GOOD LUCK.

There is a great deal of talk about good luck, and the man who is prospering i generally supposed to be especially favored by the gods, or the planets, or some other mysterious power which everybody acknowledges, but which nobody under-

Now the fact of the matter is that good luck is very likely to come to the individnal who is ready to put his hand to the plow, and not look back. Good luck is will and perseverance and conrage and hope put to work, and kept at work through all discouragement, all failures and besetting obstacles of every kind. Good luck comes to the brave man who fears nothing, not even fate itself, and who

Circumstances are never too strong for this man. If he has disappointments-and who has not?-he steps calmly over them and reaches out after the promised successes which lie in the future, and, taught by his former disastrons experiences, he grasps them and makes them his own.
