HOME OF THE ZUNIS.

An Interesting Visit to the Ancient Home of the Cliff Dwellers.

LAS VEGAS, New Mexico. Probably many of your readers have heard of the Cliff Dwellers of the southwest, but more than likely few have ever witnessed the sights of antiquity, as they have been penetrated by only a small number of inhabitants of these parts, owing to the hostile state of the Apache | BEFORE YOU PURCHAS 3. Indians. Well, on leaving Socorro, about the center of this Territory, with our burros packed with provisions for a six months' prospecting trip, we, four in number, traveled west over hills of sand and mountains of rock, picking our way through cactus and sage, for a distance of one hundred miles, we brought up at the Old Zunis.

unoccupied for the past century. We built our morning sun, at which time we devised our plan how to ascend this mammoth ledge of rock to the entrance of the houses, which are located midway up the cliff, some 150 feet from the base. Finally we gathered together ropes and raw hides enough to reach from the top of the cliff to the bottom of the canyon. This done, two of our party proceeded in a round-about way to reach the summit of the rocks so as to fasten the ropes securely, enabling us to climb to the entrance. After making our ascent we were somewhat surprised to find what appeared from the bottom to be a comparatively small town, a

years of decay was now but the crumbled slack as soft as ashes. The largest room, we all decided as having been their council chamber, as nothing of importance was found there, save pieces of paint and what appeared to be musical instruments made entirely of wood, which were yet as hard as iron, and were most likely used at their war dances. In the center of this vacancy we prepared to retire. instead of descending we ascended to the top plantation of cactus which was almost impossible to penetrate save through the decayed porof all who had entered this valley of death in years gone by. As we proceeded on we came to a camp of Apaches, where we learned these fortifications had not been occupied in their heard their fathers tell of the fierce battles they had fought with the dwellers of the cliff, who were, by surprise, finally conquered and reduced in number by the combined force of the Navajos, Pueblos and Apaches. The remaining Zunis, who number scarcely 300, are now living in peace near the Great Canyon del Colorado.

THE REMEDY FOR RHEUMATISM. MARION, IND., Aug. 12, 1886. My wife was so afflicted with Rheu-matism in her shoulder and arm that the could do nothing for herself, and could not sleep in bed, but had to be colstered up in a rocking chair. Physicians prescribed, many patent medi-cines were used, but the pain still got worse. I sent for the Russian Kheumatism Cure, under a cloud of doubts. It was used according to directions for one week, and my wife
