COMMENCEMENT

And now we come to Commencement, that "day of days" for the teens. With what glorious feelings of school work well done they are filled; what thrills for the adventures ahead. For many of them, this is the end of school days, and they must step off into the beginning of the responsibilities of life. For some there will be higher training, in college or university or business school. But whatever the next step is to be, each boy and each girl is aflame with the light of a shining goal; high ideals, great resolutions; mighty deeds to be accomplished. Let no one discourage them; let no one hold them back. Life would grow drear indeed without the stimulation of these youthful dreams and longings. Rather let us do our best to help them fulfil their desires; let us urge them on when they begin to weary of the fight; reassure them when they begin to doubt; strengthen them when they begin to weaken; praise them when they succeed, and comfort them when they fail. And just for a day, as they are in the midst of their glory, look back to the days when we walked trembling with ecstasy tangular shaped with either hip or be converted into a library or den across a mile-wide stage to receive the coveted beribboned gable roof. Inside the floor-plan ar without much trouble. diploma. Remember the ideals to which we pledged ourselves, rangement is practically the same. The two rear bedrooms are not as the high places we glimpsed. We have gone far since those who prefer the gable roof large as those just described, but are days. Some of us have gone onward by mighty strides; others type, the house shown here will post ample for the needs of a family and have fallen by the way. But not one of us has kept on the road of those substantial, solid buildings important to build in enough winwe saw in those dreams. Let us start again with these young that radia's a feeling of roominess dow space in the modern home. The people. Let it be a commencement for us, too, a renewal of and complete comfort.
