APPEAL

The unprecedented tragedy of the present time in India demands unprecedented bounty. As the hours pass, men, women and children, are staggering their last steps ere they lie down to die. In the morning living infants are often taken from the stiffened arms of mothers who have died during the night.

Even though the monsoon brings rain in the latter part of June and in July, as all hope it may, the stricken farmers, without cattle to cultivate the ground, or seed with which to sow it, will not be able, without assistance, to rise above the present deplorable state.

The Government of India is providing for six millions daily; yet so great is the territory affected, and so high the death-rate in the hundreds of Native States where Government has little control, that the call for help from favored America grows louder every hour.

Now is the time for city and state to move to the rescue of the 60,000,000 of our fellow-beings who are in the stricken section, one-sixth of whom are even now threatened with death from sheer hunger and thirst. We have only to stop and think for a few moments of the intensity of the need, and how awful starvation is, to be willing to share both our abundance and our morsel with those whose cry of woe is to-day being heard around the world.

There is not a minute to be lost! Subscriptions sent in to-day may be cabled to India to-morrow. From 2 to 5 cents a day will save a life.

Will you not help?
