created. What will free institutions and national enterprise not effect?

[Snowdens Advocate.

Antiquities.—In Cincinnati, at the site of an old fortification, an iron shoe, like a horse shoe, with three nails in each side, was found imbedded in the gravel, 23 feet beneath the surface of the earth. Near the same place, at the same depth, was found a tooth weighing 25 pounds, supposed to be an elephants. The Cincinnati Gazette says: brass buttons, of an uncommon construction, were lately found in the Ohio, near the mouth of the Miami. They are an inch in diameter, the shank is a thin plate, half an inch in length, with a round hole the size of a turkey shot, through it near the end.—They resemble the buttons used in Russia, and other northern countries, for coats made of skin or leather, and may have been lost by some of the earliest navigators of the Ohio, when the French were attempting a communication between Canada and the Mississippi.

CASE OF A HORNED WOMAN.

MARLBOROUGH, MONTGOMERY COUNTY, (Pa.) July 10th, 1826.

Dear Sir—I take the liberty to forward for your perusal the following case of a horned woman, hoping that from its very rare occurrence it may not prove unacceptable. The account may be relied on, as many others besides myself have seen her, and as she resides but five miles distant from this place.

Mrs. B———, aged about seventy years, the wife of a farmer of Bucks county, of a robust constitution; was affected four years ago, with a very troublesome itching over the centre of the parietal bone of the left side. In a short time she perceived a hard tumor of a horny structure occupying the place thus affected which continued to increase so that by the end of twelve months, it had attained the length of one inch. Without any considerable pain, it has progressed in growth, an inch every year, and it is at present four inches in length and as thick as one's little finger. It is not attached to the bone, but it is evidently an affection of the cuticle; commenced with a granular hour glass shaped tumour of three-eights of an inch in length, from which the horn abruptly rises. After growing straight for one inch and three quarters it takes a spiral direction, and has completed nearly a circular turn and a half horizontally of about the diameter of a quarter dollar piece. In appearance it so closely resembles the horn of a buck sheep, that were it placed near a real sheep's horn, it would be difficult to distinguish between them. It is of the same colour, a dingy yellow; is perfectly hard and has all the rings natural to a horn of that animal, tapering also, as it does, to the end. As it occasions no pain except when a blow compresses its fleshy base between the horn and the bone—as it is perfectly concealed by her head dress, and on account of what is of far more moment with her, a superstitious belief that it is a judgement from above for some of her manifold sins, she resists all persuasions to have it removed.

With sentiments of gratitude,
I am yours, &c.
GEO. R. MORTON.
DR. B. RUSH RHEES.

The Nashville Whig of the 30th ult. says, that on the preceding Thursday (the 28th ult.) a duel was fought between Gen. Samuel Houston and General William White, in consequence of a challenge from the latter. General White was severely wounded. The combat took place in Kentucky, just over the line.

The Milledgeville (Geo.) Statesman of October 3d has the following postcript:

The Surveyors sent home.—The surveyors sent out by Gov. Troup to survey the recently acquired territory under the auspices of old Treaty, have been sent home by the Indians. We yesterday conversed with Col. Holliday, the assistant of one of the surveyors, who observed that when they remonstrated with the Indians against their prohibition of the continuance of the survey, and stated to them that Gov. Troup would send an armed force against them, the Chief speaker replied with much energy. Do you think we are children, that we should be frightened with his threats?

Georgia and Alabama—Respecting the boundary line between, these states, we find the following contradictory paragraphs in the Milledgeville papers of the 3d instant:—

From the Surveyors.—We have just received information which may be relied on, that the sectional surveyors have been stopped by the detachment of Indians sent out for that purpose by the Council, and that several of them have returned. The others are on their way.

The governor will now have business for his Hancock troops. It is said he has already issued orders to several companies of horse to march forthwith! Thus commences the first act.

Large Dinner Party.—After the coronation of the Emperor of Russia a public dinner is to be given to the people, when twenty-four thousand person will sit down at once to table.

Nervous Ladies—A Parisian physician who has entirely devoted himself to the study of the disorders to which the fair sex are subject, has just published a work, in which he teaches husbands the means of ascertaining whether their wives' nervous attacks are real or feigned! We would advise this indiscreet and officious medical gentleman to take care of himself.

The coronation of the Emperor of Russia was to take place on the 5th Sept.—It is said the Emperor has instituted a censorship of the press.

DORCHESTER COLONIZATION SOCIETY.

MR. SCOTT will confer a favor by inserting in his paper the following communications from the Colonization Society at Washington.

Office of the Colonization Society,
Washington, Feb. 13, 1826.

Dear sir—The Managers of the Colonization Society, feel impelled, by a sense of duty to their cause, to state to the several Auxiliary Institutions, that, while they have received from their friends, during the last year, more liberal aid than in any former equal period, their recent expenditures in fitting out, with supplies, two vessels which convey to the Colony little short of two hundred emigrants, have exceeded their funds in hand; and that, without some additional efforts on the part of those in whom they have confided, it will be impossible, promptly, to meet their engagements.—It is also proper to say, that the amount supposed to be in the possession of their Agents, has not equalled their expectations. Many powerful motives seemed to justify and require the measures which have been adopted; and as a small donation from each Auxiliary Society will relieve them from embarrassment, they trust it will not be solicited in vain.—Will you have the goodness to make known our situation to your Board, which I am sure will do, cheerfully, what its circumstances and means will permit? With high respect,

Your friend and serv't,
R. R. GURLEY.

THE PRESENT OBJECT.

"The Managers of the American Colonization Society, propose immediately to fit out an expedition for Liberia.—Nothing can be more important to their enterprize. The disposition to emigrate is rapidly increasing and should be encouraged; the public eye is directed favorably towards our object and should not be permitted to withdraw itself; by strengthening the Colony we add to its prosperity and extend its influence, and timely effort may accomplish the good with little hazard of misfortune. We earnestly invite our friends, therefore, to co-operate with us, at this time, and solicit them individually and unitedly to make prompt remittances of their donations to the Treasurer of this Society.—Shall our institution be left unable to act (without great embarrassment) when a measure of such immense importance demands adoption? Will not the Auxiliary Societies renew their exertions, and with one voice say the means shall be furnished? Will not each one who peruses this article, and prays for our success, raise a small sum from the circle of his friends, and by a seasonable appropriation augment tenfold its value? Our importunity will be pardoned by the friends of Africa. The expenses of the last year have been unusually great, and our funds are therefore inadequate to the purpose which every imaginable motive urges us to fulfil. Our confidence is placed where it has not been, and will not be disappointed."

The members of the Dorchester Colonization Society will feel a degree of embarrassment at the perusal of the above communications.

The Dorchester Colonization Society was deliberately formed, adopted, subscribed and published to the world; and the officers elected. By the terms of its Constitution, the members, or subscribers have agreed to pay their subscription money, annually, until the membership be withdrawn in the mode prescribed by the 7th article.

The Parent society have necessarily made this a predicate for calculation; upon which they have made advances, or engagements: To violate, tho' through unintentional neglect, this pledged faith, would operate injustice to the one party, and perhaps reproach to the other—To obviate either, it is hoped that the members will pay, promptly, their first year's subscription; that a remittance may be immediately made—To those who have been punctual much thanks is due from the Board. JOS: E. MUSE, Prest.
of the Dor. Col. Society.

The trial of Messrs. Eckford, Swift and others, at the Court of Oyer and Terminer, New York, for a conspiracy to defraud several monied institutions, progresses slowly. It is now about a fortnight since the trial commenced, and the New York papers say the prosecutor seems but to have entered on the threshhold of the case. Accommodations, refreshments, medicine, etc. are provided for the jury at the City Hall, where they are confined under lock and key. The Jury, as might be expected, have been very impatient of this restraint and detention from their families and business—On Saturday of the first week, they plead hard for permission to spend the sabbath with their families, one of them offering to procure bonds for ten thousand dollars and pledge himself to speak to no person on the subject of the trial until Monday morning. The court considering it absolutely necessary to the ends of Justice that the jury should not separate until the trial was completed and denied the request. On the following Tuesday the court with consent of the counsel, granted permission to the jury to go home two hours every morning between eight and ten, each juryman to be attended by an office

Counterfeits.—The Richmond Enquirer publishes the following description of an emission of ten and twenty dollar notes, purporting to be of the Bank of Virginia.

There are $20 and $10 counterfeit notes of the Bank of Virginia in circulation. By comparing them with the genuine notes, the difference is easily detected. The paper of the twenty dollar notes is of a yellowish cast; the engraving inferior, coarser and darker. The face of the female figure is badly executed. The words 'Bank of Virginia' are placed in the Border on the right, instead of the left: and the word 'twenty' is placed in the left instead of the right hand border. They are dated on 25th March, 1822.

The ten dollar counterfeits are also easily recognised on inspection. Both the paper and engraving are coarser and darker. The dot over the i in the Cashier's name, is omitted in all that we have seen. Date 4th June 1817.

Colombia.—A passenger in the Athenian, informs us, that previous to his sailing, advices from Bogota to the 24th of August, had reached Carthagena, up to which time Gen. Bolivar had not arrived there. The greatest exertions were making by the Colombian government to fulfil its engagements and re-establish its credit abroad. Among other measures of economy adopted for this purpose, the pay of the officers of the Navy had been reduced.

Our informant states that at the request of the Congress of Bolivia, Gen. Bolivar had furnished the draft of a Constitution for that Republic, a copy of which he has brought for our government. One important feature in this draft, provides that the President shall appoint the Vice-President, who shall succeed to the Presidency on the death of his predecessor, and the office shall be filled in perpetuity.—Mer. Adv.

First written Constitution.

To South Carolina and not to Virginia is due the credit of the first constitution of government formed and adopted in the U. States. The N. A. Review states on authority of the journals, that on the 11th Feb. 1776, a committee was appointed to procure a plan or form of government, as had been recommended by the Continental Congress, who a few days after reported a constitution, which was adopted by the provincial congress of South Carolina on the 26th of March, 1776, more than two months before that of Virginia. Wm. Henry Drayton was president of the S. C. congress & Charles C. Pinckney, chairman of the committee that reported the constitution as drafted.

Methodist Conference.—The eighty-third annual Wesleyan Conference, assembled in Liverpool on the 26th August. The number of ministers present upon the occasion, exceeded three hundred.—The increase in the number of members in the society, during the last year, has been between three and four thousand.

President Adams, Admiral Sir Isaac Coffin, the Judges of the Supreme Judicial Court, and Thomas G. Fessender, Editor of the New England Farmer, were admitted honorary members of the Worcester County Agricultural Society on the 11th inst.

A correspondent informs us that a physician in the west has cured a patient who was dying of the lock jaw, by causing his legs to be immersed to the knees in fresh warm lie.—Balt. Amer.

LEGAL DECISION.

25th October, 1826.

Wm. McKeene, vs. St. Geo. E. Roberts, Admr. d. b. n. of Wm. Morgan. } Judgment on nol prosequi, (or non suit,) plaintiff pays the cost of this suit.

THIS was a suit to recover the sum of $48 83, debt, with interest from 24th April, 1824—and in consequence of the debt and damages, or debt and interest exceeding $50, there was a non suit—and believing that the general opinion of the justices of the peace is that if the debt does not exceed $50, they are authorised by the law to give judgment, let the amount of the interest be what it may. I will refer to the law on the subject, and wish to correct the erroneous opinions which any person has imbibed.
