STORM HITS KENT

Growing Crops Much Hurt—Boats Damaged—Very High Tides—Telephone and Telegraph Systems Deranged.

Kent County and in fact all the East experienced one of the worst storms on Wednesday morning that has swept this section for many months.

The wind at times attained a cyclonic velocity and the rain fell in torrents. Reports from all sections of Kent indicate that the damage done to growing crops will amount to thousands of dollars. Corn was flattened and some farmers think was damaged one-fourth. Fruit was shaken from the trees, especially apples. The tomato vines were also torn some but not greatly damaged. A number of shade trees and small sheds were demolished.

Along the water courses the damage by high tide and heavy wind was severe. At Chestertown the water overflowed the wharves and flooded the cellars of most of the houses on Water street. At the home of Mrs. B. F. Fleming the large shade tree in her back yard was blown over and grape vines and fences damaged. Scores of small boats were damaged and the large 35 horse-power boat of the Annapolis Dredge Co. was a total wreck by colliding with the pile driver and Chester River bride. The bridge also was somewhat damaged. The Peerless Fertilizer Co. and W. S & & A. M. Culp's factory also suffered slight damage. All along Chester River and Chesapeake Bay small boats were sunk and in some cases are a total loss.

The tide was not quite as high as the record.

Telephone, electric light and telegraph service was interupted for a few hours, but the managers all put extra men to work and soon had nearly all wires at work.

Hundreds of limbs were broken from shade and fruit trees.

The Seventh Day Adventist tent at Worton was blown down and wrecked the organ, chairs, dishes, etc., blown areund. The tent pole and canvas fell on the Preacher, wife and son and they had to seek shelter at 2 in the morning at the home of Mr. Sam'l Wallis, nearby.

Every county on the Eastern Shore was visited by the storm and corn, fruit and truck damaged.

Baltimore's water front and nearly all sections of State felt the storm.

At Rock Hall, Quaker Neck and Cliff City a number of small boats were sunk but no great damage done. At Tolchester the storm did considerable damage to the Park and the wharf. The lemonade stand on wharf was upset and other injury done.

Storm at Betterton.

At Betterton the storm practically submerged the entire beach and the ground floors of all the resorts were inundated, the damage running into several thousand dollars.

The Tolchester Company's pier was under water and at times the waves broke over it higher than a man's head. All the boats at Betterton had been moved up the Sassafras river.

Betterton experienced a deluge. The Tolchester pier was lifted entirely from its pilings and only the railroad tracks kept the planks together and prevented them from drifting out into the river. Merchandise stored on the pier floated away and thousands of feet of lumber, belonging to Howard Turner, which was piled on the shore started on a voyage up the Sassafras. The bowling alleys, the bath houses and the lower floor of the Chesapeake House were inundated.

On land trees were struck by lightning and uprooted and crashed directly through the roof of a house, cutting it in two pieces and continuing on through the house until it rested on the ground floor.

Several large bugeyes were ashore off Poole's Island and nearly every vessel he encountered bore signs of a battle with the elements.

LIGHTNING PRANKS

At the home of Mr. I. R. Leaverton, near Lankford, lightning played some peculiar pranks on Sunday evening. Miss Anna Leaverton was sitting in the third story and the lightning after hitting the two windows and roof went into the room and shocked her and burned three holes in the stocking on her foot.

Lightning struck a tree in front of the lot of Mr. A. Parks Rasin on Washington avenue Sunday afternoon during the severe electrical storm.

Mr. Frank Skirven's mail box and several other mail boxes were struck by lightning between the Almshouse and Fairlee Sunday afternson, one being knocked from its post.

At Mr. T. T. E. Grantlin's, near Kennedyville, the lightning played havoc with the trees near his house but did no damage to buildings in the storm of Monday night.

Lightning struck the house of Mr. Chas. Norris, of near Lynch, and damaged it somewhat.
