4-H'ers Clearing Park For Stands In Queen Anne's

A group of Queen Anne's County 4-H Club boys, local leaders and assitant county agent, Glenn Hendrix, spent Saturday clearing land at the 4-H Club Park for the erection of two permanent buildings.

Lewis Davis, chairman of the park building committee, said that a site in the midlle of the park is being cleared of trees so that two 75x36-foot buildings can be constructed for use during the annual fair, and other times during the year.

The buildings, shed-type, onestory affairs, will face one another with the area in the center to be used as a show ring. Two other buildings are also planned. They hope to have the first two buildings up for the 1956 fair this summer.

Lumber from the trees will be sawed and brought back to use in the buildings, while other lumber is being obtained from people on Kent Island where a road is being widened. Much of theexpense wll come from the use of treated poles for the buildings, because many of the 4-H club members and leaders will provide labor.

The Soil Conservation Servce will clear a drainage ditch and pull out the tree stumps and the county has promised the 4-H'ers gravel for the road through the park.

At the present time only one small building stands at the park, with tents used during the fair.
