HIS ROMANCE EXPLODED

Jealousy Silences Wedding Bells For Joseph Seymour.

"Honest t' goodness an' I hope I may die if I didn't expect t' marry Seymour when I got my weddin' clothes. Yes, sir, I got a white satin gown, a lace veil an' a court train. But that don't say I'll never use 'em. Seymour ain't the only man in the world."

So said Mrs. King Agnew, 815 East Eager street. Mrs. Agnew, it had been announced, was to have married Joseph Seymour, of 1006 Wilcox St., yesterday afternoon and have had a wedding reception last night—but she didn't. The late Mr. Agnew was a steeplejack who was killed by a hundred-foot fall from the smokestock of the W. W. Boyer Can Company's plant at Canton, November 26, last. He is the man who painted the Chestertown M. E. Church Cross and steeple woodwork.

"You see, it was this way," explained Mrs. Agnew, "I promised my husband—an' a better man never lived—I ain't sayin' this because he's dead, it true—well, I promised him I'd marry right away again t' keep the home an' the children together. So I got engaged to Seymour New Year's Day.. I didn't know what he was like then, but I've found out.

Celebration His Waterloo.

"The man that gets me has got to keep travelin'. I like life, I do. Seymour, he was about 20 years older than me, an' he just expected me to sit around lookin' at him all the time. Believe me, when I study anything as intent as that it's got to be something worth studying! There's the picture of my first husband up there. He was a handsome man. Well, Saturday night we was havin' a celebration here, a lot of young people and my intended. The player piano there was goin'—Seymour give it to me an' I'm goin' to keep it, too, to make up for what I've gone through—well, the pi-ano was goin', an' we all had somethin' to drink—you know, to celebrate—an' we was dancin'.

"I was dancin' with one of the boys an' I suddenly had a faintin' spell. We both fell over on the pi-ano stool. An maybe Seymour didn't get mad! Gee whizz! He ordered 'em all out of the house—my house, mind you! An' it only five days before the weddin'! Well, I was that mad I couldn't say anything. After they was all gone Seymour, he drew me on the pi-ano stool beside him an' put his arm aroun' me, an' he said:

"'Darlin', it seems like a dream that we're goin' to be married.' An' I said: 'It is a dream, we ain't.' An' that was all there was to it."

Neighbor Helps Out.

Maybe yau think it's all," interposed a friendly neighbor who was helping Mrs. Agnew get ready for the reception, "but I got more to add to that story. When Seymour thought he was goin' to be married an' come here to live, he give up his room where he was stayin' the end of the week, you know, so as not to have another week's rent to pay, an' he asked if he could stay at my place an' keep his things there until he was married an' could come over here proper. Well, now he ain't goin' to be married, an' he ain't left my place, an' he asked for three boiled eggs for his breakfast this mornin'."

Reception Held, Anyway.

As Mrs. Agnew's plans seem so uncertain, at least 200 guests invited to the wedding, which was to have been at St. John's Catholic Church, gathered there yesterday afternoon, just in case she changed her mind again. But she didn't. However, rather than disappoint the 75 friends invited to the reception last night she had it just the same, minus Mr. Seymour. And she wore her wedding gown and her diamond ring, another gift of Seymour, and the player piano played and Mrs. King Agnew could have as many fainting spells as she liked—"without any man thinkin' he can boss me—King Agnew didn't an' I guess nobody else can!"

LIVE SUBJECTS DISCUSSED

Kent County Pomona Grange Met At Fairlee Last Saturday.

The Kent County Pomona Grange met Saturday, January 18, at Fairlee, in the P. of H. Hall. Owing to unfavorable condition of weather and roads members were late in gathering, but some routine business was transacted before luncheon, also the annual election of officers was held. While a regular dinner had not been promised everybody rising from the table felt it should not have been more elaborate. After a recess for one hour, work was resumed, officers were installed. Then followed a general discussion of roads conditions, especially State-aid roads already built and State roads partly built, notably the one leading to Rock Hall, has been practically impassible. This is the third winter and daily growing worse.

Owing to war conditions absorbing the attention and interest of Grangers as well as other good citizens, there was a lag in our work last year, but now that we are turning to normal conditions again our people were as keen to their interests as ever and the meeting, both business and literary, was bright and snappy throughout.

This Pomona Grange composed of representative citizens of all parties and creeds from the Mason and Dixon line to Rock Hall and from river to bay is truly a representative body and entitled to be heard on subjects pertaining to the best interests of the whole country.

The failure of our dog law to bring adequate results received its share of attention and members are urged to do all in their power to secure a vigorous enforcement of this law. This continued neglect of a long-suffering people demands prompt action. Committees were appointed to appear before the proper authorities and insiste on immediate attention being given this very important matter.

The wish of this Grange to have the next session of the State Grange held in Chestertown was unanimous and if suitable room can be secured there is little doubt but that the Patrons of Husbandry from other counties will be with us December next, two or three days.
