A FINE SHOWING

The Republican platform advocates the abolition of the State Conservation Commission, the reasons for such a stand being not given. This stand will have little weight with the voters in general, in view of the commissioner's work for the past year, as reported in the press. The report says:

"The Conservation Commission through its chairman, W. Thomas Kemp, has advised Governor Harrington that it is turning back into the State treasury $15,308.49. That is the net amount saved by the commission during the fiscal year which ends today.

"The gross savings of the Commission, under the allowances given in the State budget, aggregate $24,318.85, but, because of war conditions and shortage of men engaged in water industries, the estimated receipts fell short $9,800 during the year, thus reducing the amount of savings actually in hand.

"The results of the commission's year were surprising. It operates upon the revenues which come in from the various taxes on water products, and from licenses to watermen, plus an appropriation of $25,000 from the State treasury. This appropriation is $15,000 less than the average total of the appropriations given to the State departments which consolidated into the Conservation Commission — the Shellfish Commission, the Fish Commissioners, the State Conservation Bureau, the State Fishery Force, the General and Special Inspectors of Oysters, and the State Game Warden and deputies.

"In addition to the revenue which the departments collected they received $40,000 on an average from the State, and spent it. The Conservation Commission receiving $15,000 less from the State, turns back $15,000, making a total saving, as compared with the order of things, of $30,000. That is in addition to the greater efficiency and the broad constructive work of the Conservation Commission.

"Chairman Kemp's report to the Governor also stated that in carrying out the policy of reconstructing the oyster navy the commission is selling old vessels to the highest bidders and putting the money into an interest-bearing special account, to be used in paying for building or refitting vessels. Four new power boats have been placed in commission and two more are under construction. The boats are speedy and have living and sleeping quarters for from four to six men. There is now to the credit of this special reconstruction fund $25,022.65."

HOW TO KILL A MINISTER

Six Points Which Will Deal Him A Stinging Blow.

1. Tell others that you don't like him, but never tell him why. If you told him why you don't like him he might show you wherein you are mistaken.

2. Criticize his sermons. Say he is too old-fashioned in his theology, or he's too liberal; his sermons are too long; he's tiresome, stupid and monotonous. Never tell him his sermons helped you.

3. Complain because he doesn't call as often as you think he ought to. Forget that he has several hundred other people to call upon, that he must prepare two sermons a week, must marry the living and bury the dead, and be all things to all men on all occasions, that he may win some.

4. Criticise his family, especially his wife. Say, she takes up too much of his time, she tries to run the church she is not in sympathy with his work, she dresses too well, or not well enough.

5. Go to some other church because you don't like your own minister, and because the other minister is more sensational, more dramatic, more educated, more orthodox, more social and more anything else that suits your fancy.

6. Always look for your minister's weakest points, never look for his strongest qualities. To look for his strongest qualities might mean to be convinced that with all his failings he has consecrated himself to the High calling of God for your salvation, that he has sacrificed a larger income for a mere God to the end that he may come to a saving knowledge of the truth.

A NOTABLE BUSINESS LECTURE COMING

Arrangements have been made by a Merchants' Committee of Chestertown to bring to this town on Friday, November 21, 1919, at 9.15 p. m., in Lyceum Theatre the most famous American business lecture on the platform: "The Troubles of a Merchant and How to Stop Them." Under this head, Mr. Shorland Fannon, well-known business expert and organizer will discuss the various questions that are now more than ever before sources of trouble and loss to merchants and business everwhere. He will show how co-operation and organization will make for a better community or city. How co-operation and understanding will remove trouble between employer and employee. He will show practical improvements in service and store organization that will please the general public and draw trade. How friendly co-operation and organization among business men instead of petty jealousies and narrowness will aid in bringing prosperity to all. He will show how proper advertising will change losses to profits. How systematic continuous newspaper advertising pays the largest dividends of all. How system that enables a merchant to know at all times about the conditions of his business instead of guessing is now more than ever before absolutely essential to success.

With the aid of three thousand feet of moving picture film and about two hundred stereopticon views Mr. Fannon will give a most interesting and timely discussion.

Every merchant or wife of a merchant, every salesman or clerk, every business man and all those interested in seeing Chestertown become a better business center should not fail to hear Mr. Fannon.

We strongly urge that our business men, merchants and all sales people work to give Mr. Fannon a capacity audience Friday night, Nov. 21, at the Lyceum. No charge for admission.
