Farm and Household.

MAYONNAISE SAUCE.—Beat the yolk of a raw egg with a salt spoonful of powdered mustard, then add, drop by drop, the very best of salad oil, and stir constantly until the mixture becomes thick and glossy, add a scant teaspoonful of good cider vinegar, or instead of it a little lemon juice.

TOMATO CATSUP.—Take half a bushel of tomatoes, one quart vinegar, one pound salt, two pounds sugar, one-fourth pound of black pepper, one-fourth pound of allspice, one ounce of cayenne pepper, two ounces cloves and six large onions. Boil three hours, strain through cloth or sieve, and bottle when cold.

BAKED ONIONS.—Boil in milk and water until just done, then drain and place the onions in a buttered baking pan. Put a bit of butter and some pepper and salt over each one, and add a little of the water in which they were boiled. Brown them quickly on the grating of the oven and serve hot.

FOWLS.—Do not allow your fowls or chicks to run among the hogs, or even where one hog can corner them up and devour them, because when a hog or pig once gets a taste of poultry, I know of no way of breaking it of chasing them whenever they come in sight. Your pig thus becomes a nuisance.

FUMIGATION.—It is a good thing to take a red-hot cinder from the fire in an old pan and proceed to fumigate your hen-house by sprinkling sulphur on the hot coal, carrying it into various parts of the room. If the fowls are in don't give them too big a dose.

FEEDING PIGS.—Mr. James S. Grinnell, of Greenfield, Mass., says that when pork brings six cents a pound it will pay to buy grain or meal for fattening. The question should be not how little to feed, but how much the pig can get into him and assimilate in the shortest time. Cooked meal he regards as about the best feed, all things considered, and eastern corn is better than western.

ROOTS FOR CATTLE.—In Europe the carrot is grown to a great extent for feeding to cattle in the winter months. Roots of some kind are fed the winter through to the cows. An Iowa raiser of Jersey cows says he is accustomed to feed carrots, of which he usually raises 600 bushels per acre. Carrots increase the flow of milk and improve the appearance and quality of butter. Beets are preferable to carrots for increasing the flow of milk; the milk, however, which is produced from beets is not as good for butter. The breeder mentioned above has found it difficult to raise his calves on clear Jersey milk, and advises the feeding of that which has been skimmed.

FRENCH SALAD DRESSING.—Mix a salt spoonful of white pepper with two of salt and a teaspoonful of scraped onion. Add three tablespoonsful of salad oil, and when well mixed, stir in a tablespoonful of vinegar. Pour the dressing over the salad just before serving. String beans, alone, make a nice salad, and cauliflower with a mayonnaise sauce is excellent. Cold baked navy beans are improved by a similar dressing, and cold boiled potatoes with beets, onions and this sauce, is a dish that seldom goes begging. Cold boiled potatoes with lima beans and beets, are good in a salad with French dressing. The proportion of oil and vinegar can of course be varied to suit individual taste.

SALAD OF VEGETABLES.—A very nice salad may be made by mixing a variety of cold boiled vegetables together. Asparagus, cauliflower, string beans, beets, carrots, turnips and peas may be used. These vegetables of different colors look well, but one can use whatever is most convenient. Supposing that the salad is to be made of carrots, turnips and peas, boil a pint of peas in salted water until tender, then lay them in cold water. Pare a carrot and a white turnip and cut them into uniform pieces; boil them in separate waters and lay in cold water until needed. Just before serving, arrange the vegetables neatly on a small platter, contrasting the colors well, and pour over them a French salad dressing.

HE WANTED SOMETHING "FRISKY."

"Got something frisky?" he asked, as he walked into a livery-stable and called for a saddle-horse—"something that will prance about lively, and wake a fellow out of his lethargy? I used to ride the trick mule in a circus, an' I reckon I can back anything that wears hair."

They brought him out a calico-colored beast, with a vicious eye, and he mounted it and dashed off.

Before he had gone two blocks, the animal bucked, crashed through a high board fence, and plunged into a cellar, tossing his rider over the top of an adjacent woodshed, and landing him on the ragged edge of a lawn-mower.

"They bore him home, straightened him out, and three surgeons came in and reduced his dislocations, and plastered him up with raw beef.

A few weeks later, he called at the stable, and said if they had a gentle saw-horse with an affectionate disposition, a bridle with a curb-bit and martingales, and a saddle with two horns and a crupper to it, he believed he would go up in the haymow, and gallop around a little where it was soft and it wouldn't hurt him.

A REASON FOR HIGH PRICES.

A Philadelphia gentleman traveling abroad writes that he and a friend stopped at a small cafe in the suburbs of Paris for refreshments. Their repast was a light one, consisting of tea, toast and eggs, but the bill was a heavy one, nine francs, $1.80 in all.

"Garcon!" exclaimed one of the tourists, "how's this? Please explain."

"Well, you see, messieurs," apologizes the waiter, "two francs for the tea and toast and seven francs for the toast and seven francs for the eggs."

"And, then eggs are very scarce about here?"

"Non, monsieur, eggs are not scarce, but Americans are!"

WORKINGMEN.—Before you begin your heavy spring work after a winter of relaxation, your system needs cleansing and strengthening to prevent an attack of Ague, Bilious or Spring Fever, or some other Spring sickness that will unfit you for a season's work. You will save time, much sickness and great expense if you will use one bottle of Hop Bitters in your family this month. Don't wait.—Burlington Hawkeye.

—A Buffalo paper tells of a lover who began to propose to his girl just as his horses started to run with the sleigh. Being determined to have it over with he got the question out at the moment the sleigh struck a mile post. The girl was thrown high in the air, but as she came down she uttered a firm, "Yes, Charlie," and then fainted.

—"What part," asked a Sunday school teacher, "of the 'Burial of Sir John Moore' do you like best?" He was thoughtful for a moment, and then replied, "Few and short were the prayers we said."

—It is useless to deny that the brightest and fairest fall easy victims to consumption, and equally fruitless to ignore the fact that decline has its origin in many cases in neglected catarrh. Sanford's Radical Cure is a pure, sweet, balsamic specific.
