THE MARYLAND LAW.

The Atlanta Constitution, one of the ablest papers in the country, says of Maryland's new election law: After strenuous efforts to impress the world with the alleged unfairness of the Maryland Democrats in providing educational qualifications as a requisite to suffrage, the leading Republican newspapers are now beginning to acknowledge that the Maryland law is a step in the right direction. Senator McComas, Sydney Mudd, and their Republican followers are still keeping up the cry inside Maryland, but this is of course purely for home consumption. They may fool some of their followers, but it is evident they have not been able to impress outside Republicans that they have any good cause for complaint. Even the Philadelphia Press, which enjoys the distinction of being the recognized administration organ, because of its control by Postmaster General Smith and which is blind to Republican fraud, under its own eyes, as it is keen to see Democratic fraud at a distance, pays tribute to the fairness and good sense of the Maryland law when it says: "The law will go into force, however, unless declared unconstitutional, and it must be reckoned with. The Maryland Republicans will be wise if they accept it as a fact, and, instead of spending any time and energy on a contest in court, begin at once a campaign of education among the illiterate colored voters. Setting aside the partisan character of the bill and its avowed purpose to keep the Democrats in power in Maryland and to return Mr. Gorman to the United States Senate, it can be said that the man who will not take the trouble to learn to read well enough to mark a ballot properly is not a fit man to be endowed with the privilege of the suffrage." That, of course, concedes the whole case. The men who have engineered this change in the law have done it for the avowed purpose of eliminating the very men "who will not take the trouble to learn to read well enough to mark a ballot properly," whom the Press declares to be unfit to be endowed with the privilege of suffrage. When, therefore, the Press and such Maryland organs as the Baltimore American cry out that this law seeks partisan advantage, they simply acknowledge that the hold the Republican party has had in Maryland has been due entirely to the ignorant who "are not fit to be endowed with the privilege of suffrage."

THE STATE CENSUS.

Governor Smith has appointed Col. Buchanan Schley, of Washington county, superintendent of the State Census Bureau, and William J. Ogden, assistant. In an interview Tuesday Col. Schley said:

"The law requires the enumeration to be made between the first day of May and the first Monday in June, and allows fifteen days to each enumerator in which to perform his work. In special cases five days more will be allowed, but all the returns must be in the central office by the first Monday in June.

"The tabulations will all be made here from the returns brought in, and all the work will be done under my personal direction and that of my assistant, Mr. Ogden, and everything will be done as accurately and expeditiously as possible.

"All the appointments will be made by me, as I am responsible, under the law, for the entire work in the State, and I shall appoint Democrats only to the places. The fact that a man is a Democrat, however, will not entitle him to a place unless he is competent in every respect to perform the duties, and is honest as well as capable. There are plenty of honest and capable men in the Democratic party to do the work, and those are the men whom I want in all parts of the State to make the enumeration. Unless a man is competent and honest, therefore, no matter how strong a Democrat he may be, he need not apply for a place in this bureau. The work must be done accurately and thoroughly, as well as expeditiously, and Democrats who are capable of doing it in this way are the men I want for enumerators.

"The same rules will apply to those who wish clerical places in the office here. They must be honest and capable Democrats, and I want no others. The Democratic party is responsible, through its control of the State government, for this census. The Democratic majority in the General Assembly passed the law requiring this enumeration to be made and the Democratic Governor appointed me, as a Democrat, to have charge of the work. The people, therefore, will hold the Democratic party responsible for the correctness of the work, and I am determined that it shall be correct so far as I can make it so. To that end, therefore, I shall appoint honest, active and capable Democratic citizens to aid me in carrying out the law, and will welcome the assistance of all good citizens, irrespective of party, to see that the men appointed do their work as it should be done."

Some of the Republicans in Kent claim that the law suits them exactly! With the Democrats and Republicans both suited, there should be but little complaint and everybody join in putting an end to bribery.—Kent News.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Assistant Director of the Federal census F. H. Wines, with several assistants, is in Annapolis. They will investigate the Anne Arundel count, which no doubt is fraudulent, as St. Mary's is known to be. There are eight enumeration precincts in Anne Arundel county, corresponding to the election precincts. One of them has 9,000 residents, according to the returns, and three experts will look after that precinct. It is charged that 5,400 names returned by the enumerators were those of men, women and children who came from Baltimore for the months of June and July to work in Anne Arundel county at picking strawberries, tomatoes, peas and other vegetables. Anne Arundel county gained 5,924 in population from 1890 to 1900, according to the census returns for the two years. In 1890 its population was 34,094 and in 1900 it was 40,018. The increase reported was just enough to give an additional member of the House of Delegates.

Dr. George Perry Jones, a physician of East New Market, Dorchester county, died suddenly Monday afternoon it is, supposed from apoplexy. He was found dead in a chair in his office about 1.30 o'clock. He was about 55 years old and leaves a widow and five children. He was prominently identified in politics as a Democrat, having served many years as a member of the State Central Committee. He was a candidate for the short term in Congress at the time the late John B. Brown was nominated by the Easton Convention.

The election of Tom L. Johnson to the Mayoralty of Cleveland is accepted by his political friends and enemies here to mean that he has won his first great step in heading toward the Presidential chair. Johnson is his own candidate for the Democratic nomination for President, and he and his immediate friends feel absolutely certain that he will be the nominee of the party three years hence. They point out that he is the only leader in the Democratic party on whom both factions can unite.

Rev. John Jasper, colored, whose famous sermon on the movement of the planets has been heard by thousands of persons, is dead. He was nearly 90 years of age. Though ignorant, he was a great and good leader of his people, and no one who knew him doubted his child-like faith in the Bible and in his dictum that "the sun do move."

Daniel J. Bolles, the fifth man arrested in connection with the census frauds in St. Mary's county, was taken to Baltimore and given a hearing Monday before Commissioner Rogers. Like the other accused enumerators, Bolles waived an examination and was released on $1,500 bail for the action of the grand jury.

Carter H. Harrison, the brilliant young Democratic candidate for Mayor of Chicago, was for the third time elected on Tuesday last by a large majority. Arrayed against him with the Republicans was John P. Altgeld, a former Governor and a well-known politician.

Mr. Benjamin Franklin Newcomer, president of the Safe Deposit and Trust Company, Baltimore, died on Saturday last. He was connected with many of the great enterprises of the city, and was regarded as one of the best financiers in the country.

Our court is gaining a reputation for promptness in the transaction of business. The term this week lasted only three days. Of course court expenses are thus greatly lessened, and the taxpayers are pleased.

A prominent Buffalo chemist believes he has discovered the cancer germ. His efforts will now be directed to secure a remedy.

THE NEW LAWS.

Governor Smith on Monday last approved the acts of the recent legislature. Following is a list of the new statutes:

Authorizing election supervisors to subdivide election precincts.

Sewerage act for Baltimore city.

Ceding a tract of land in Montgomery county to the United States.

Appropriating $25,000 for State representation at the Buffalo and Charleston expositions.

Water works for Hyattsville.

Water works for Laurel.

Regulating elections in Frederick city.

Sanctioning a number of bequests to churches.

Regulating the taking of oysters in Sinepuxent bay.

Removing tax from men employed on scrapers in Dorchester county.

Appropriating $500 to pay the electoral college.

Creating a board of visitors to the Anne Arundel jail.

Increasing the number of Anne Arundel county commissioners from three to seven.

The JOURNAL will next week publish the laws passed at the recent session of the legislature.

A Testimonial From Old England.

"I consider Chamberlain's Cough Remedy the best in the world for bronchitis," says Mr. William Savory, of Warrington, England. "It has saved my wife's life, she having been a martyr to bronchitis for over six years, being most of the time confined to her bed. She is now quite well." Sold by R. J. Colston, Denton; Hugh Duffey, Hillsboro; T. W. Smith, Ridgely.

NOW HAIL THE COMING OF THE SHAD!

The festive shad has come, and the epicure is happy. The Chesapeake and tributaries—which abound in fine food fish—can furnish few things more toothsome. Here are some timely recipes:

HOW TO PLANK A SHAD.—The plank shad itself should be well seasoned. It may be procured in various sizes. The only thing that will season a plank is use. The fish should not only be cooked upon the plank, but served upon it as well. To prepare a shad for planking split it open, wipe it dry, and if possible remove the backbone. Place the skin side down upon the plank and tack it. Spread the fish with butter and season with salt and pepper. It should be cooked in a hot oven from twenty-five to thirty minutes. When it is done add some bits of butter, a little more salt, a sprinkling of paprica, one tablespoonful of minced parsley. Remove the tacks and serve at once.

THE SHAD ROE.—There are several ways of cooking shad roe. To broil it, wash and dry the roe with care not to break the skin. Place it on a well greased broiler and rub it with butter once or twice during the time of broiling. Cook to a nice brown; place it on the planked shad or a separate dish and serve with a butter sauce.

SHAD ROE CROQUETTES.—Put the roes from two fishes in boiling salt water and simmer for fifteen minutes; when cool remove the skin and mash them with a fork so the little eggs will be separated, but not broken. Scald one cupful of cream or milk and stir into it one tablespoonful of butter and two tablespoonfuls of flour, rubbed together. Take the paste on a spoon and stir it in the cream until dissolved. Remove from the fire and add the beaten yolks of two eggs and the seasoning. One tablespoonful of chopped parsley, the juice of one-half a lemon, salt and pepper and a dash of cayenne; place again on the fire and stir until the sauce is thickened; then add the mashed shad roe. Pour the mixture on a dish and set away to cool for several hours. Form into small croquettes, roll them in egg and bread crumbs and fry in hot fat until an amber color. Place on a folded napkin and serve with mayonnaise or tartar sauce.

Cornbread and Turnip Greens.

Maryland's market gardeners are enterprising and progressive. Their strawberries of delicious flavor find a place of honor upon the tables of epicures; their peaches blushing for the kisses of the sunbeams and the caresses of the coying winds, have long been justly celebrated; their asparagus is tender and succulent; their celery is as white and crisp as any that ever came from Kalamazoo; in some sections every potato taken from many hills would win a prize at a county fair. And so the list of good things which these thrifty agriculturists provide might be greatly extended. But there is one thing lacking—one delicacy for which the people pin as they stand expectantly upon the threshold of spring. What is wanted is turnip greens—the word "salad" is an unworthy pretender, an imposter. Turnip greens, of course, include cornbread—making a combination which forms a dish that is a joy and a beneficent gift. Turnip greens and cornbread make the world brighter and happier; they help to lighten the burdens of trouble and to dissipate the vexations of care; they contribute a full share to the grand, sweet songs of life, for the man who eats turnip greens and cornbread becomes a philosopher. Jupiter and the other gods knew nothing of the joys of turnip greens and cornbread when they elected ambrosia the favorite dish; beside the combination the honey of Hymettus pales into an unsubstantial and undesirable article of diet, and the olives of Spain, though served by some senorita with dark, bewitching eyes, are really not to be mentioned in the same connection. Cornbread and turnip greens are not of royal lineage, but in the matter of eating they lay the shepherd's crook beside the scepter. The man who partakes of them is a blessing to himself and a comfort to his neighbors—and turnip greens are left off the list in Maryland. Mr. Market Gardner, we salute you hopefully. —Ex.

How to Exterminate Moth.

As it is now near the time for general housecleaning, it is a wise plan for housekeepers to look after their closets and boxes where extra bedding is stored, especially if there are blankets or worsteds or woolens among the articles stored away. One can scarcely tell how these dangerous pests find an entrance into close-fitting boxes and trunks, but such is in some instances the case. Eternal vigilance is the price paid when they once get into the house. It is not an unusual thing when carpeting and upholstered furniture is kept in stock for moths to get a foot-hold. A worker in one of these establishments states that a mixture of gum camphor dissolved in spirits of turpentine and applied with a soft brush will exterminate them in upholstered furniture, without soiling or fading the most delicate colors. It is to be applied over the surface wherever traces of moths are to be found.

The Best Blood Purifier.

The blood is constantly being purified by the lungs, liver and kidneys. Keep these organs in a healthy condition and the bowels regular and you will have no need of a blood purifier. For this purpose there is nothing equal to Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, one dose of them will do you more good than a dollar bottle of the best blood purifier. Price, 25 cents. Samples free at R. J. Colston, Denton; Hugh Duffey, Hillsboro; T. W. Smith, Ridgely, drug stores.

New Route to New York.

Indications seem to point to the establishing of a new route between New York and Baltimore and Washington, by way of the Central Railroad of New Jersey and the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad, now under one combination, and the Queen Anne's Railroad and its ferry-age connections across the Delaware and Chesapeake Bays.

This route would cover a distance of 230 miles, as against 227, the distance over the Central Railroad of New Jersey, the Philadelphia and Reading and the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. The two former roads have become a part of the Morgan syndicate, and since the Pennsylvania Railroad has secured representation in the board of directors of the Baltimore and Ohio Road, two opposing forces seem each to have possession of an end of the route.

The Central Railroad of New Jersey is operated to Winslow, N. J., from which point the South Jersey Railroad, recently purchased by the Philadelphia and Reading, runs to Cape May. At Cape May the Reading Company, through the agency of the owners of the new ocean pier there, have purchased the beach front trolley, which gives them right of way through the town to the pier. They have also purchased large pieces of property adjoining their terminal, and are laying 100-pound rails from Winslow to Cape May. They are reported to be considering the building of an iron steamboat to use for the ferry across Delaware Bay from Cape May to Lewes, Del.

At the latter point the Queen Anne's Railroad, which is operated to Queenstown, is building new piers. They are also having constructed handsome vestibule parlor cars for use between Lewes and Queenstown. From Queenstown a spur of road is being built to Love Point, which is nearer Baltimore. Steamers will complete the line to that point. For Washington a ferry may be established from Love Point to a point just above Annapolis, from where a railroad is planned to be built to the limits of the capital.

A Blow at a Great Industry.

It is undoubtedly true that the great tin can trust will wipe out, in a very little while, the business of the independent manufacturing of cans for the packing-houses. Many Baltimoreans, and hundreds of workers throughout the State and on the Peninsula will be thrown out of employment, and plants which cost much money will become worthless. Moreover, the business of packing will be damaged. A city contemporary says: "Canners will no longer be able to obtain the credit for cans that they have in the past. They will have to pay for the cans before they pack their goods, and from 40 to 50 per cent. of the country packers lack capital to do this.

"Moreover, the price of cans is now 50 cents per 100 more than it was last fall, and packers who have quoted prices upon the belief that cans would remain at the old rate will be subject to a loss.

"Maryland-made cans have been shipped everywhere throughout the United States where canning is done, but the plan of the trust is to supply orders for cans from the nearest factories Thus, Chicago, for instance, will fill orders from territory adjacent to that city and Baltimore, which formerly shipped thither, will lose correspondingly.

"In addition to the injury inflicted upon the local tin can industry there will be a loss of probably 25 per cent. in the volume of canned goods business in Maryland and Delaware, including a diminution in the lumber trade, which has supplied the material for making boxes."

Letter to Mr. C. E. Wilson.

Denton, Md.

Dear Sir: Offering you Paint "FREE OF CHARGE" robs our action in addressing an open letter to you, of any offence, for we really do you a service. Naturally we have an "axe to grind;" the quickest way to interest one of your merchants, is to put L. & M. Paint on the houses of two or three solid citizens, and demonstrate practically that it is the cheapest and best paint made.

We will tell you how many gallons of paint we can give you "for nothing" just as soon as you write us with particulars, as to measurements of house, and number of coats required. At the same time our experts will suggest very handsome color combinations.

Banks and Mercantile Agencies rate us at HIGHEST in Capital and Reputation; been making L. & M. Paint 30 Years; sold in the last Five Years, Twenty-four Million Pounds. On account of the amount of Linseed Oil that can be added to every gallon of the L. & M., it costs less than pure white lead, while it lasts longer, and covers better. Write us. Very sincerely, Caught a Dreadful Cold.

Marion Kooke, manager for T. M. Thompson, a large importer of fine millinery at 1658 Milwaukee Avenue Chicago, says: "During the late severe weather I caught a dreadful cold which kept me awake at night and made me unfit to attend my work during the day. One of my milliners was taking Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for a severe cold at that time, which seemed to relieve her so quickly that I bought some for myself. It acted like magic and I began to improve at once. I am now entirely well and feel very pleased to acknowledge its merits." For sale by R. J. Colston, Denton; Hugh Duffey, Hillsboro; T. W. Smith, Ridgely.

In Memoriam.

In loving remembrance of our father, John R. Wyatt, who died March 13, 1901.

All alone he is sweetly sleeping,
Our loved one is blest;
Free from care and pain and sorrow,
Oh, rejoice! He is at rest.

All alone in garments spotless,
Angels twain, how happy is he!
Jesus Christ did kindly call him
To his home of love so free.

Jesus has called you, father,
Called you from us away;
But He has given us the promise
Of meeting you again some day.

Farewell, our loving father.
You will suffer woe no more;
You will be a bright shining angel
To guide your children o'er.

—HIS CHILDREN.

In loving remembrance of our sister, Mrs. Mary C. Horsey, who died March 4, 1900, at her home near Frederica, Del.

The parting of one year ago
We can never forget,
Nor soothe those pangs of woe
Deep in our bosoms yet.

Though this world is full of trouble
Full of sorrow and of pain,
Yet to us it would seem heaven
If you were here again.

—HER SISTERS.

In memory of Frank T. Scott, who departed this life March 19, 1901, aged 17 years.

He was gentle, kind and loving,
And, oh, it seemed so hard,
Still we know it is best for him,
For he is now at home with God.

At peace, at rest, in Heaven,
We know that he must be
At home with God forever,
In a grand eternity.

—HIS MOTHER E. E. SCOTT.

In loving remembrance of Ednie Hignutt, daughter of Albert F. and Roxie E. Hignutt, who died March 17th, aged 2 months and 12 days.

The cradle is empty now,
The little clothes laid by;
But God knew what was best,
And took her home on high.

God needed one more angel child
To join His shining band,
So He bent, with loving smile,
And clasped our baby's hand.

—BY HER MOTHER.

In memory of William J. Williamson, who departed this life February 6, 1901, aged 52 years.

Friends will miss you
Now that you are gone;
They will miss you
From their happy throng

We will miss you,
But the time is short
Till we all may meet you
Never more to part.

—NEIGHBOR.

Lines on the death of Hulda Nichols, who departed this life March 16, 1901, aged twelve years and one month.

The Golden Gates were open,
A gentle voice said come;
And with farewells unspoken,
She calmly entered home.

—M. L. M.

In loving remembrance of Miss Bessie T. Garvey, who departed this life September 6, 1900.

Had earth no thorns among its flowers,
And life no fount of tears,
We might forget our better home
Beyond this vale of tears.

HER FATHER.

In memory of Mrs. Emma Patchett, who died near Bethlehem, March 8, 1901, aged 35 years.

She is beckoning all her loved ones
To meet her on that golden shore,
And let us all strive hard to meet her,
Where we'll say good-bye no more.

Resolutions of Respect.

At the fourth quarterly conference of Caroline circuit of the Methodist Protestant Church, recently held, the following tribute to the memory of the late John W. Clark was adopted:

WHEREAS, In the gracious and wise Providence of God, our esteemed brother, John Wesley Clark, has been taken from us by death, and gone to the better land; therefore,

Be it Resolved, That, in the demise of our brother, the Church at large has lost a kind friend and a strong advocate; the Church, in which he regularly worshipped a devoted and loyal member, and that Caroline circuit, of which he was a part, and with which he was officially associated, a safe and wise counsellor.

Resolved further, That we extend to the bereaved widow and family our heartfelt sympathy and place them in the hands of an All-Loving God, who will comfort and sustain them in their hour of sadness and sorrow.

Resolved further, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the Quarterly Conference of Caroline circuit, and a copy sent to the bereaved family of our departed brother, and published in the county newspapers.

The Best Remedy for Rheumatism.

QUICK RELIEF FROM PAIN.

All who use Chamberlain's Pain Balm for rheumatism are delighted with the quick relief from pain which it affords. When speaking of this Mr. D. N. Sinks, of Troy, Ohio, says: "Some time ago I had a severe attack of rheumatism in my arm and shoulder. I tried numerous remedies but got no relief until I was recommended by Messrs. Geo. F. Parsons & Co., druggists of this place, to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm. They recommended it so highly that I bought a bottle. I was soon relieved of all pain. I have since recommended this liniment to many of my friends, who agree with me that it is the best remedy for muscular rheumatism in the market." For sale by R. J. W. H. DEEN, ESQ.,

Dear Sir:

I used Coon Brand Guano on my tomatoes last Spring at the rate of 200 pounds to the acre. My land is medium light. I must say that I got a very heavy crop of tomatoes, and it paid me $60.25 per acre. I believe I lost 200 baskets of tomatoes to the acre by not being able to secure baskets in which to deliver them. I believe the Coon Brand Guano is the very best fertilizer that I have been able to get hold of. I will use it this Spring. Yours truly,
