Paling and deepening, each to each, Meet midway with a solemn charm. One side I see the summer fields Not yet disrobed of all their green;

While westerly along the hills,

One after one as dwindling hours,

Flame the first tint of frosty sheen! Ah! middle point, where clouds and storm Make battle ground of this my life! Where, even-matched, the night and day Wage round me their September strife!

I bow me to the threatening gale; I know when that is overpast, Among the peaceful harvest days An Indian Summer comes at last.
