COUNCIL CHAMBER,

Annapolis, Sept. 18th, 1828,

The attention of the Levy Courts and county Commissioners of the respective counties of this state, is respectfully requested, to an act of the General Assembly, passed at the last session, directing them to make return to the Executive of the indigent Deaf and Dumb persons in their respective, counties.

The act provides for the education of twenty of the said Deaf and Dumb, in the Pennsylvania institution, and that each county, returning Deaf and Dumb persons, under the act, shall be entitled to have, at least one person sent to the said institution. But in the event of no person being returned for any one or more of the said counties, it is made the duty of His Excellency the Governor, to select from the counties and the city of Baltimore, returning the largest numbers until the number of twenty shall be completed. Only from two counties and the city of Baltimore, have returns under the said act been received; and as it is believed that there are persons in each county, coming within its provision, and the period fixed for making said returns being elapsed before sufficient time had been afforded for that purpose, His Excellency the Governor has not thought proper to exercise the authority of selection from the few returns that have been received, of any more than one from each. He hopes that the respective Levy Courts, and County Commissioners of the several Counties, from which returns have not yet been received, will with as little delay as possible make returns of the persons in their respective counties, coming within the provisions of the said act, that the benevolent intentions of the general assembly may be carried fully into effect.

By order of the Governor.

IMPORTANT DECISION.

A friend has handed us the following notes of proceedings in the court of Common Pleas, by which it will be seen that Judge King has made a decision highly important to insolvents, abrogating the rule by which a man was incarcerated three months for an informality in his petition.

The Common Pleas ended the bulk of their Insolvent business on Saturday last. The whole number of applicants was 207—of whom 47 were opposed; and all but 5 discharged. The number was rather, but not much larger than usual. An important change in the Insolvent Practice of the Court was announced from the Bench by Judge King. It was this; 'in future, objections to mere form shall not be sufficient to dismiss the petition; but the petitioners shall be postponed until the next term, with leave to amend.' The court intimated that they must not be understood, as intending to abrogate the old forms of petitions; but on the contrary, they must be rigidly adhered to; yet if the requisites as to the act of Assembly, as to 'mere form' were not complied with, they would, not take a course which would subject a meritorious applicant to imprisonment, for no fault of his own: but they would adont a middle course by postponing the petition until the next term with an opportunity to amend. FRAUD ON THE POST OFFICE.

We have understood that for some months past, a gang of suspicious gentry has been hanging around our Post Office, the Exchange, &c. We learn that an attempt was made yesterday to obtain possession of funds transmitted thro' the mail to a merchant of this city. A clerk to the mercantile house alluded to applied in the course of the morning for letters for his employers, but not having the change for the postage, retired to procure it. During the short period of his absence, an individual applied for the letters, paid the postage, and received them. Shortly after the boy returned and ascertained that the letters had disappeared, of which fact he gave immediate notice to his employers. One of the letters contained a draft for two thousand dollars on the Mechanics' Bank, and information was immediately given at the Bank, with directions to stop the draft, as also any person presenting it. Scarcely had the information been given when the draft was presented by a person unknown, who was detained until the true owners appeared, when he was arrested, carried to the police office, and fully committed for trial. [N. Y. Gaz.

An opinion delivered by the late lamented James A. Bayard, in the presence of gentlemen now living, who will vouch for its authenticity, shows the light in which he viewed the pretensions of military men for civil offices.—It was at, or prior to, Mr. Jefferson's second election. In conversation with gentlemen of the Federal party, on the qualifications of General Hamilton for the Presidency, Mr. Bayard said, that, in a Government like ours, 'he was decidedly opposed to the principle of appointing a military man to an office purely civil,' and especially to the 'first office' in the country. This was the deliberate opinion of this great civilian and statesman, and who said it, too, in reference to a man, who, although a soldier, was also a most eminent and experienced statesman, which General Jackson notoriously is not.

[Delaware Jour.

The editorial address of a new paper called the Times, published in Petersburg, Va. concludes with a request which subscribers to all papers ought to comply with. It is:—"That no one will lend his paper; and this, if he values his own convenience or cares any thing for our interest, he will not fail to comply with. Should any neighbour prefer so unreasonable a request, send him in return for the empty compliment, the sole recommendation to go and subscribe!"

The borrowing of newspapers is a very unfair and hardly honorable practice. Suppose the principle should be extended, and that people should take it into their heads to borrow the goods and wares of tradesmen, instead of purchasing them—what a pretty pass things would come to. How would a shoe-maker stare if one should ask him for the loan of a pair of boots, saying "that he only wanted to wear them?" Yet people borrow a newspaper; "they only want to read it." For what other purpose is a newspaper published? [N. Y. Gaz.

Capt. Purrington from St. Ubes, Sept. 1st, reports that the place was yet in a very unsettled state, so much so that the merchants, did not consider themselves safe. Several of the nobility had been imprisoned on account of their hostility to King Miguel. A large schr. which did not shew any colors, (supposed a Brazilian,) was cruizing off the port, had taken, and robbed two Portuguese vessels, which had subsequently arrived at St. Ubes, but did not molest vessels of other nations. A report was received that a contest had taken place at Maderia between the adherents of Don Miguel, and those of Don Pedro, in which the latter were completely successful.

St. Augustine, (E. F.) Sept. 24.

THE ORANGE CROP.

The fruit this year is not abundant, being the short crop season. We regret to say that many of the orange groves will not yield even a short supply; the fruit of many of them being infected by a disease (perhaps the Dengue) which has proved very destructive.

The fruit now begins to ripen very fast, and in a week or two will be fit for export. If dealers abroad were to send well assorted cargoes of provisions and other articles of domestic use, exchanges could be effected at fair prices.
