

The Kent News

CHESTERTOWN - JULY 2, 1887

DEMOCRATIC PRIMARIES.

THE Democratic Voters of each election district of Kent county, are requested to meet at their respective polling places on Saturday the 16th of July, at 2 o'clock P.M., for the purpose of selecting Five Delegates from each of the districts of the county, which delegates shall meet in convention in Chestertown on Tuesday, the 19th day of July, at 10½ o'clock A. M., for the purpose of electing Three members of the delegation to the Democratic State Convention which meets in Baltimore on the 22nd day of July, and at which State convention Democratic candidates will be nominated respecting the office of Comptroller of the Treasury and for attorney-general.

CASPER G. WOODALL,
SAMUEL CACY,
JOHN BRICE,
State Central Committee for Kent County.

General News Notes.

A fire in the Chicago Packing and Provisions Company's property last Sunday caused a loss of $1,250,000.

Methodists of Baltimore, Washington, Harrisburg, and other places will hold an assembly at Perryman July 20 and 21.

The County Agricultural Society appointed a committee to examine the State code now being prepared by Mr. John L. Poe.

Representative Compton says he is not an aspirant for gubernatorial honors and is quite satisfied to remain in Congress.

Hon. E. E. Jackson and Wm. H. Jackson, of Salisbury, Md., lumber dealers, have bought 40,000 acres of land in Alabama at $1.25 an acre.

The old drug house of Coleman & Rogers, which in its palmy days was one of the best known establishments in Baltimore, has been sold at auction.

Ten Brock, the thoroughbred racer, died at the home of his owner in Woodford county, Ky., on Tuesday. Mr. Harper was offered $9,000 for him last week.

William K. Vanderbilt will start on a voyage around the world in his yacht, leaving New York, with his family and guests, on the morning of the 24 of July. The vessel will be across the Atlantic, up the Mediterranean and thence on through the Suez Canal.

At a meeting of the Baltimore county democratic executive committee at Towson on Thursday of last week a resolution was passed unanimously, declaring that Hon. Charles R. Roberts is the choice of Baltimore county as a candidate for the gubernatorial.

The moonlight excursion last Monday evening at the management of a number of young men netted the chartermen 25 cents each, which result was highly satisfactory as it was not a money making scheme by any means. About 175 persons were on board and all seem to have had a joyous time. The Ponoma Trombones and a string band from Baltimore made music for a few minutes.

REPRESENTATIVE T. J. Campbell, of New York, says Cleveland will have no opposition in the Democracy of that State for renomination. Gov. Hill will not be in his way, but will be quite content to accept a nomination for governor, and wait for the presidency until the end of Cleveland's second term.

The executive committee of the Peninsula Press Association held a meeting last Monday to go to the mountains this year, and the time for the excursion will be about the latter part of August, or the beginning of September. There are sixty-one newspapers published on the peninsula.

The Ohio democrats are exhibiting much interest in the democratic convention of that State, which meets at Cleveland on the 21st of June for the nomination of a full State ticket. The county conventions so far held have been largely attended, and expressions of confidence in a democratic victory next fall are general.

That was a wonderful piece of engineering by Mr. Farnsworth and at Holmeburg Junction Sunday. An iron bridge weighing 160 tons, which spans the Pennypack, was moved fifty feet in eleven and one-half minutes, without interrupting travel in the least. Of course, great preparation had to be made for the achievement, but it was remarkable, nevertheless.

A convention composed of delegates representing about 100 assemblies of Knights of Labor of Maryland, met in Baltimore on Monday to formulate laws which the Legislature of the State will be asked in its next session to pass in the interest of members of the order, had a very interesting session. The tone of the address with which the proceedings were opened, says the Sun, was admirable.

Pension Commissioner Black responded to the query: "The President of the United States?" Mr. E. Pennington, of which Senator Hiscock ranted about the "exaltation of the statemen and generals of the rebellion." Another difference between the two orators was that General Black's body bore the scars of eleven wounds received in battle while that of Senator Hiscock bore none. To a man who thinks for himself these things have an obvious interest.

The asylums and grounds are nearly in order to receive the Cecil county indigent insane that will be removed from the State asylum at Spring Grove to it. Dr. Lee, secretary of the State board of lunacy, visited Cherry Hill last week and spoke in high terms of the building. He said it was complete in all its details and gives the county great credit. It is modeled and constructed after the latest improved system, and everything has been done looking to the comfort and quiet of the inmates.

Hon. James L. Bartol, who died last evening, was six years old, and his family, chief judge of the Court of Appeals of Maryland, and for twenty-six years a member of the tribunal. Judge Bartol has been an invalid ever since his resignation in 1883 on account of ill-health, and has not left his room since December 12, 1885, over a year ago. He suffered from bronchitis which gradually involved the lungs, and his death is due to that cause. Judge Bartol was born June 5, 1813, at Havre de Grace.

President Cleveland is to visit Philadelphia next September during the progress of the ceremonies incident to the constitutional convention celebration. Mr. George W. Childs extended an invitation to the President through Major John Carson, Washington correspondent of the Public Ledger, requesting Mr. Cleveland to be his guest upon the occasion of the visit. The President accepted, and said that while in Philadelphia he did not intend to be exclusive of or keep himself aloof from the people. He would regard the visit as a public affair.

The announcement was made in Baltimore financial circles on Tuesday that President Robert Garrett has exercised the option and taken and paid for the stock of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company held by the Johns Hopkins University trustees. There were about 15,000 shares of the stock, which Mr. Garrett took at $150, the price fixed in the option, and the total amount involved was between $2,500,000 and $3,000,000. The stock was taken on account of the Baltimore & Ohio deal, and it is the largest single financial transaction in the securities of that railroad which has occurred in a long while.

LOCAL MATTERS.

WEDNESDAY THIRTEEN began in Kent yesterday and fine weather continues will be general next week.

The last quarterly meeting of the Kent County Teachers' Association was held in Chestertown yesterday.

The 4th—Next Monday is the "glorious fourth." Chestertown will observe the day about as usual—suspension business, fishing, sleeping, Tolchester, &c.

At the meeting of the County Temperance Alliance held in St. Paul's Hall last Tuesday morning a number of resolutions were passed which will be found elsewhere.

Mr. Josiah Ringold is said to have been the most popular in this neighborhood. He had three or four self-blinders at work in the same field one day and the greatest difficulty experienced in getting them to do the work so immense was the growth of straw.

"COMMENCEMENT BALL"—A ball was held in St. Paul's Hall last Wednesday evening under the auspices of students of Washington College and others. It was well attended and the dancing was kept up till a late hour.

LAW SALE.—R. D. Hyatt, Esq., is trustee will offer at the Voshell House on Tuesday night at the same hour as the sale of the County Temperance Alliance.

Representative Compton says he is not an aspirant for gubernatorial honors and is quite satisfied to remain in Congress.

Hon. E. E. Jackson and Wm. H. Jackson, of Salisbury, Md., lumber dealers, have bought 40,000 acres of land in Alabama at $1.25 an acre.

The old drug house of Coleman & Rogers, which in its palmy days was one of the best known establishments in Baltimore, has been sold at auction.

Ten Brock, the thoroughbred racer, died at the home of his owner in Woodford county, Ky., on Tuesday. Mr. Harper was offered $9,000 for him last week.

William K. Vanderbilt will start on a voyage around the world in his yacht, leaving New York, with his family and guests, on the morning of the 24 of July. The vessel will be across the Atlantic, up the Mediterranean and thence on through the Suez Canal.

At a meeting of the Baltimore county democratic executive committee at Towson on Thursday of last week a resolution was passed unanimously, declaring that Hon. Charles R. Roberts is the choice of Baltimore county as a candidate for the gubernatorial.

The moonlight excursion last Monday evening at the management of a number of young men netted the chartermen 25 cents each, which result was highly satisfactory as it was not a money making scheme by any means. About 175 persons were on board and all seem to have had a joyous time. The Ponoma Trombones and a string band from Baltimore made music for a few minutes.

REPRESENTATIVE T. J. Campbell, of New York, says Cleveland will have no opposition in the Democracy of that State for renomination. Gov. Hill will not be in his way, but will be quite content to accept a nomination for governor, and wait for the presidency until the end of Cleveland's second term.

The executive committee of the Peninsula Press Association held a meeting last Monday to go to the mountains this year, and the time for the excursion will be about the latter part of August, or the beginning of September. There are sixty-one newspapers published on the peninsula.

The Ohio democrats are exhibiting much interest in the democratic convention of that State, which meets at Cleveland on the 21st of June for the nomination of a full State ticket. The county conventions so far held have been largely attended, and expressions of confidence in a democratic victory next fall are general.

PLEASURE TRIP IN A CANOE.—John L. Webb, Fred Gerker, Jr., Will Beck, Hines Thomas and Clarence Perkins left Chestertown on Tuesday morning in Mr. Kelley's large canoe "James A. Pearce," for the Bay. They took along an ample store of provisions and propose to be away till after the Fourth of July. They will probably visit several points on the bay, including Tolchester.

MISS GRACE LENORE, of Ohio, made her last balloon ascent at Tolchester on Monday, but she came near making her last one a few days before. After going up some distance the balloon started out towards the bay. The 2,000 persons who witnessed the freak became very much excited. They are a copper battleaxe or hatchet and a copper spear, the latter about a foot long. The axe weighs 20 pounds, wooden, on Mr. J. T. Green's farm in Fishing Valley, near Still Pond creek, recently pulled up under a tree in a piece of newly cleared ground, two interesting relics which have excited the curiosity of all who have seen them and led to much speculation. They are a copper battleaxe or hatchet and a copper spear, the latter about a foot long. The axe weighs 20 pounds, wooden, on Mr. J. T. Green's farm in Fishing Valley, near Still Pond creek, recently pulled up under a tree in a piece of newly cleared ground, two interesting relics which have excited the curiosity of all who have seen them and led to much speculation. They are a copper battleaxe or hatchet and a copper spear, the latter about a foot long. The axe weighs 20 pounds, wooden, on Mr. J. T. Green's farm in Fishing Valley, near Still Pond creek, recently pulled up under a tree in a piece of newly cleared ground, two interesting relics which have excited the curiosity of all who have seen them and led to much speculation. They are a copper battleaxe or hatchet and a copper spear, the latter about a foot long. The axe weighs 20 pounds, wooden, on Mr. J. T. Green's farm in Fishing Valley, near Still Pond creek, recently pulled up under a tree in a piece of newly cleared ground, two interesting relics which have excited the curiosity of all who have seen them and led to much speculation. They are a copper battleaxe or hatchet and a copper spear, the latter about a foot long. The axe weighs 20 pounds, wooden, on Mr. J. T. Green's farm in Fishing Valley, near Still Pond creek, recently pulled up under a tree in a piece of newly cleared ground, two interesting relics which have excited the curiosity of all who have seen them and led to much speculation. They are a copper battleaxe or hatchet and a copper spear, the latter about a foot long. The axe weighs 20 pounds, wooden, on Mr. J. T. Green's farm in Fishing Valley, near Still Pond creek, recently pulled up under a tree in a piece of newly cleared ground, two interesting relics which have excited the curiosity of all who have seen them and led to much speculation. They are a copper battleaxe or hatchet and a copper spear, the latter about a foot long. The axe weighs 20 pounds, wooden, on Mr. J. T. Green's farm in Fishing Valley, near Still Pond creek, recently pulled up under a tree in a piece of newly cleared ground, two interesting relics which have excited the curiosity of all who have seen them and led to much speculation. They are a copper battleaxe or hatchet and a copper spear, the latter about a foot long. The axe weighs 20 pounds, wooden, on Mr. J. T. Green's farm in Fishing Valley, near Still Pond creek, recently pulled up under a tree in a piece of newly cleared ground, two interesting relics which have excited the curiosity of all who have seen them and led to much speculation. They are a copper battleaxe or hatchet and a copper spear, the latter about a foot long. The axe weighs 20 pounds, wooden, on Mr. J. T. Green's farm in Fishing Valley, near Still Pond creek, recently pulled up under a tree in a piece of newly cleared ground, two interesting relics which have excited the curiosity of all who have seen them and led to much speculation. They are a copper battleaxe or hatchet and a copper spear, the latter about a foot long. The axe weighs 20 pounds, wooden, on Mr. J. T. Green's farm in Fishing Valley, near Still Pond creek, recently pulled up under a tree in a piece of newly cleared ground, two interesting relics which have excited the curiosity of all who have seen them and led to much speculation. They are a copper battleaxe or hatchet and a copper spear, the latter about a foot long. The axe weighs 20 pounds, wooden, on Mr. J. T. Green's farm in Fishing Valley, near Still Pond creek, recently pulled up under a tree in a piece of newly cleared ground, two interesting relics which have excited the curiosity of all who have seen them and led to much speculation. They are a copper battleaxe or hatchet and a copper spear, the latter about a foot long. The axe weighs 20 pounds, wooden, on Mr. J. T. Green's farm in Fishing Valley, near Still Pond creek, recently pulled up under a tree in a piece of newly cleared ground, two interesting relics which have excited the curiosity of all who have seen them and led to much speculation. They are a copper battleaxe or hatchet and a copper spear, the latter about a foot long. The axe weighs 20 pounds, wooden, on Mr. J. T. Green's farm in Fishing Valley, near Still Pond creek, recently pulled up under a tree in a piece of newly cleared ground, two interesting relics which have excited the curiosity of all who have seen them and led to much speculation. They are a copper battleaxe or hatchet and a copper spear, the latter about a foot long. The axe weighs 20 pounds, wooden, on Mr. J. T. Green's farm in Fishing Valley, near Still Pond creek, recently pulled up under a tree in a piece of newly cleared ground, two interesting relics which have excited the curiosity of all who have seen them and led to much speculation. They are a copper battleaxe or hatchet and a copper spear, the latter about a foot long. The axe weighs 20 pounds, wooden, on Mr. J. T. Green's farm in Fishing Valley, near Still Pond creek, recently pulled up under a tree in a piece of newly cleared ground, two interesting relics which have excited the curiosity of all who have seen them and led to much speculation. They are a copper battleaxe or hatchet and a copper spear, the latter about a foot long. The axe weighs 20 pounds, wooden, on Mr. J. T. Green's farm in Fishing Valley, near Still Pond creek, recently pulled up under a tree in a piece of newly cleared ground, two interesting relics which have excited the curiosity of all who have seen them and led to much speculation. They are a copper battleaxe or hatchet and a copper spear, the latter about a foot long. The axe weighs 20 pounds, wooden, on Mr. J. T. Green's farm in Fishing Valley, near Still Pond creek, recently pulled up under a tree in a piece of newly cleared ground, two interesting relics which have excited the curiosity of all who have seen them and led to much speculation. They are a copper battleaxe or hatchet and a copper spear, the latter about a foot long. The axe weighs 20 pounds, wooden, on Mr. J. T. Green's farm in Fishing Valley, near Still Pond creek, recently pulled up under a tree in a piece of newly cleared ground, two interesting relics which have excited the curiosity of all who have seen them and led to much speculation. They are a copper battleaxe or hatchet and a copper spear, the latter about a foot long. The axe weighs 20 pounds, wooden, on Mr. J. T. Green's farm in Fishing Valley, near Still Pond creek, recently pulled up under a tree in a piece of newly cleared ground, two interesting relics which have excited the curiosity of all who have seen them and led to much speculation. They are a copper battleaxe or hatchet and a copper spear, the latter about a foot long. The axe weighs 20 pounds, wooden, on Mr. J. T. Green's farm in Fishing Valley, near Still Pond creek, recently pulled up under a tree in a piece of newly cleared ground, two interesting relics which have excited the curiosity of all who have seen them and led to much speculation. They are a copper battleaxe or hatchet and a copper spear, the latter about a foot long. The axe weighs 20 pounds, wooden, on Mr. J. T. Green's farm in Fishing Valley, near Still Pond creek, recently pulled up under a tree in a piece of newly cleared ground, two interesting relics which have excited the curiosity of all who have seen them and led to much speculation. They are a copper battleaxe or hatchet and a copper spear, the latter about a foot long. The axe weighs 20 pounds, wooden, on Mr. J. T. Green's farm in Fishing Valley, near Still Pond creek, recently pulled up under a tree in a piece of newly cleared ground, two interesting relics which have excited the curiosity of all who have seen them and led to much speculation. They are a copper battleaxe or hatchet and a copper spear, the latter about a foot long. The axe weighs 20 pounds, wooden, on Mr. J. T. Green's farm in Fishing Valley, near Still Pond creek, recently pulled up under a tree in a piece of newly cleared ground, two interesting relics which have excited the curiosity of all who have seen them and led to much speculation. They are a copper battleaxe or hatchet and a copper spear, the latter about a foot long. The axe weighs 20 pounds, wooden, on Mr. J. T. Green's farm in Fishing Valley, near Still Pond creek, recently pulled up under a tree in a piece of newly cleared ground, two interesting relics which have excited the curiosity of all who have seen them and led to much speculation. They are a copper battleaxe or hatchet and a copper spear, the latter about a foot long. The axe weighs 20 pounds, wooden, on Mr. J. T. Green's farm in Fishing Valley, near Still Pond creek, recently pulled up under a tree in a piece of newly cleared ground, two interesting relics which have excited the curiosity of all who have seen them and led to much speculation. They are a copper battleaxe or hatchet and a copper spear, the latter about a foot long. The axe weighs 20 pounds, wooden, on Mr. J. T. Green's farm in Fishing Valley, near Still Pond creek, recently pulled up under a tree in a piece of newly cleared ground, two interesting relics which have excited the curiosity of all who have seen them and led to much speculation. They are a copper battleaxe or hatchet and a copper spear, the latter about a foot long. The axe weighs 20 pounds, wooden, on Mr. J. T. Green's farm in Fishing Valley, near Still Pond creek, recently pulled up under a tree in a piece of newly cleared ground, two interesting relics which have excited the curiosity of all who have seen them and led to much speculation. They are a copper battleaxe or hatchet and a copper spear, the latter about a foot long. The axe weighs 20 pounds, wooden, on Mr. J. T. Green's farm in Fishing Valley, near Still Pond creek, recently pulled up under a tree in a piece of newly cleared ground, two interesting relics which have excited the curiosity of all who have seen them and led to much speculation. They are a copper battleaxe or hatchet and a copper spear, the latter about a foot long. The axe weighs 20 pounds, wooden, on Mr. J. T. Green's farm in Fishing Valley, near Still Pond creek, recently pulled up under a tree in a piece of newly cleared ground, two interesting relics which have excited the curiosity of all who have seen them and led to much speculation. They are a copper battleaxe or hatchet and a copper spear, the latter about a foot long. The axe weighs 20 pounds, wooden, on Mr. J. T. Green's farm in Fishing Valley, near Still Pond creek, recently pulled up under a tree in a piece of newly cleared ground, two interesting relics which have excited the curiosity of all who have seen them and led to much speculation. They are a copper battleaxe or hatchet and a copper spear, the latter about a foot long. The axe weighs 20 pounds, wooden, on Mr. J. T. Green's farm in Fishing Valley, near Still Pond creek, recently pulled up under a tree in a piece of newly cleared ground, two interesting relics which have excited the curiosity of all who have seen them and led to much speculation. They are a copper battleaxe or hatchet and a copper spear, the latter about a foot long. The axe weighs 20 pounds, wooden, on Mr. J. T. Green's farm in Fishing Valley, near Still Pond creek, recently pulled up under a tree in a piece of newly cleared ground, two interesting relics which have excited the curiosity of all who have seen them and led to much speculation. They are a copper battleaxe or hatchet and a copper spear, the latter about a foot long. The axe weighs 20 pounds, wooden, on Mr. J. T. Green's farm in Fishing Valley, near Still Pond creek, recently pulled up under a tree in a piece of newly cleared ground, two interesting relics which have excited the curiosity of all who have seen them and led to much speculation. They are a copper battleaxe or hatchet and a copper spear, the latter about a foot long. The axe weighs 20 pounds, wooden, on Mr. J. T. Green's farm in Fishing Valley, near Still Pond creek, recently pulled up under a tree in a piece of newly cleared ground, two interesting relics which have excited the curiosity of all who have seen them and led to much speculation. They are a copper battleaxe or hatchet and a copper spear, the latter about a foot long. The axe weighs 20 pounds, wooden, on Mr. J. T. Green's farm in Fishing Valley, near Still Pond creek, recently pulled up under a tree in a piece of newly cleared ground, two interesting relics which have excited the curiosity of all who have seen them and led to much speculation. They are a copper battleaxe or hatchet and a copper spear, the latter about a foot long. The axe weighs 20 pounds, wooden, on Mr. J. T. Green's farm in Fishing Valley, near Still Pond creek, recently pulled up under a tree in a piece of newly cleared ground, two interesting relics which have excited the curiosity of all who have seen them and led to much speculation. They are a copper battleaxe or hatchet and a copper spear, the latter about a foot long. The axe weighs 20 pounds, wooden, on Mr. J. T. Green's farm in Fishing Valley, near Still Pond creek, recently pulled up under a tree in a piece of newly cleared ground, two interesting relics which have excited the curiosity of all who have seen them and led to much speculation. They are a copper battleaxe or hatchet and a copper spear, the latter about a foot long. The axe weighs 20 pounds, wooden, on Mr. J. T. Green's farm in Fishing Valley, near Still Pond creek, recently pulled up under a tree in a piece of newly cleared ground, two interesting relics which have excited the curiosity of all who have seen them and led to much speculation. They are a copper battleaxe or hatchet and a copper spear, the latter about a foot long. The axe weighs 20 pounds, wooden, on Mr. J. T. Green's farm in Fishing Valley, near Still Pond creek, recently pulled up under a tree in a piece of newly cleared ground, two interesting relics which have excited the curiosity of all who have seen them and led to much speculation. They are a copper battleaxe or hatchet and a copper spear, the latter about a foot long. The axe weighs 20 pounds, wooden, on Mr. J. T. Green's farm in Fishing Valley, near Still Pond creek, recently pulled up under a tree in a piece of newly cleared ground, two interesting relics which have excited the curiosity of all who have seen them and led to much speculation. They are a copper battleaxe or hatchet and a copper spear, the latter about a foot long. The axe weighs 20 pounds, wooden, on Mr. J. T. Green's farm in Fishing Valley, near Still Pond creek, recently pulled up under a tree in a piece of newly cleared ground, two interesting relics which have excited the curiosity of all who have seen them and led to much speculation. They are a copper battleaxe or hatchet and a copper spear, the latter about a foot long. The axe weighs 20 pounds, wooden, on Mr. J. T. Green's farm in Fishing Valley, near Still Pond creek, recently pulled up under a tree in a piece of newly cleared ground, two interesting relics which have excited the curiosity of all who have seen them and led to much speculation. They are a copper battleaxe or hatchet and a copper spear, the latter about a foot long. The axe weighs 20 pounds, wooden, on Mr. J. T. Green's farm in Fishing Valley, near Still Pond creek, recently pulled up under a tree in a piece of newly cleared ground, two interesting relics which have excited the curiosity of all who have seen them and led to much speculation. They are a copper battleaxe or hatchet and a copper spear, the latter about a foot long. The axe weighs 20 pounds, wooden, on Mr. J. T. Green's farm in Fishing Valley, near Still Pond creek, recently pulled up under a tree in a piece of newly cleared ground, two interesting relics which have excited the curiosity of all who have seen them and led to much speculation. They are a copper battleaxe or hatchet and a copper spear, the latter about a foot long. The axe weighs 20 pounds, wooden, on Mr. J. T