

Kent News.

SATURDAY MORNING, FEB. 27, 1886.

The Society Girl.

REMEMBER THE PARTY.
Oh, mother, dear mother, why did I say
I'd go to the ball with you today?
I've had a hard day, and I'm so tired,
I can't go, dear mother, I can't go.
I've had a hard day, and I'm so tired,
I can't go, dear mother, I can't go.
I've had a hard day, and I'm so tired,
I can't go, dear mother, I can't go.

SOME "DON'TS" FOR HUSBANDS.

Don't trouble yourself to be on hand promptly at your meals. Your wife will bring your supper as warm as toast in the oven for you. She enjoys your tardiness. Don't hurry. It's vulgar to be late.
Don't begin to eat your breakfast as soon as you get down at the table. Dry yourself in the morning paper first for fifteen minutes. Then your breakfast will be nice and cold. Then you will give your wife the dyspepsia. Your wife enjoys eating her breakfast in a comfortable and cheerful mood. Increase her feminine amiability.
Don't hesitate to remark on the thinness of the coffee and the toughness of the steak. Remarks on the demerits of the food are encouraging to young housekeepers, and an accomplished cook may thereby be made of an inexperienced and amiable wife.
Don't hang up the towel when you are finished using it. Toss it lightly to the top of a picture frame or on the back of the bedstead. Your wife expects to get it in the clothes-hanger way, and by the time she has walked a few yards on the bedstead, or joyfully rescued it from the picture, she will be pleasantly reminded of the hamper and you.
Don't expect to kick up a row if your buttons are not all on and your underwear is perfect. Don't expect your wife to encourage the habits of domesticity in your wife. Many exertions in this direction have been known to transform a light-hearted girl into an insupportable housekeeper.
Don't allow the presence of company to interfere with your appreciation of your wife's perfection in housekeeping. If you see dust on the mantelpiece, wipe it carefully away with your pocket-handkerchief. Do not let your friends with admiration for your thoughtfulness.

Don't be tight-mouthed about the affairs of your own home. If the cook puts too much butter on the potatoes, call her in and encourage her in her stoniness. You support the house and it is your privilege. Don't forget that you are the earthly support of your wife. Don't feel any hesitancy in inquiring of your wife what she did with the $2 you gave her for her party expenses. Cheaperness in such matters has long been known to engender extravagance of a very serious nature in women. Never forget the old saying that "a woman can throw out of the back door with a spoon more than a man can pick into the front door with a shovel," and "wifely waste brings poverty."
Don't contract a habit of telling your wife where you go when you are out. It is a sure sign of a very suspicious and what the old saying says is "a woman can throw out of the back door with a spoon more than a man can pick into the front door with a shovel," and "wifely waste brings poverty."
Don't refuse an invitation to the theatre on your wife's account. Don't mind about sending her word, and go right from your place of business. She will conclude by 10 o'clock that you are not coming any way, and if she sits up and rocks the baby till 12 o'clock she will be glad to see you when you do come.
Don't deny yourself the pleasure of being well looked after at all times. A woman in a business man is necessary that you be well dressed. If your wife loves you they will be glad to see you in a gentleman at whatever sacrifice of comfort and convenience on their part.
Don't contract the habit of waking easily. You will often be annoyed by the children if you do, and when your wife rises in the morning to build the fire she feels as fresh as a bird, and she loves to see you enjoying the refreshing slumber of an innocent child. Don't let her know you are awake.
Don't allow your wife to handle any money belonging to the State. She will handle it, and then you know just where all the money goes. Women are not experienced in monetary matters. They are liable to pay for their husband's car fare, and they are fond of money. Some are even addicted to fondling pinions.
Don't be too much interested in your wife's ailments. Headache, neuralgia and pain in the back are common to the feminine constitution. Tell her so, and in time she may become quite beryllic. Sympathy generates hypochondria in many cases. Always suggest a disordered liver—it may be.
Don't permit your wife to question the propriety of anything she does. "Yes," "Yes," "Yes," that is a knock-down argument.—Chicago Herald.

Taxable Property in Pennsylvania.

The following in reply to questions concerning points in the revenue act passed by the Pennsylvania Legislature has been issued by the board of revenue commissioners of that State, which is composed of Secretary of State Streger, State Treasurer Lacey and Auditor General Miles:
"The board of revenue commissioners, at a meeting held on January 21, 1886, considered the many questions submitted to them growing out of the enforcement of the revenue act of June 30, 1885, and call your attention to the answers to the following questions as their interpretation of the law."
"Are loans deposited not bearing interest but subject to check on sight and money in hand not included in the item 'all other non-real estate'?" "No."
"Is a donor on real estate taxable?" "No."
"Are deposits bearing interest in national banks, savings banks and private banks taxable?" "Yes."
"Are mortgages owned by beneficial associations taxable?" "Yes."
"Are mortgages, judgments, bonds, notes, etc., not bearing interest, taxable?" "No."
"Is the stock of corporations paying tax on capital stock to the State through the commission on the bonds of the owners?" "Yes."
"Is the stock of the New York Central Railroad and other foreign corporations owned in this State taxable in the hands of the owners?" "Yes."
"Can a taxable person deduct debts from the amount of his money or investments and only pay tax on the net sum thus shown?" "No."
"If a husband, mortgagee and joint owner of real estate in Co. A, and his wife, joint owner of the same, are both taxable?" "Yes."
"Are men are born free and equal? But the difficulty is that some are born equal to half a dozen others."
