POETRY.

OUR COUNTRY.

Our Country! 'tis a glorious land!
With broad arms stretched from shore to shore,
The broad Pacific chafes her stand,
She hears the dark Atlantic roar,
And nurtured on her ample breast,
How many a goodly prospect lies!
In nature's mildest grandeur dressed,
Enameled with her loveliest dyes.

Rich Prairies decked with flowers of gold,
Like sunlit oceans roll afar;
Broad lakes her azure heaven behold,
Reflecting clear each trembling star;
And mighty Rivers, mountain born,
Go sweeping onward dark and deep,
Through forests where the bounding fawn
Beneath their sheltering branches leap.

And, cradled 'mid her clustering hills,
Sweet vales in dreamlike beauty hide,
Where love the air with music fills,
And calm content and peace abide;
For Plenty here her fullness pours
In rich profusion o'er the land,
And sent to seize her generous store
There prowls no tyrant's hireling band.

Great God! we thank Thee for this home;
This bounteous birth-land of the free;
Where wanderers from afar may come
And breathe the air of Liberty!
Still may her flowers untrampled spring,
Her harvests wave, her cities rise;
And yet, till Time shall fold his wing,
Remain Earth's lovliest paradise!

WIT & HUMOR.

Mrs. Paul Partington.—The amiable and sententious widow, whose chosen chronicler is the Boston Post, was walking down Washington street, a few days ago, with her beloved nephew Ike, when they were passed by a volunteer soldier man belonging to one of the Boston companies, and arrayed in all the pride of gold lace and fancy fixings, stepping off as if the whole dignity of the Massachusetts volunteer militia was centered upon him. Ike was a warm admirer of the military, and already at times to wear certain remainders of the ancient Corporal's uniform that time has spared. "See there," said he, catching the old lady by the shawl, and half pulling it from her back in his earnestness, "Does that solger look anything like Uncle Paul?" Such a look as she gave him! "No, dear," replied the sublimely, "he is no more like your uncle than Bogle's hyperion fluid is like a satire." Fine Shaksperian feeling has Mrs. Partington!

False Charity.—A negro preacher, speaking from "what is a man profited, if he gain the whole world and loose his own soul?" mentioned, among other things, that many lost their souls by being too charitable! Seeing the congregation astonished beyond measure at this saying, he very emphatically repeated it, and then proceeded to explain his meaning. "Many people," said he, "attended meetings, hear the sermon, and when it is over, they proceed to divide it among the congregation—this part was for that man, and that part for that woman; such denunciations for such persons, and these threats for you sinners—and so," continued the shrewed African, "they give away the whole sermon and keep none for themselves."

Three Days' Sight.—A Frenchman, unacquainted with business, received a draft payable on three days' sight at a certain bank.—The first day he presented himself at the counter, and taking the draft from his pocket-book, extended it before the paying teller, and to his astonishment said, "You see that once," and folding the draft he walked away. The next morning he appeared again, and going through the same form, said, "You see that twice." The third day he appeared again, and said again, "You see that three times. Now you will pay him."

A Humorous Legal Instrument.—Not long since, the contents of a small confectionary and toy shop, were seized for debt; but afterwards repleived. A deed of trust to secure the payment was accordingly executed, and recorded at the City Hall. A friend who had the pleasure of reading the document informs us that some of the items were duly set forth in this wise: five lbs. of candies assorted: eight dozen soldies, six dozen cats, four dozen horses, and two dozen with riders on them, and seven dozen assorted babies.

☞I believe that if the devil be the father of liars, he has a plaguey large family to look after, and that it is rapidly increasing.

I believe that girls are like kittens—gently smooth them the right way, and they rub and purr most affectionalely; but give them the contrary brush, and their back is up in the most disdainful manner. They like to be kissed, but sham a delicacy about the operation.

☞"Ah!" said Seraphina Angelica, speaking on some subject in which her feelings were warmly enlisted, "how gladly I would embrace an opportunity!"—"would I were an opportunity!" interrupted her bashful lover.

☞"There is no truth in men," said a lady in company; "they are like musical instruments, which sound a variety of tone." "In other words, madam," said a wit. who chanced to be present, "you believe that all men are lyres."

☞A rough Kentuckian, hearing a child cry very loudly and furiously, remarked—"How wickedly that small sample of mankind is swearing now, in the infantile vernacular! What will it come to when it is educated?"

☞"Mother, what is a hush?" "A hush child? I do not know—what makes you ask?" "Cause the other day I asked Jane, what made her back stick out so, and she said hush.'

☞The oldest fire-arms are the arms of an ardent young lady. We may add in a whisper, that they are frequently the most dangerous.

The Beautiful Maniac.

"The fire that on my bosom preys,
Is lone as some volcanic isle,
No torch is kindled at its blaze—
A funeral pile!"

In the morning train from Petersburg, there was a lady closely veiled, in the same car with ourselves. She was dressed in the purest white, wore gold bracelets, and evidently belonged to the higher circles of society. Her figure was delicate, but well developed, and exquisitely symmetrical; and when she occasionally drew aside her richly embroidered veil, the glimpse of the features which the beholder obtained, satisfied him of her extreme loveliness. Beside her sat a gentleman in deep mourning, who watched over her with unusual solicitude, and several times when she attempted to rise, he excited the curiosity of all the passengers by detaining her in her seat.

Outside the cars all was confusion, passengers looking to baggage, porters running, cabmen cursing, and all the usual hurry and bustle attending the departure of a train. One shrill warning whistle from the huge engine, and we move slowly away.

At the first motion of the car, the lady in white started to her feet with one heart-rending scream, and her bonnet falling off, disclosed the most lovely features we ever contemplated. Her ravan tresses fell over her sholders in graceful disorder, and clasping her hands in prayer, she turned her dark eyes to heaven! What agony was in that look! What beauty, too, what heavenly beauty, had not so much of misery been stamped upon it. Alas! that one glance told a melancholy tale.

"—— ——she was changed
As by the sickness of a soul; her mind
Had wandered from its dwelling, and her eyes
They had not their own lustre, but the look
Which is not of the earth, she was become
She queen of a fantastic realm; her thoughts,
Were combinations of disjointed things,
And forms, impalpable and unperceived
Of others' sight, familiar were to her."

Her brother, the gentleman in black, was unremitting in his efforts to soothe her spirit. He led her back to her seat; but her hair was still unbound, and her beauty unveiled. The cars rattled on, and the passengers in groups resumed the conversation. Suddenly a wild melody arose; it was the beautiful maniac's voice, rich, full, and inimitable. Her hands were closed on her bosom, and she waved her body as she sung with touching pathos—

She is far from the land where her young hero sleeps,
And lovers are around her sighing,
But coldly she turns from their gaze and weeps,
For her heart in his grave is lying.

"She sings the wild songs of her dear native plains,
Every note which he loved awaking—
Ah! little they think, who delight in her strains,
How the heart of the minstrel is breaking."

Her brother was unmaned, and he wept as only man can weep. The air changed, and she continued—

"Has sorrows thy younger days shaded
As clouds o'er the morning fleet!
Too fast has those young days faded,
That even in sorrow were sweet!
If thus the unkind world wither
Each feeling that once was dear:
Come child of misfortune! come hither,
I'll weep with thee, tear for tear."

She then sang a fragment of the beautiful hymn,

"Jesus, lover of my soul.
Let me to thy bosom fly."

Another attempt to rise up was prevented, and she threw herself on her knees beside her brother, and gave him such a mournful, entreating look, with a plaintive "Save me, my brother! save your sister!" that scarcely a passenger could retain from weeping. We say scarcely, for there was one man (was he a man) who called on the conductor to "put her out of the car." He received the open scorn of the company. His insensibility to such a scene of distress almost defies belief; and yet this is, in every particular, and "o'er true tale." Should he ever read these lines, may his marble heart be softened by the recollection of his brutality!

Again the poor benighted beauty raised bewitching voice to one of the most solemn, sacred airs:—

"Oh, where shall rest be found,
Rest for the weary soul!"

And continued her melancholy chant until we reached the steamer Mount Vernon, on board of which we decended the magnificent James river, the unhappy brother and sister occupying the "ladies' cabinet." His was a sorrow too profound for ordinary consolation; and no one dare intrude so far upon his grief as to satisfy his curiosity.

We were standing on the promenade deck, admiring the beautiful scenery of the river, when at one of the landings, the small boat pulled away from the shore with the unhappy pair, en route for the asylum at ——. She was standing erect in the stern of the boat, her head still uncovered, and her white dress and raven tresses fluttering in the breeze. The boat returned, and the steamer moved on for Norfolk. They were gone! that brother with his broken heart, that sister with her melancholy union of beauty and madness.—Charleston Courier.

Domestic.—An editor out West, in speaking of his domestic increase, gives the following:

Sound the stage horn—blast the trumpet
That the waiting world may know!
Publish it through all our borders,
Even unto Mexico.

Seize your pen, oh dreaming poet!
And in numbers smooth as may-be,
Spread afar the joyful tidings!
Betsy's got another baby!

☞Sterne's Uncle Toby says that one of the tricks of woman is to pretend that they have accidentally got something in their eyes, and induce a man to look into it; and he says the man is sure gone, if he looks there for that something.

☞Love hideth a multitude of sins.

MOUTH TO MOUTH TESTIMONY BY SOME OF THE THOUSANDS CURED BY HAMPTON'S VEGETABLE TINCTURE.

PALPITATION OF THE HEART.

Port Royal, Va., July 27th 1852.

MESSRS. MORTIMER & MOWBRAY: Gents—We have again to send an order for more of your truly wonderful "Hampton's Vegetable Tincture." Since it was first tried it has sold without an effort, and we have not seen the first person who has not been greatly benefitted by its use. A gentleman of our neighborhood was induced to try the Tincture for a violent palpitation of the heart. He had suffered so much from it that he said he had prayed for death. He had taken but three doses when he assured us he would not take five hundred dollars for the benefit he had derived, and that he should never cease to remember us with gratitude for calling his attention to so valuable a medicine. Yours truly,

GRAY & PENDLETON.

Are you Sick.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS,

Ask for "Hampton's Vegetable Tincture." The many cures made by this pleasant and safe remedy may introduce counterfeiting.

A Medicine must have merit, and great merit too, to stand the test of public opinion. No art of puffing can galvanize a worthless article so as too keep it up as a good medicine if it be not really so.

A GOOD MEDICINE will live, become popular, and extend its sales year after year, in spite of opposition. The people readily find out its virtues, and the fame of them passes from mouth to mouth with more rapidity than newspapers can spread it. A living witness testifying to the cure a medicine has made for him is of far more service than any newspaper advertising.

In proof of what we say above, we refer you to HAMPTON'S VEGETABLE TINCTURE, and its effects.

The Wife of T. W. Yeable, Grocer, 76 Pearl street, cured of Rheumatism of 8 years' standing; all other remedies failed.

W. A. Schaeffer, Esq., one of the oldest Magistrates and most highly respectable citizens, cured of great weakness, and restored to robust health.

Jarrett Plummer, 153 E. Baltimore street, suffered intensely for six years with hip disease and mercurial rheumatism; cured after all other remedies failed.

Space will not permit to name hundreds of others as Geo W. Goodrich, Capt. Thomas Canot, Robert Gault, James Smyth, cured of Rheumatism.

John Pervail, S. A. Griffin, John Lukes Rev. V. Eskridge, U. S. N., and thousand, others cured of Dyspepsia, Scrofula, Cough, Liver Complaints, Bronchits, St. Vitu's Dance, &c. We refer you to your own citizens. Call on them.

COUGH, CONSUMPTION, &c.

Mr. Henry C. Winn had a cough for 5 years; great weakness, &c., had in all 5 or 6 physicians; tried all their remedies, but was cured only by HAMPTON'S VEGETABLE TINCTURE.

DR. HAMPTON, the author of this great "Hampton's Vegetable Tincture," is in his 80th year, in good health, so that it will be seen it is not an article got up to impose on the public.

Call and get pamphlets gratis, with history of discovery of this wonderful Blood Purifier, and see certificates of our own citizens, of Rheumatism, Dyspepsia, Scrofula, Liver Complaint, General Weakness, Nervousness, &c., &c.

DR. J. B. MARCHISIS' Celebrated Catholicon,
FOR THE RELIEF AND CURE OF SUFFERING FEMALES.

It stands pre-eminent for its curative powers in all the diseases for which it is recommended; called Female Complaints. Of these are Prolapus Uteri, or Falling of the Womb, Fluor Albus or Whites, Chronic Inflammation and Ulceration of the Womb; Incidental Hemorrhage, or Flooding; Painful, Suppressed and Irregular Menstruation, &c., with all their accompanying evils, (Cancer excepted,) no matter how severe or how long standing.

The catholicon far surpassed other remedies, in being more certain, less expensive, and leaving the system in a better condition. Let all interested in such a remedy called and obtain a pamphlet (free) containing ample proof, from highly respectable sources, of the happy results of its use together with letters from first-class experienced physicians, who have used it in their practice, and speak from their own observations.

Glenn Springs, Jan. 9th, 1853.

Messrs. Beach & Brownson—Sirs: I send for another bottle of your "Marchisi's Uterine Catholicon." My wife has been afflicted for eleven years, and a variety of means has been restored for relief, but none was obtained until I received this medicine from you. Its influence seems almost magical: there was a manifest improvement from the day it was taken.

As there are a great many females in our country laboring under the affliction for which your medicine proposes a remedy, I feel it a duty to recommend it to all such.

THROUGH BY EXPRESS!!
THIS IS TO CERTIFY THAT THE MEXICAN
MUSTANG LINIMENT

HAS been used quite extensively in the stables of ADAMS & CO'S GREAT SOUTHERN, EASTERN and WESTERN EXPRESSES, for CURING Galds, Chafes, Scratches, Sprains and Bruises, and it has proved effectual. We have no hesitation in recommending it as a valuable preparation, to be used externally on man or beast.

J. DUNNING,
Foreman of Adams & Co's Express Stables,
New York.

We take great pleasure in recommending the MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT to all of our friends and customers as the best article we have ever used for Sores, Sprains, or Galds in Horses. We have used it extensively, and always effectually. Some of our men have used it for severe Bruises and Sores, as well as Rheumatic Pains, and they all say it acts like magic—we can only say that we have entirely abandoned the use of any other Liniment.

J. M. HEWITT, Foreman for AMERICAN EXPRESS CO., 10 Wall st.
HARNDEN'S EXPRESS, 74 Broadway.
PULLEN, VIRGIL & CO'S, 16 Wall st.
WELLS, FARGO & CO'S, 16 Wall st.

Having used the MUSTANG LINIMENT in my family for several severe cases of hard lumps and swellings, I cheerfully give my certificate to its excellent effects. My daughter had a hard lump, the size of a hen's egg, upon her wrist for a year. I told her to rub it with the Liniment, and a few applications entirely removed it. I have also used the Liniment for Scrofulous Tumors, or swellings in the thruat of long standing, on two of my servants, and it removed them both in a short time. I consider them all remarkable cure, and recommend the Mustang Liniment as the best article I ever used.

JESSE T. HOPKINS,
Proprietor of Hopkins's Hotel.
Liberty, V., June 30th, 1853.

Morganton, N. C., June 30th, 1853.

Dr. A. G. Bragg & Co.—I feel it my duty to those of my fellow beings who are afflicted as I have been, to add my testimony to the wonderful effects of your MUSTANG LINIMENT. I was severely attacked in December last with Rheumatism in its worst form, suffering night and day with excruciating pain for six months, being for the whole time unable to walk or even step. My right leg was so contracted and drawn up that I could not put it to the ground, and my left arm was badly contracted. During the whole time I was attended by two of the most skillful physicians in the place, but they were unable to afford me relief, and finally gave me up—pronounced me incurable, and said I must die.

At this critical moment I commenced using the MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT, and after using two small bottles I began to find relief from my sufferings; and after using seven bottles I was well as ever, and am now stout as ever I was before.

GEORGE GOOD.

Morganton, June 30th, 1853.

I certify that I am acquainted with George Good—that he was afflicted with Rheumatism as above stated, and was cured by the use of the Mexican Mustang Liniment.

JAMES C. SMYTH,
Merchant and Hotel Keeper.

The Railroad Ride.

"All aboard"—the captain's song,
A puff—a jerk—we roll along;
And quicker now the puffs succeed,
And now we go it with good speed;
And here's a rock and there's a ridge;
Here's a house—we've crossed a bridge—
Here's a church--oh, what a steeple!
Here's a crowd of gaping people;
There's a woodman on a log;
Yonder is a barking dog;
Here's a river; there's a brook;
Here the road has got a crook;
On the river is a ship;
Here's a boy, he has a whip;
Here's a shop of foolish toys;
There's a school of girls and boys;
There's a river once again;
Yonder's fields of growing grain;
There's a cow, and yonder sheep;
There's a man—he's fast asleep;
Here's a rabbit—there's a squirrel;
Look out, there's a pretty girl;
Here's a pond—it's full of fishes;
There's a woman washing dishes;
Look out yonder, what a fountain;
Over yonder is a mountain;
Here's a valley; there's a hill;
Yonder is an old saw-mill;
See those trees all out in blossom;
There's a man, he's playing possum;
Here's a lad with striped trousers;
There's a city—see what houses!
Now the whistle sounds again—
There! we're safe—they've stopped the train;
Let us up and get outside—
We did'nt have a "smash-up" ride!

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Fighting Preacher.

WESTERN ITINERANTS FORTY YEARS AGO.

The Western itinerants (who were the legio fulminea of the American ministry of their day) were usually brawny, athletic men, physically, if not mentally, educated almost to perfection. They had occasion sometimes to preach to their rude hearers with the stout fists, as well their stentorian lungs. "At a camp meeting," says Mr. Finley, "a row was raised, on Saturday, by about twenty lewd fellows of the baser sort, who came upon the ground intoxicated, and had vowed they would break up the meeting. One of the preachers went to the leader for the purpose of getting him to leave; but this only enraged him, and he struck the preacher a violent blow on the face, and knocked him down. Here the conflict began. The members saw that they must either defend themselves or allow the ruffians to beat them, and insult their wives and daughters. It did not take them long to decide. They very soon placed themselves in an attitude of defence. Brother Birkhammer, an exceedingly stout man, seized their bully leader, who had struck the preacher, and with one thrust of his brawny arm, crushed him down between two benches. The aid-de-camp of the bully ran to his relief, but it was to meet the same fate, for no sooner did he come in reach of the Methodist, than with crushing force, he felt himself ground on the back of his comrade in distress. Here they were held in durance vile, till the sheriff and his posse came, and took possession, and binding them, with ten others, they were carried before a justice, who fined them heavily for the misdemeanor. As soon as quiet was restored, Bishop Asbury occupied the pulpit.—After singing and prayer, he rose and said he would give the rowdies some advice—"You must remember that all our brothers in the church are not yet sanctified, and I advise you to let them alone; for, if you get them angry, and the devil should get in them, they are the strongest and hardest men to fight and conquer in the world. I advise you, if you do not like them, to go home and let them alone."

In speaking of one of his brother itinerants—one whom it is owing "that Methodism is now the prevailing religion in Illinois," he says:

At the camp meeting held at Alton, in the autumn of 1833, the worshippers were annoyed by a set of desperadoes from St. Louis, under the control of Mike Fink, a notorious bully, the triumphant hero of countless fights, in none of which he had ever met an equal, or even second. The coarse, drunken ruffians carried it with a high hand, outraged the men and insulted the women, so as to threaten the dissolution of all pious exercises; and yet, such was the terror the name of their leader, Fink, inspired, that no one individual could be found brave enough to face his prowess. At last, one day, when Mr. —— ascended the pulpit to hold forth, the desperadoes, on the outskirts of the encampment, raised a yell so deafening as to drown utterly every other sound. M——'s dark eyes shot lightning. He deposited his Bible, drew off his coat, and remarked aloud:

"Wait for a few minutes, my brethren, while I go and make the devil pray."

He then proceeded, w
