One instance in particular serves to illustrate Mr. Warfield's "independence" and his claim now on the independent vote. It happened in 1886 white he was President of the Senate. A bill came up for consideration which the House had passed. Mr. Warfield, properly instructed, came down from his throne and spoke eloquently against the bill, and, so great was the power of his winsome voice that the bill was defeated. During the night, however, the 7 Bobbitt Chemical Co., corporation in whose favor the bill had been introduced, sent down the HON.
