UP AND DOWN THE Eastern Shore

Ex-Congressman Fined

Cambridge—Fred A. Britten, former Republican Congressman from Illinois and onetime head of the House Naval Affairs Committee, drew a fine of $5 when arraigned before U. S. District Judge W. Calvin Chestnut in Baltimore on a charge of duck hunting without a Federal stamp. The Ex-Congressman described himself as a 'once-in-a-lifetime hunter" and said he did not know that he had to have a stamp. Britten was a guest of Joseph B. Weaver, Bureau of Marine Navigation head, at the latter's hunting lodge in Dorchester County at the time.

Indian Summer Pranks

Salisbury—Continued warm weather has brought strange sights to Salisbury. Hilary W. Davis has a large apple tree in bloom; Reuben Waller not only has an apple tree in bloom but orange blossoms in his yard; and a Shad Point resident has eaten his second crop of apples from the same tree.

Annulment Sought

Elkton—Contending that she was dazed, helpless and did not consent when led to the altar by Harvord Shoostine on July 7, 1935, Esther Anne Tredwell has docketed suit in the Circuit Court here for an annulment of her marriage. Both are Jews and live in Philadelphia.

Oyster Beds Opened

Crisfield—The oyster beds off Turtle Egg Island in Tangier Sound, closed since the spring of 1935 when they were thoroughly seeded, were thrown open to watermen on Monday. Other developments in the area included the announcment by the War Department that $14,000 has been alloted for the deepening of Big Thoroughfare river from Twitch Cove to Levering Creek.

Tablet for Company "I"

Salisbury—A bronze tablet to the memory of old members of Company "I" of the National Guard who served at the outset of the World War is to be unveiled here on Nov. 21. Col. Amos W. W. Woodcock, who headed the unit when it went to France, will accept the placque from Dr. Joseph T. Herson. Governor Nice is to be among the guests along with General Gaither and General Milton A. Reckord. On the tablet are 174 names.

Again, Brick Thrower

Princess Anne—An unidentified brick thrower who harrassed this community some weeks ago is again up to his old tricks. Mrs. Bernice Kreig luckily escaped injury when a brick came hurtling through her living room window. Neighbors, attracted by her screams, came running but the culprit fled.

Historical Donation

Chestertown—Five barrels of old papers and documents from the collection of the late Chief Judge Joseph A. Wickes have been presented to the Washington College Historical Society by Mrs. Gladys A. Wickes. Included in the collection were letters signed by William Smith founder of the college.

Ban on Gas Stations

Snow Hill—Spurred by a petition signed by 118 residents of Berlin, the Mayor and Council have passed an ordinance prohibiting the erection of a filling station or garage within 200 feet of any church within the corporate limits of the town.

Crisfield the Sanitary

Crisfield—To make this seafood capital a more sanitary city, no new dwellings can be built or old ones remodeled in the lower section of Crisfield below Ninth Street. Stables are banned under a fine of $250 or 30 days in jail. City Attorney John B. Robins and the State Department of Health drew up the regulations.

Asst. Cashier Sentenced

Salisbury—Pleading guilty to charges of making false statements to bank examiners, Mrs. Sadie T. Larmore, 56, longtime employee of the Savings Bank of Nanticoke, has been sentenced to three years in th House of Correction.

Loco Locomotive

Elkton—A steam locomotive on the drop table in the Pennsylvania yard at Perryville started rolling. Before it could be halted it crashed through the brick wall of the roundhouse, stuck its cow-catcher through the outside, wrought damages estimated at $2,000.

Activity in Kent

Chestertown—Things are looking up in Chestertown. Not only is the new postoffice nearing completion but a $30,000 WPA project for courthouse improvements has been approved, a new modern fire house and community center is being sought, and Kent County farmers will pitch in with their picks, shovels and scoops to grade the Kent and Queen Anne's Hospital grounds. Lack of funds had prevented landscaping the hospital grounds.

Ringleader Caught

Elkton—In the arrest of Charles Rhoades at Stricklersville, Pa., Cecil County officers believe they have caught the ring-leader of a band of thieves who have made a series of raids in-this county. Among the thefts for which Rhoades is reported to have confessed were 130 bushels of corn, six sheep and 185 chickens.

Salisburians Rescued

Salisbury—Fears for the safety of three Salisburians adrift overnight in a disabled boat off Deal's Island were set to rest when they finally reached shore with the aid of watermen who saw an undershirt hoisted as a distress signal. The party, comprised of R. W. Allen, John D. C. Roane and Frederick J. Ensor, went fishing Sunday and ran into motor trouble.

Impatient Trapper

Sharptown—Unable to wait for the opening of the muskrat season on January 1, Arlie Langford, well-known hunter's guide, started trapping in late October, was caught by District Deputy Game Warden Wade H. Bedsworth with twelve muskrat pelts at his home here and drew penalties of $60 for illegal possession and $25 for hunting out of season.

thought he might be able to find the fowl. In fact, he said, he was pretty sure that he knew just where it was, but he didn't think its present possessor would give it up unless he got another turkey.

"A dead turkey would be all right," said Mr. Merriman's informant, "because all this guy wanted of the turkey was to eat it."

"Mr. Merirman shuddered. "Let's hurry," he said, "it's almost dinner time.

He stopped at a market and bought a dead turkey and then, be-thinking himself that a man who would kidnap a prize-winning turkey from a turkey show must be a desperate character indeed, stopped at the West Twentieth Street police station and got an escort of two detectives.

"They went to a shop on West Sixteenth Street, the proprietor of which greeted him politely, accepted the dead turkey and turned over the live one. The detectives stepped in and tried to find out something about it, but Mr. Merriman said he no longer was interested in the incident and would press no complaint, even in case of an arrest."

The pullett arrived back at Pioneer Point safe and sound Sunday afternoon.

Incidentally Mr. Moffett, in addition to the bird in question, took three others to the show—an adult male, a cockerel and a hen—and all won first prizes in their classes. Furthermore, entries came from thirteen states which comprise the Northeastern Poultry region.
