POLITICAL NOTICE.

The Democratic County Central Committee will meet in Denton on TUESDAY, AUGUST 6TH.

at 2 o'clock p. m. A full attendance is requested.

ENOCH GEORGE.
Chairman.

THE STATE CONVENTION.

The Democratic State Convention met in Ford's Opera House, Baltimore, on Thursday last, and unanimously renominated Dr. Joshua W. Hering as candidate for Comptroller of the Treasury, and named Hon. J. Frank Turner for Clerk of the Court of Appeals. Mr. B. Frank Crouse, of Carroll county, placed Dr. Hering's name before the convention, referring to his able administration of the office. General Joseph B. Seth made the speech nominating Mr. Turner, whose capability and fitness are so generally admitted. Chairman Vandiver, predicting victory for the Democratic ticket, said in his opening speech that "to bring about this most important result, we should labor earnestly, enthusiastically, unceasingly. We should bury in a generous oblivion all our past differences and estrangements, and in a disinterested devotion to the true and permanent interests of our people put from us everything that may stand in the way of a complete and thorough reunion of all our forces."

The platform in vigorous language sets forth the necessity for Democratic control of this State, the Democratic party representing more than forty thousand majority of the white people of Maryland. The courage of Governor John Walter Smith in calling an extra session, so that the frauds upon the census might be corrected, is applauded; the action of the special session of the legislature, in passing a law to exclude non-residents from participation in the election is commended; a general law to regulate primaries is urged; even better schools are promised and an economical State administration is pledged.

Few changes were made in the Central Committee of the State. Messrs. Thomas A. Smith, Emory S. Turpin, and Albert W. Sisk, of Caroline, were re-elected.

The ticket is exceptionally strong. The nominees are specially fitted for the offices for which they have been named, and are popular throughout the State. The platform courageously sets forth the party's position, in the maintenance of which we will be aided by many independent voters and others outside the Democratic party. Under such circumstances there ought not to be any doubt of Democratic success this year.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Talbot Democrats on Tuesday last nominated the following ticket: County Treasurer, Joseph B. Harrington; State Senate, James H. Covington; House of Delegates, Joseph E. Fairbanks, of Tilghman's Island; Nicholas S. Callahan, of Chapel, and William H. Myers, Jr., of Oxford; County Commissioner, Col. Percival McKnett, of Trappe; Sheriff, Alexander C. Mortimer, of Broad Creek; County Surveyor, John H. Craigh, of Trappe; Delegates to the State Convention, Gen. Joseph B. Seth, Joseph B. Harrington, William Collins, and William C. Dudley; Alternates, William H. Haddaway, George C. Moore, Richard Dodson, and Albert Lowe. The delegates to the State Convention were instructed for Dr. Joshua W. Hering for Comptroller and J. Frank Turner for Clerk of the Court of Appeals. The platform strongly commends the administration of Governor Smith.

Maryland has 9,494 more women than men within its boundaries. This at least is what the Government census enumerators found last June, according to a bulletin issued Tuesday. Massachusetts has all along held high rank for an excessive female population, but if Mr. Merriam's name-gatherers have it correct Maryland gives the Bay State a close race. The percentage of women in Massachusetts in relation to the entire population is 51.3. Maryland comes next, with 50.4. Maine has 49.5; Louisana, 49.7, and Kentucky, 49.2. The entire population of Maryland according to the Federal census is 1,188,044. The census taken by the State showed 1,181,691, or 6,353 less than the figures of the Government.

Representatives of the Diamond State Telephone Company have entered a protest with the Board of County Commissioners for Kent county against the taxing of their property in the county. The claim is made that the stock company is assessed by the State Tax Commissioner and the county authorities have no right to levy a tax.

In its article on the Democratic State convention the Baltimore News says: There was general comment on the number of good-looking and bright young men in the Convention. Judging from the outpouring today, the Maryland Democracy is in a prosperous conditon.

After fifty-five years of service at the editorial desk, Mr. George W. Vernon, of the Wilmington Republican, died on Monday.

Great things are expected from Edison's storage battery, which will be on the market in a few months, and which is likely to revolutionize the uses of electricity as a motor. The great advantages of the new invention will be in less bulk, less weight and greatly reduced cost. It is inclosed in a tin can about nine inches wide and six inches high. One of these cans, says Mr. Edison, will enable a bicycle or automobile to run 75 miles without recharging.

The annual report of Lieut-Col. Oswald Ernst, in charge of the rivers and harbors of Maryland, has been made. It is devoted largely to improvements of Baltimore harbor. Of Choptank river the report says: "No operations in progress during the year. Amount recommended to complete project, $19,000; amount that should be appropriated in next bill, $10,000, for maintenance of improvement, $4,000."

A writer, one professing to know, states that the progress of modern industrial art has done away with much of the household drudgery to which women were formerly subjected, and that the result has been in too many cases, for want of sufficient occupation for needed bodily exercise, ills and diseases.

Heat caused 107 deaths in Baltimore during the month of July. There were 203 prostrations.

IS THE WORLD LESS SPIRITUAL.

We hear a great deal of complaint of the prevalent worldliness, and it is very certain that the "world, the flesh and the devil" have not been converted in these times to any great extent. In judging of such matters, however, and comparing our time with times past, there are a great many things which have to be taken into consideration. The vaunted piety of "the fathers," for instance, when everybody went to church three times a day on Sunday, and listened to a two-hours' sermon each time, looks very well through the enchantment of distance; but if we judge that patient-listening generation by its historic fruits it is doubtful if it will show up anything like as well morally as even this fussy, irritable race by which we are surrounded, that seldom gets to any church as all, and when it does can't stand more than twenty minutes' talk at most, and even then has to have organ recitals and opera choir accompaniment to make it endurable at that.

The fact seems to be that the world that was once ruled by churchianity has broken away from its yoke, but the question arises, "Is it any less spiritual?" Perhaps not. The world never was spiritually-minded anyway; neither, indeed, can be under present conditions. Yet there always has been a proportion of people who "mind spiritual things," who are attracted to the contemplation of God and Truth and Virtue and Religiousness. These are the "salt of the earth" that preserves society from moral decay. Possibly the proportion of preservative is higher than it ever was. Ecclesiastic tinkers and creed-mongers fix up their different little arrangements, as the politicians do their platforms, to suit their own ideas and catch the crowd, and think they are doing fine; and so let them, but the fact remains the same that their power is broken and that forever. The ideas that they have promulgated for centuries, the terrors by which they have enthralled the multitude, only serve as material for stale newspaper jokes and the funny illustrations of the Sunday editions. And some live churchmen are hustling to find out what is the matter and, if possible, renew the grip. They are even pausing to examine themselves and their creeds (note the Presbyterian aevision echeme.)

In a recent short stay at Buffalo I noted a great absence of church buildings in the neighborhood, and, inquiring about it, our intelligent landlady informed me that what churches they had were so embarrassed for lack of patronage that recently they organized a sort of league and instituted a house to house canvass, sending authorized agents furnished with a set of printed questions to be presented to the householder: "Do you or family go to church? If not, why?" and so on. Unfortunately the messenger paid his visit to our house when paterfamilius was home, and when the initial inquiries were fired off at him he promptly retorted that it was "none of your business." The lady merrily apologized for her hubby's rough mode of expression, but thoroughly endorsed his sentiments.

Today people listen to anything—truth or falsehood—but are chary, very chary, about receiving anything, true or false. Who can blame them? "A burnt child dreads the fire," and what a roasting they have had! Yet thinking people are not any less interested now than ever in our world, our race, our destiny, in God, in the Bible. They appreciate none the less the character of Christ. But they have lost the key of knowledge. The connecting link that makes their religious ideas consistent are missing, and every "barker on the world's spiritual midway, bawling his own show through his own megaphone, only adds to the confusion. And so let churchmen look to it. There has been nothing lost of truth; God or His Word have lost nothing. The calm, majestic figure of the Son of Man looms up still grander in the foreground year by year. Let them revise their creeds and caustic disciplines, or, better, drop them altogether, and study Bible truth by Bible light, man for man, each for each; for God has given to each of us one complete set of brains all to his own self, and to none of us has He given any more, and each of us will be reckoned up at last just by the use we have made of our own particular set. And so why follow the lead of dead men; "a living dog is better than a dead lion," and a man living in the light of the twentieth century is in a better position than a million dead in the eighteenth. Stand for the living God and the living present, expectant of the coming and more glorious future even now dawning, for "there are no birds in last year's nest."

"We were unable to cure him with the doctor's assistance, and as a last resort we tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. I am happy to say it gave immediate relief and a complete cure." For sale by R. J. Colston, Denton; Hugh Duffey, Hillsboro; T. W. Smith, Ridgely.
