

Kent News.CHESTERTOWN:
SATURDAY..... MAR. 31, 1888.DEFEAT OF THE FRUIT MEASUREMENT BILL.A Spicy Passage Between County and City
Members in the House.

Mr. Thompson's bill providing for a uniform measurement for truck and vegetables was taken up in the House of Delegates on the 22d inst. The correspondent of the Baltimore Sun gives the following synopsis of the debate:

Mr. Fitzgerald offered an amendment to provide that the uniform measurement apply only to peaches and tomatoes. The amendment did not specify the dimensions of the box in which peaches and tomatoes are to be packed.

Mr. Purcell proposed to postpone the bill indefinitely.

Mr. Thompson opposed the motion, stating that the members of the House were not acquainted with the provisions of the amendment.

Mr. Fitzgerald wanted the amendment thoroughly understood by the House, and he moved to postpone its consideration until Friday, by which time the House could acquire more information. It has been said that he had no personal interest in it, and that the standard of measurement as suggested by the bill was desired both by the seller and purchaser.

Mr. Thompson said that he opposed the bill in its original shape, and he found nothing to recommend it in its amended shape. "It is an unscientific measure, like all other measures now existing, it has no originality in that corner," pointing to that portion of the House occupied by the city delegation.

Mr. Baker of Kent made his first speech of the session opposing to the measure. He said: "As a producer of fruit I feel an interest in this motion. We want the privilege of selling our fruit at pleasure. If you pass this bill you will do the same to the fruit from Baltimore to Philadelphia, where we can sell it as we choose."

Mr. Purcell said that it was not as good as the bill in its original shape.

Mr. Thompson's bill was defeated.

Mr. Purcell moved to strike out the entire clause of the bill. The motion prevailed.

ONE MONOPOLY PRODUCES ANOTHER.

High tariffs and artificial monopolies go hand in hand.

Mr. Clegg, in his article in the Baltimore Sun of Wednesday, which is devoted chiefly to setting forth the truth that artificial monopolies not created by law have their support in the protection given to them by the tariff.

The tariff facilitates the putting up prices—the one thing dear to all monopolies—but a low tariff does not necessarily destroy a combination to place the profit. A low tariff will cheapen a great many articles used by the poor, and a great many articles used by the rich.

Mr. Clegg says: "They will want us to carry our eggs to the city to lay eggs."

Mr. Clegg thought the measure a combination, and similar to the inspection law for tobacco, which has been so obnoxious to Southern Maryland, and which compelled Southern Maryland to give up the right to tax Baltimore. "After awhile," he concluded, "they will want us to carry our eggs to the city to lay eggs."

Mr. Clegg said: "As a producer of fruit I feel an interest in this motion. We want the privilege of selling our fruit at pleasure. If you pass this bill you will do the same to the fruit from Baltimore to Philadelphia, where we can sell it as we choose."

Mr. Purcell said that it was not as good as the bill in its original shape.

Mr. Purcell moved to strike out the entire clause of the bill. The motion prevailed.

ONE MONOPOLY PRODUCES ANOTHER.

High tariffs and artificial monopolies go hand in hand.

Mr. Clegg, in his article in the Baltimore Sun of Wednesday, which is devoted chiefly to setting forth the truth that artificial monopolies not created by law have their support in the protection given to them by the tariff.

The tariff facilitates the putting up prices—the one thing dear to all monopolies—but a low tariff does not necessarily destroy a combination to place the profit. A low tariff will cheapen a great many articles used by the poor, and a great many articles used by the rich.

Mr. Clegg says: "They will want us to carry our eggs to the city to lay eggs."

Mr. Clegg thought the measure a combination, and similar to the inspection law for tobacco, which has been so obnoxious to Southern Maryland, and which compelled Southern Maryland to give up the right to tax Baltimore. "After awhile," he concluded, "they will want us to carry our eggs to the city to lay eggs."

Mr. Clegg said: "As a producer of fruit I feel an interest in this motion. We want the privilege of selling our fruit at pleasure. If you pass this bill you will do the same to the fruit from Baltimore to Philadelphia, where we can sell it as we choose."

Mr. Purcell said that it was not as good as the bill in its original shape.

Mr. Purcell moved to strike out the entire clause of the bill. The motion prevailed.

ONE MONOPOLY PRODUCES ANOTHER.

High tariffs and artificial monopolies go hand in hand.

Mr. Clegg, in his article in the Baltimore Sun of Wednesday, which is devoted chiefly to setting forth the truth that artificial monopolies not created by law have their support in the protection given to them by the tariff.

The tariff facilitates the putting up prices—the one thing dear to all monopolies—but a low tariff does not necessarily destroy a combination to place the profit. A low tariff will cheapen a great many articles used by the poor, and a great many articles used by the rich.

Mr. Clegg says: "They will want us to carry our eggs to the city to lay eggs."

Mr. Clegg thought the measure a combination, and similar to the inspection law for tobacco, which has been so obnoxious to Southern Maryland, and which compelled Southern Maryland to give up the right to tax Baltimore. "After awhile," he concluded, "they will want us to carry our eggs to the city to lay eggs."

Mr. Clegg said: "As a producer of fruit I feel an interest in this motion. We want the privilege of selling our fruit at pleasure. If you pass this bill you will do the same to the fruit from Baltimore to Philadelphia, where we can sell it as we choose."

Mr. Purcell said that it was not as good as the bill in its original shape.

Mr. Purcell moved to strike out the entire clause of the bill. The motion prevailed.

ONE MONOPOLY PRODUCES ANOTHER.

High tariffs and artificial monopolies go hand in hand.

Mr. Clegg, in his article in the Baltimore Sun of Wednesday, which is devoted chiefly to setting forth the truth that artificial monopolies not created by law have their support in the protection given to them by the tariff.

The tariff facilitates the putting up prices—the one thing dear to all monopolies—but a low tariff does not necessarily destroy a combination to place the profit. A low tariff will cheapen a great many articles used by the poor, and a great many articles used by the rich.

Mr. Clegg says: "They will want us to carry our eggs to the city to lay eggs."

Mr. Clegg thought the measure a combination, and similar to the inspection law for tobacco, which has been so obnoxious to Southern Maryland, and which compelled Southern Maryland to give up the right to tax Baltimore. "After awhile," he concluded, "they will want us to carry our eggs to the city to lay eggs."

Mr. Clegg said: "As a producer of fruit I feel an interest in this motion. We want the privilege of selling our fruit at pleasure. If you pass this bill you will do the same to the fruit from Baltimore to Philadelphia, where we can sell it as we choose."

Mr. Purcell said that it was not as good as the bill in its original shape.

Mr. Purcell moved to strike out the entire clause of the bill. The motion prevailed.

ONE MONOPOLY PRODUCES ANOTHER.

High tariffs and artificial monopolies go hand in hand.

Mr. Clegg, in his article in the Baltimore Sun of Wednesday, which is devoted chiefly to setting forth the truth that artificial monopolies not created by law have their support in the protection given to them by the tariff.

The tariff facilitates the putting up prices—the one thing dear to all monopolies—but a low tariff does not necessarily destroy a combination to place the profit. A low tariff will cheapen a great many articles used by the poor, and a great many articles used by the rich.

Mr. Clegg says: "They will want us to carry our eggs to the city to lay eggs."

Mr. Clegg thought the measure a combination, and similar to the inspection law for tobacco, which has been so obnoxious to Southern Maryland, and which compelled Southern Maryland to give up the right to tax Baltimore. "After awhile," he concluded, "they will want us to carry our eggs to the city to lay eggs."

Mr. Clegg said: "As a producer of fruit I feel an interest in this motion. We want the privilege of selling our fruit at pleasure. If you pass this bill you will do the same to the fruit from Baltimore to Philadelphia, where we can sell it as we choose."

Mr. Purcell said that it was not as good as the bill in its original shape.

Mr. Purcell moved to strike out the entire clause of the bill. The motion prevailed.

ONE MONOPOLY PRODUCES ANOTHER.

High tariffs and artificial monopolies go hand in hand.

Mr. Clegg, in his article in the Baltimore Sun of Wednesday, which is devoted chiefly to setting forth the truth that artificial monopolies not created by law have their support in the protection given to them by the tariff.

The tariff facilitates the putting up prices—the one thing dear to all monopolies—but a low tariff does not necessarily destroy a combination to place the profit. A low tariff will cheapen a great many articles used by the poor, and a great many articles used by the rich.

Mr. Clegg says: "They will want us to carry our eggs to the city to lay eggs."

Mr. Clegg thought the measure a combination, and similar to the inspection law for tobacco, which has been so obnoxious to Southern Maryland, and which compelled Southern Maryland to give up the right to tax Baltimore. "After awhile," he concluded, "they will want us to carry our eggs to the city to lay eggs."

Mr. Clegg said: "As a producer of fruit I feel an interest in this motion. We want the privilege of selling our fruit at pleasure. If you pass this bill you will do the same to the fruit from Baltimore to Philadelphia, where we can sell it as we choose."

Mr. Purcell said that it was not as good as the bill in its original shape.

Mr. Purcell moved to strike out the entire clause of the bill. The motion prevailed.

ONE MONOPOLY PRODUCES ANOTHER.

High tariffs and artificial monopolies go hand in hand.

Mr. Clegg, in his article in the Baltimore Sun of Wednesday, which is devoted chiefly to setting forth the truth that artificial monopolies not created by law have their support in the protection given to them by the tariff.

The tariff facilitates the putting up prices—the one thing dear to all monopolies—but a low tariff does not necessarily destroy a combination to place the profit. A low tariff will cheapen a great many articles used by the poor, and a great many articles used by the rich.

Mr. Clegg says: "They will want us to carry our eggs to the city to lay eggs."

Mr. Clegg thought the measure a combination, and similar to the inspection law for tobacco, which has been so obnoxious to Southern Maryland, and which compelled Southern Maryland to give up the right to tax Baltimore. "After awhile," he concluded, "they will want us to carry our eggs to the city to lay eggs."

Mr. Clegg said: "As a producer of fruit I feel an interest in this motion. We want the privilege of selling our fruit at pleasure. If you pass this bill you will do the same to the fruit from Baltimore to Philadelphia, where we can sell it as we choose."

Mr. Purcell said that it was not as good as the bill in its original shape.

Mr. Purcell moved to strike out the entire clause of the bill. The motion prevailed.

To Farmers and Dealers in Kent and Adjoining Counties.W. A. HYLAND,
GALENA, MD.,offers farmers a superior assortment of Economist Chilled Plows!A LARGE LOT
OF
Prime Cypress Fencing
NOW ON HAND.PRICES AND ESTIMATES
FOR—
LUMBER, SHINGLES,
DOORS, SASH, BLINDS,
DOOR and WINDOW FRAMES,
for building purposes, furnished with pleasure.

Do not buy until you have given me an opportunity to figure on your bill.

My stock is SEASONED and WELL MANUFACTURED and embraces every variety of Building Material.

T. W. ELIASON, Jr.
Feb. 18, 1888.Rollers! Rollers!
the BEST on the market and at prices to suit all.A GOOD—Farm Bell, Farm Wagon, Dearborn!Three Thousand Trees and Bames, all the best material. He has the BEST HORSE-SHOER between the two bays. Special attention is given to the making of shoes for horses.He intends making his shop headquarters for Farmers Mechanical Supplies and Tools. He will also make shoes for horses, cattle, sheep, etc.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the horse or animal.

He will make shoes to fit the