SATURDAY MORNING.....Nov. 28, 1885.

The Ministry of Tears.

Rain happy tears, nor cease your flow.
I thought one little hour ago
I ne'er should know your peace again.
So dumb my heart, through grief and pain;
Ye wash away the poisoned sting
That round my heart did grasp and cling
Like some fell viper, with its fangs
Toying with death. But now the pangs
Through thy sweet dew, oh, welcome tears—
Are softly toned, and doubts and fears
Are banished from my sky at last,
Which e'en so late was overcast
With clouds so stormy, cold and dark,
I feared not if they wrecked my bark.
A rainbow now through tears I see,
And know that God remembers me.
—Nellie P. Pratt in the Current.

Poultry Houses.

To begin with, the houses must not only be air-tight, but be heated by the sun or artificial heat. The building may be a lean-to, fronting the south or southwest, with windows in front; or made with a roof having a long slope on the south side, with an ordinary greenhouse sash to six feet, and a short slope of roof at the rear. Such a house may have the rear walls five feet and the front ones three to four feet high, while the peak of the roof is only seven. This affords standing room for a man, doors five feet high at one end, and in the partitions room for roosts, nests, etc. The perches should be as near the centre of the space in the roosting room as possible, as they are thus out of the way of draughts. Let the perches be low, say two and a half feet high, or even two feet would be better. Proper means should be taken to ventilate the house, and dust baths, etc., judiciously placed in convenient places. The floor should be made of plank, stone or cement, but the best possible article is sifted coal ashes, leveled, wet and pounded hard, say three inches in depth. The woodwork ought to be made of planed stuff, so that it can be painted in the joints when put up, which fills up the cracks, and greatly reduces the hiding places of vermin. Painting will not interfere with the subsequent whitewashing. Double-glazed sashes are essential, for in moderately cold weather the moisture from the breath of the fowls does not deposit on these as on single-glazed sashes, where it not only gathers, but afterward drips. In the roosting room about two and a half feet is required for each fowl, and a room equally as large for a feeding room in winter, with a good run in a sunny, sheltered yard.

They Were Not Man and Wife.

From the Chicago Herald.

"There are some queer couples in this world," remarked a Dearbon street real estate agent. "The other day a man and woman called to see me about renting a flat on the North Side. The woman did the talking, and turned to see the man for confirmation or corroboration. He always agreed with her, and he did it very meekly.

"'Well,' says the woman, finally, 'I will give you $25 for the flat, won't we John?'

"'Yes'm,' replied the man.

"'And I'll pay my rent promptly, too, won't we John?'

"'Yes'm.'

"'And I'll take good care of the house, won't I, John?'

"'Yes'm.'

"But inquired the agent, as is usual in such cases, are you not man and wife?'

"'Man and wife!' exclaimed the woman, sharply, 'indeed we are not, are we, John?'

"'No'm.'

"'What!' says I, 'not man and wife!'

"'Not much. I'd have you know that in this family we are wife and man, ain't we, John?'

"'Yes'm.'"

Vinegar Made of Sawdust.

A sign in a Third-avenue grocery window reads: "Pure Russet Cider, 4c. a Quart."

"That cider was never moved by a breath of country air," said a man in a blue, check jacket, who was passing the window, "and it was never any nearer an apple than it is now as it stands in the barrel, at the rear of the grocery store."

"Made of sulphuric acid and glucose, then," suggested a companion.

"No, that's too expensive."

"What is it made of?"

"Sawdust. I work in the shop where it's made. Pure apple cider is worth thirty cents a gallon. Sawdust cider costs about one-fourth of that. We take the sawdust from a couple of woodyards—hemlock, hickory, maple—every kind, just as it comes. We dump it into a big retort and heat it with a coal fire. Just forty-seven per cent. of what boils over is crude vinegar. It has to be purified a bit and boiled down a little, but it is pretty good vinegar. When the wood reaches a point in the heating process it becomes charcoal, and is cooled off and sold to filter makers. We can beat the grangers on the vinegar business and not half try."

THE Lancet states that a German observer has found that cows milked three times a day give much more milk than when milked twice only, and that the proportion of fat is the same in both cases.

HIGH GRADE BONE FERTILIZERS.

We take pleasure in again calling the attention of farmers to our High Grade Fertilizers. It being eight years ago this spring since they were first offered to consumers under their present form; and from that time until now there has been an increasing demand for them, which is a far better testimonial to us than any letters of praise could be, although we do not want for these latter, as we are in receipt of many. It has been our aim to put up the best fertilizers we know how, and the results in the field clearly show that we have hit the mark right in the bull's eye, and we believe if consumers will take our target (American Brand, bull's head) they will in a good result every time—the bull's eye, if their aim is good.

THEIR CHARACTER.

The main characteristic of our fertilizers is that they are prepared with particular reference to the crop, and not to a chemical analysis; the latter does very well in its place, and we believe in chemistry thoroughly, but consumers are too often deceived with the idea that a chemical analysis is the main thing, and if they get a good analysis and high commercial valuation as figured out with arbitrary prices by the chemist, they must have a fine fertilizer. Now it may happen that a fertilizer, with a commercial valuation of $25 00 per ton, will give a better result on the crop than one with a valuation of $40 00 as based on a chemical analysis. And why should this be? Only because the material used in the one valued at $25 00 was better adapted to the crop than the other.

THEY ARE UNIFORM.

The goods we manufacture are uniform in composition, and are only varied in proportions, year after year, as we believe it to be an advantage to the crop. We have such large supplies of Bone, Blood, etc., from the slaughter establishments of New York, that our fertilizers are largely composed of these, and there is not that inducement for us to use cheaper material, that there might be, if we did not have this material.

BONE FERTILIZERS.

Our products are of a bone base, because we believe that is the most satisfactory source of phosphoric acid, and the large amount of animal matter our fertilizers contain makes them especially valuable in what may be considered the off or poor seasons. Some years it is noticed that almost any fertilizer will give fairly good results, but we find themost favorable comparisons for our products are in the poor years.
