DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

FOR GOVERNOR:
JOHN WALTER SMITH,
OF WORCESTER COUNTY.

FOR COMPTROLLER:
JOSHUA W. HERING,
OF CARROLL COUNTY.

FOR ATTORNEY-GENERAL:
ISIDOR RAYNOR,
OF BALTIMORE CITY.

DEMOCRACY'S SPLENDID TICKET.

The Democratic State convention on Wednesday last nominated a ticket which has already unified the party in all parts of Maryland and made it again the aggressive, invincible organization which its admitted majority of the voters and its honored history entitle it to be in Maryland. Never in the party's career have more worthy and able representatives of the people been placed before the suffragist. This excellent work of the convention was accomplished after many days of consideration and discussion of the merits of many worthy men whose friends earnestly sought their promotion. In all there were a dozen or more distinguished Democrats, any one of whom would have reflected credit upon themselves and the State in the administration of public affairs. The people, however, concluded, and by the unanimous action of their chosen delegates said, that Col. John Walter Smith, Dr. Joshua W. Hering, and Hon. Isador Raynor possessed, in a preeminent degree, the qualifications needed in our Governor, Comptroller, and Attorney-General, and these gentlemen are now the standard-bearers. The public record of each is an honor to the proud Commonwealth and to the country. The far-seeing wisdom and broad-minded liberality of John Walter Smith and Joshua W. Hering is written in the statutes of the State, and their industry and enterprise is attested abundantly in their respective counties, and each, though very highly esteemed in every part of the State, is most popular in his home county. And this may be truly said of Mr. Raynor and the city. His record in Congress, though not long, was a most useful one, in which his great ability was shown. The farmer or the workingman who kept himself informed on the proceedings of Congress of '89 to '93 will remember Mr. Raynor's able championship of their cause. He was indeed a champion in whose ability and sincerity they could safely trust. He is one of the greatest lawyers in Maryland.

With these chieftains, sure of the confidence and esteem of the people generally, the Democracy goes forth in this campaign clothed with all its vigor and strength, and with the fight so well begun it is already more than half won. Organization only is necessary. Under the matchless leadership of Col. John Walter Smith there can be no flagging. No artful maneuvering of the opposition can this year succeed in dividing and defeating the Democratic hosts. The Maryland Democracy is again called to assume its natural responsibility in the affairs of the government of this good old Democratic State.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Attorney General Griggs, before going off on his summer vacation shattered the hopes of numerous persons who thought they had everything fixed to secure valuable Porto Rican concessions from the War Department, by rendering opinions upon three specific concessions—The right to use the water power of the river Plata, the right to build and operate a tramway, and the right to build and control, for all time, piers and wharves at Ponce. These opinions take the ground that all such concessions were crown property of Spain, and sum them all, and apparently all other public concessions on the island, up as follows: "As crown property, they were, by the treaty of cession, transferred by Spain to the U. S. of America, and are now a part of the public domain of that nation. I do not know of any right or power which the Secretary of War or the President has to alienate in perpetuity, any of the public domain of the U. S., except in accordance with acts of Congress, duly passed with reference thereto." This is understood to be a hint to Alger of the power of the administration to make trouble for him and his business friends, who are heavily interested in some Cuban deals, if he attempts to antagonize the administration.

In their efforts to secure the strongest and best candidates for the various offices to be filled Baltimore city delegates and those of several of the counties have followed Caroline's example in deferring the nominations. The call for exceptionally worthy and popular nominees is widespread in party ranks, and all Democrats seem to be alive to the importance of the work set to do, and will aid in doing it well. This year the offices are seeking the men, and it is a most favorable condition, auguring success at the polls in the coming election.

Messrs. Thomas A. Smith, Emory S. Turpin and A. W. Sisk have been re-elected members of the State Central Committee.

A LITTLE SERMON ON INGERSOLL.

To the Editors of the JOURNAL.

Mr. R. G. Ingersoll, the celebrated agnostic writer and lecturer, is dead—has sung his last song.

"No God to fear,
No hell to shun,
No devil, with malicious leer,
When life is done."

Mr. Ingersoll seems to have been a good sort of fellow; but, like a good many more of us, he needed correction on a good many points. He has been accused of attacking Christianity and the Bible, and I suppose he himself thought that that was what he was doing, but both he and his followers largely err in this particular, for their knowledge of Bible doctrine is derived second-hand and their conception of Christianity is that sort that history tells of in the ruthless hordes of crusaders with the cross for their standard in the organizations of murderous priests and conscienceless popes, who justified all their nameless atrocities under the Christian name. St. Bartholomew and the Inquisition are the types, specimens and illustrations that point the Christian morals and adorn the Christian tale. Mr. Ingersoll's hell and that of his followers was of the old-fashioned kind, such as his clergyman father preached, no doubt, and the devil that haunted him to his dying song was the old fellow that Burns jested about a hundred years ago, the same that the aforesaid murderous priests dabbled with and the crusaders toted around.

Years ago—no use saying how many, but it was at the time when Ingersollism was at its height; when Huxley and Darwin were coming out in full swing, and the world stood open-mouthed to listen to the coming "missing link" revelations that didn't come—your correspondent, with a friend or two, used to go sometimes to the free discussions in Baltimore. Oh! but there were great times there sometimes, and as much fun as there is in the U. S. Congress. It was a free field, though, and strict justice was accorded to each speaker,—quick on the knocker; jump for the floor as the hammer falls; ten minutes for your, say; bang! sit down. Like Mazeppa's, it was a rough school to learn to ride. There was everything there in the shape of human opinion, but far in the lead numerically were the Ingersollites. Their idol was a certain Dr. A., a leading physician in town, president at one time of the medical and chirurgical society. He was a German and a Jew, but for wit and eloquence, in my opinion, he was far and away beyond the original Ingersoll, and his sarcastic tongue scorched and peeled whatever it touched. He described Jesus of Nazareth once as "a bare-legged barbarian, wandering up and down Judea;" and Paul as "a little bald-headed Jew," a description that so tallied with that of himself that your humble servant made bold to make the application, and was never forgiven. After Dr. A., in popular esteem, was Dr. B. He was a colored gentleman, perfectly innocent of anything in the way of thought, but had all the merriment that belongs to his race. He belonged to no side but filled in his time poking fun at all, particularly Dr. A. The "cloth" was represented by brother C., a local preacher of the M. E. Church, held in no particular esteem by his brethren, though, I understood; but he was a noble fellow and a good, calm reasoner, free to a great extent from the dogmatisms of sects, which accounted for some other things; still he made some bad breaks sometimes in attempting to defend some little, side-line theological fads that didn't amount to anything, and "the adversary" was as quick as a flash to detect the joint in the armor.

I learned in that lion's den that a man must be posted straight; second-hand won't do, particularly in regard to Bible knowledge. A general knowledge of modern ideas of science was necessary, but you could afford to bluff some on that line, as scientific theory is such an ever changing quantity. But the Bible, like one of those great ironclad warships that, when the war comes, takes down all the loose tackle and out-works and unscrews taffrail; so, in the solidity of its massive strength, it must be fought stript. All the trumpery that goes very well with a credulous and easy-going public won't stand the strain when the artillery is at work, and the accumulated rubbish of the centuries must be carefully swept together and dumped overboard, or it will trip you by when you need to hold your footing most.

It is particularly exasperating to the Ingersollite, after he has gone to work and torn several passions to tatters over mediæval behavior or priestly brutality, or held up to ridicule and the jeers of the crowd some fool dogma, to be told that his time and breath was spent in vain; that, in fact, he missed it, and had no idea what he was trying to hit. "Dese yellows," said the little German doctor, indicating upward, "don't give us no hold on 'em," for the doctor was very sensitive, and being brought up a Jew, in the letter and shadow of the Old Testament, he knew when he was hit. This is much more than can be said of Ingersoll or many of his followers. They are simply biblical dolts and spiritual dullards, with a veneering of sentimentalism derived at second-hand from partially reformed modern Christianity.

Ingersollism is a reaction against church presumption and dogma; as that presumption weakens and dies, so weakens and dies the antitheses. Perhaps these men deserve some credit when we think that only a couple of centuries ago life and death was in the power of the ecclesiastic. Only a century ago the poet Burns had to go on his knees at the "Kirk" and crave forgiveness at the hands of the ministry. Then there is Roger Williams and the Salem witches over in this land. Oh! it has been a long fight and a strong fight, and it is not done yet. The Hague can't settle it; and if a freebooter or two, despising the laws of war, commit some erratic foul-play, that is unjustifiable; still we must consider that the provocation was great, very great.

A Mother Tells How She Saved Her Little Daughter's Life.

I am the mother of eight children and have had a deal of experience with medicines. Last summer my little daughter had the dysentery in its worst form. We thought she would die. I tried everything I could think of, but nothing seemed to do her any good. I saw by an advertisement in our paper that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy was highly recommended and sent and got a bottle at once. It proved to be one of the very best medicines we ever had in the house. It saved my little daughter's life. I am anxious for every mother to know what an excellent medicine it is. Had I known it at first it would have saved me a great deal of anxiety and my little daughter much suffering.—Yours truly, MRS. GEO. F. BURDICK, Liberty, R. I. For sale by Hugh Duffey, Hillsboro; R. J. Colston, Ridgely; W. E. Brown, Denton.

August Flower.

"It is a surprising fact," says Prof. Houton, "that in my travels in all parts of the world, for the last ten years, I have met more people having used Green's August Flower than any other remedy, for dyspepsia, deranged liver and stomach, and for constipation. I find for tourists and salesmen, or for persons filling office positions, where headaches and general bad feelings from irregular habits exist, that Green's August Flower is a grand remedy. It does not injure the system by frequent use, and is excellent for sour stomachs and indigestion." Sample bottles free at W. E. Brown's, Denton, Md., and Rickards & Co., Marydel, Md. Sold by dealers in all civilized countries.

The soothing and healing properties of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy its pleasant taste and prompt and permanent cures, have made it a great favorite with the people everywhere. For sale by Hugh Duffey, Hillsboro; R. J. Colston, Ridgely; W. E. Brown, Denton.

The Home

And that which makes the beautifying and bettering of it easy, is a welcome event to the housekeeper, and makes home happier.

Such help has this store given, in nine previous August Sales; but never before have we approached the magnificent possibilities that we lay before Our Public during this unequalled August Furniture Sale of 1899.

America leads the world in furniture building—we have done the most to make it so—and American furniture holds front place in this selling. But France and England are represented in the stock, and Austria sends us plenty of its famous bent wood furniture.

Bluster and brag, glue and veneer do not make furniture; neither do efforts to copy our sales of past years bring forth movements that can even shadow the magnificent opportunities that are brought within reach of Our Public by this August 1899 Sale.

Having the longest continuous Philadelphia experience—and the knowledge of these past years, we may justly claim the prestige as—

Grandfathers of the Furniture Business

There are two and a half acres displaying Furniture in the regular store on third floor. Another store on Fourth floor. To this are added today the great widened Main Aisle and Cross Aisle, and eight other sections of the house, making this the most elaborate and extensive exhibition of Furniture that Philadelphia has known.

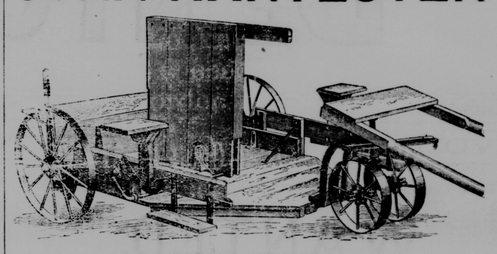
ECONOMIC CORN HARVESTER



PATENTED NOV. 28, 1898.

THIRD SEASON—CAPACITY OF FACTORY DOUBLED EACH YEAR!—THE BEST EVIDENCE OF THE PRACTICAL UTILITY OF THE ECONOMIC.

Cuts from shock row to shock row without stopping, carrying the corn and automatically discharging it at the shock—the machine performing the tiresome, laborious part of gathering the crop; that is the carrying. The practical utility of the Economic and its superiority over every other Corn Harvester offered is the judgment of every one who has seen it in operation, and the great saving it effects over hand labor is attested by every user. Farmers tell us the Economic will save its entire cost in harvesting a crop of 60 to 75 acres.

It's capacity is from 10 to 14 acres per day, requiring two operators. As the result of a field trial with —— Corn Binder in Kent county, Md., six Economics were sold; the Binder, not finding a purchaser, was taken away by the agent.

The Economic will do more for you than any Corn Harvester ever offered, and COSTS LESS THAN HALF the price of the Corn Binder. Note the following from eminently practical and successful farmers:

RIDGELY, MD., MARCH 29, 1899.
MESSRS. J. H. & R. E. SMITH,
RIDGELY, MD.
GENTLEMEN: Your Economic Corn Harvester, which I have used for two seasons, is a highly satisfactory tool, effecting a great saving in harvesting the corn crop, thereby adding considerable to the net profit to be realized from it. We harvested 60 acres in four days, and would not be without an Economic Corn Harvester.
Respectfully yours,
J. M. SHORT.

QUEEN ANNE, MD., MARCH 8, 1899.
MESSRS. J. H. & R. E. SMITH,
RIDGELY, MD.
DEAR SIRS: I have found your Corn Harvester a great machine—something the farmers have long hoped for; of light draft and a great labor saver. Four men can handle from eight to ten acres a day of VERY HEAVY CORN, doing all the work; the men who operate the machine stopping to help set up.
Yours respectfully,
HARRY CLARK.
