1; capitalist, 1; shipbuilder, 1; sea captain, 1; bookkeeper, 1; journalists, 2; insurance business, 2; commercial traveler, 1; real estate dealer, 1; railroad attache, 1; total: 117. Caroline county furnishes three of the four fruit-packers, and one of the defeated candidates for the House of Delegates, Mr. Robert Jarrell, is also engaged in that business.

Senator Wellington has sued General Agnus, publisher of the Baltimore American, for $100,000 damages, alleged to have been sustained by the publication of a certain editorial in the paper of November 26. The General has, furthermore, been indicted for criminal libel. The American has been after the Senator for a long time, and now the Senator proposes to retaliate.

The Dingley tariff law didn't make both ends meet last month by a matter of $8,000,000. The shortage of receipts for the five months of the present fiscal year is over $46,000,000. That law is a stupendous success as a deficit producer.

Judge-elect Wm. R. Martin took the oath of office on Wednesday, succeeding Judge Wickes.

A Utah paper says politics is one of the worst forms of idleness.

IN THE RANKS OF THE REPUBLICANS.

From the Baltimore American

The many candidates for the United States Senate and their supporters are lining up preparatory to the contest, which will begin during the first week of the legislature at Annapolis. How long that contest will last, how many ballots will be taken, who will be the choice of the caucus, and then of the sixty-seven Republican members of the legislature—are questions which time only can settle. These are certain facts: That the fifty Democratic members will stand solidly together; that they will not aid or abet the election of a Republican; that a majority of their caucus will support Senator Gorman in the empty honor of the minority nomination; that while there are many candidates in the field, Governor Lowndes is the only one for whom open work is being done, although all of his competitors are at work more or less actively; that the opponents of the Wellington-Lowndes-Gary combination have not concentrated their forces; that they are requesting their friends in the legislature to abstain from promises or pledges for any one man for senator, and that this request has been complied with.

These are the conspicuous features of the situation as it stands today. What a day or a week may bring forth no one knows, not even those playing on the chess-board of politics. Some candidates, convinced of their inability to win the prize, will drop out and throw their strength to more favored rivals. Others now unthought of may enter the arena. Already Senator Westcott, of Kent county, says that he is not a candidate. He says that he has never been a candidate, and that he has been placed on the list by his friends, and not by himself or by his own consent.

Rumors are rife that others already lagging in the race, and at no time prominent in it, will ask their legislative friends not to support them. And so the sifting out process will gradually go on until the race narrows down to the few men with the greatest staying qualities. It seems to be the better politics for many desiring the election to say nothing at this time, thus avoiding identification with the factions which are already manifesting themselves. So bitter may the contest become, it is realized, that the prize may go to some man who has not been too conspicuous in the fight, who has engendered no hostilities or animosities, and who will prove acceptable to all factions and the candidates. To assume this part will require a finesse in adroit politics. Governor Lowndes is putting in the hardest, if not the most effective, licks in the fight.

The candidacy of Hon. Milton G. Urner, of Frederick county, for United States Senator is favorably regarded by his many friends throughout the state, who recall his record in Congress in the early eighties, his service in the state Senate at the sessions of 1888 and 1890, his popularity as naval officer for the port of Baltimore and his high standing at the bar.

The many aspirants for the United States senatorship are playing for position on the selection of the presidency of the Senate. Mr. Dryden, of Somerset, will receive the support of Mr. Lowndes, but is not certain of the votes of his Republican colleagues from the Eastern Shore. Mr. Norman B. Scott, of Washington county, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, will be supported by his fellow-senators inimical to the Wellington-Lowndes-Gary combination. Senator Wilkinson, of St. Mary's, is still in the fight. Senator Westcott, of Kent, says that he has at no time been a candidate. The speakership of the House is conceded to Baltimore city, and there are several candidates in the field. Mr. Schirm has been selected by the Wellington-Lowndes-Gary combination to make the fight. His selection has caused some surprise in the ranks of the opponents of the combination, as he has been friendly, politically, to them. Mr. Schirm says he is under no promise to vote for any candidate for senator. The anti-combination men have not yet made their choice. Oscar L. Quinlan, W. Baltzell Jenkins, Emanuel H. Jacobi and B. L. Turner are candidates for the speakership. At a meeting of the delegation of the First district, all the members pledged their support to Mr. Jacobi as long as he is a candidate for the speakership, and he says that he can count four other members of the city delegation who will support him.

How to Prevent Pneumonia.

At this time of the year a cold is very easily contracted, and if let to run its course without the aid of some reliable cough medicine is liable to result in that dread disease, pneumonia. We know of no better remedy to cure a cough or cold than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. We have used it quite extensively and it has always given entire satisfaction—Oolagah, Ind. Ter. Chief. This is the only remedy that is known to be a certain preventive of pneumonia. Among the many thousands who have used it for colds and la grippe we have never yet learned of a single case having resulted in pneumonia. Persons who have weak lungs or have reason to fear an attack of pneumonia, should keep the remedy at hand. The 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by W. B. Brown, Denton; Hugh Duffey, Hillsboro; R. J. NO COMPULSORY EDUCATION IN MD.

To the Editors of the JOURNAL:

The annual meeting of the Association of School Commissioners of the State of Maryland began in Baltimore on November 24th, and one feature of it was the presentation of a plea for compulsory education by Prof. M. B. Stephens, of Caroline county. Will you kindly allow a brief dialogue in reply to some of his statements?

STEPHENS—Our school system of to-day assumes a different attitude toward compulsory school attendance than it did in years past, and if the principle of compulsory education be right, the conditions of our educational atmosphere are most favorable to the enactment of such a law.

LIVESEY—A bill was introduced in our last Legislature by Republican Delegate Geo. W. Padgett, of Baltimore, urging compulsory education I immediately started a correspondence with the gentleman and some newspapers of the State, and the bill was never brought to a vote. This shows what the "educational atmosphere" is. "The principle of compulsory education" is not "right," but is wholly wrong. Individual liberty to the citizen is denied when his home can be entered and the innocent ones of his family hustled off to the promiscuous company of the public school. Sam Jones says the State has no more right to educate the child than it has to feed and clothe him. The Single Taxers look upon the public schools as a humiliating charity to a free people, which a juster system would abolish.

S.—This question is not a new one, nor could the passage of such a law by this State be an experiment without precedent; twenty-eight States and Territories already have such a law, the authority for the enactment of which has not been questioned.

L.—Exactly! The more the merrier for socialism. Every socialist and anarchist in the country wants compulsory education. Herr Most and Emma Goldman have repeatedly shouted for it. The New York Journal is in the midst of it, yet in a recent article it quoted the Bishop of Nebraska as saying that our education was getting to be the advance agent of anarchy, while, corroborative of the Bishop, it mentioned a professor of Columbia College as stating that education was getting to be a most dangerous thing among the lower classes. We all see in the South, where education is not so forced, strikes, socialism and anarchy less prevalent than where it is.

S.—Dr. Harris' report shows that for every 100 people in Maryland, over 12 years of age, there are at least 15 who cannot read and write.

L.—The next report should recite what those 15 in every 100 are doing. Doubtlessly, they are the hewers of wood and the drawers of water, with steady jobs before them, while a large per cent. of the educated are lolling in idleness and semi-starvation, or tramping our highways, or filling up the criminal records. All the tramps who have come my way for years past have been the off-shoots of the public schools. At one time I advertised in the Baltimore Sun for a farm hand, and upwards of 30 half-starved clerks applied; but not one real farm hand, or illiterate.

S.—If an enlightened public opinion has failed to regard ignorance of this kind to be so dangerous to the State as to cause its extermination, the strong arm of the law should be invoked to accomplish for society that which persuasion has failed to do.

L.—The Chicago Inter-Ocean recently had an article on this subject, in which it said, "The spread of mere secular education does not work a diminution of crime," and The Light, of Greely, Ks., in quoting the above article, heads it, "Cold Facts: Some Day This Nation Will Have a Fearful Awakening." Years ago statistics were given in the North American Review, in which crime, lunacy and pauperism were shown to be vastly greater, in proportion to population, in compulsorily educated Massachusetts than in South Carolina. The day was when the public school was supposed to be the safeguard of the State—that day has passed. At this minute the boys and girls of this land need an education to practical work. If compulsion for State safety existed in any direction, it should exist in this; but compulsion in any direction in these matters intercepts the liberty which belongs to every man, woman and child.

S.—In the face of these facts and conditions, is it not fair to make the deduction that there should be a compulsory educational law in this State?

L.—Yes, we ought to have the law for this State if we want the following: (1) An increase of socialists and anarchists; (2) An increase of purblind and emaciated children; (3) An increase of worthless manual workers in every calling; (4) An increase of idle clerks and school teachers; (5) An increase of Smart Alecks who live by wits rather than work; (6) An increase of those who say "the world owes me a living;" (7) An increase of nervous wrecks; (8) An increase of criminals and paupers; (9) An increase of infidels and agnostics. As the Baltimore Sun has frequently said, the craze for education is sufficiently rampant in this State, and it is a reflection upon the people to say that they need the goading of a compulsory law. FRANCIS B. LIVESEY.

Opening New Markets.

The B. C. & A. Railway Company, says the Baltimore American, is aiding farmers and others by providing a market for surplus products. When Mr. John S. Wilson took charge of the company in May last, as president, succeeding Mr. John E. Searles, who had been unable to give it the attention it required, he began at once to look around for new markets for the produce brought by the steamers of this company. He realized that Baltimore could not consume all the shipments received, and how to dispose of the surplus was the problem to be solved. He first turned his attention to sweet potatoes, the arrivals of which frequently aggregated 3,500 barrels daily, and the market was sometimes so glutted that the low price of only 40 or 50 cents per barrel was realized. President Wilson called together the commission men who have been accustomed to handle the potatoes, and suggested to them that they should seek broader markets in the West and North. He offered to store on the wharves of the company the barrels received at an early hour in the morning until about noon of the same day, thus affording the local dealers an opportunity to dispose of sufficient barrels to supply the local market. He agreed to convey, free of charge the surplus, by barges, to the railroad piers, whence it could be shipped to other markets. The experiment proved so successful that better prices were realized, the lowest quotations for potatoes being about $1.25 per barrel, and 76,000 barrels were shipped to other markets. It was an advantage to the grower, the transportation company and the commission men.

Mr. Wilson likewise succeeded in opening many new oyster markets, greatly to the advantage of the shippers.

Speaking of the recent Christian Endeavor Convention the Rev. C. E. Dryden, of this place, alluded to the keen appreciation with which that great body evidently regarded the young men: "Rev. H. W. Ballantine said in his address on this topic, that the great work of the church was to be accomplished by the young men. The young men are in demand; they are called to every sphere of activity. Not only are they in demand now, but they have always been chosen in preference to any other class. The Saviour when he chose his disciples, chose the young men. When the nation called for an army, the young men were chosen to fight for her independence. Business firms seek the young men; by them the great wheel of fortune is turned; prosperity and the life of the nation depend upon the young men. Mr. Ballantine also said that much had been done on the temperance question; but, said he, if the young men were to take it upon themselves it would not be a great while before intemperance would be exterminated and banished from the world. Save the young men, and give them plenty of work to do, for they are capable of doing any amount of work."

After hearing some friends continually praising Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy, Curtis Fleck, of Anaheim, California, purchased a bottle of it for his own use and is now as enthusiastic over its wonderful work as anyone can be. WANAMAKER'S.

PHILADELPHIA, Monday, Nov. 29, 1897.

Sight-Seers Should Come Early

Yes, and come often. The store is as different each day as several thousand workers can make it. Each day is an "Opening Day," to use an overworked phrase—a show day. Merchandise, and the daily story of it, rings with the spirit of gift-time—as though the giving of gifts was the pleasantest of things to do. Well, isn't it?

Such a collection of merchandise at retail has never before been gathered under one roof—beauty, usefulness. A store might almost be forgiven for carelessness during these busy days—the carelessness that should let in unworthy things. Most stores have need to ask this forgiveness. Hence, only such an odd store as this is really a comfortable Christmas store. No risks.

Furs THERE is no such choosing anywhere. This selling furs at fair prices—made possible by making furs part of an all-year business—has helped us to be chief buyers of furs, and no special lot of worthy goods escapes our notice.

Seems haphazard to buy furs at a dry goods store. It might be—but this fur store is as exclusively a fur store as though nothing else had a showing here. Experts guide the business. If chances were taken, the risk would be ours. But there are no chances.

No matter whether the fur need is a simple scarf or an elegant wrap, it is safely met here, because we have had experts learn the fur business thoroughly and turn their knowledge to mutually helpful account.

FUR SCARFS—
Of genuine marten; cluster of 10 tails. $4.50.
Of electric chinchilla, two heads and cluster of squirrel tails. $4.50.
Of electric seal, shaped to neck—can be worn turned up; finished with tabs and 8 tails. $6.
Of marten, large size; 10 tails. $6.50.

FUR COLLARETTES—
$10—Krimmer Collarettes, pretty shade of light gray; rich curly fur; storm collar; lined with colored figured silk.
$12—Fine grade of Electric Seal Collarettes, full skins; high storm collar; finished with heads and tails; lined with heavy seal brown satin.
$15—Moire Astrakhan Collarettes, full sweep; ripple effect; high storm collar; lined with rich black satin.

Kid Gloves A DOLLAR. The Princess May. Alone in a world-ful of dollar gloves as being of genuine and really first rate kidskin, beautifully and perfectly dyed. They are made for us by the best glover in France.

Short-sighted folks say we will kill the sale of high-priced gloves by selling such as these at ONE DOLLAR.

But we shall not stop doing our best.

Princess May Gloves in these styles—
2 button 3 button
4 button Biarritz
—all handsomely silk embroidered.
Colors—tans, red tan, browns, grays, modes, greens, pearls and black and white.

Women's Winter Shoes COMFORTABLE, safe winter shoes—cork inner sole and felt cushion. New idea? No, indeed; you've known it and paid roundly for it. Patented. We paid the necessary royalties and now bring them to you with some decided betterments—and such a price betterment that the usual $5 kind is more than matched with these at —three styles.

Two styles at $3.90.
Two styles at $4.
No better—just finer.
First lot came and went in a jiffy.
