MD. TURKEY GROWERS ELECT

The first annual meeting of the Maryland Turkey Growers' Association of Kent County was held on Wednesday, February 19th, at the Court House for the election of officers.

The first president of the organization, Mrs. H. M. Baker, gave an interesting report of the activities of the year's work. Much of the progress of the turkey industry is undoubtedly due to Mrs. Baker who overcome the risk in turkey raising and generously spread her discoveries throughout this section. As president of the organization which has marketing as its main objective Mrs. Baker gave much time and energy.

Election of officers followed and all elections were unanimous. The staff for the second year is as follows: President, Walter M. Kenly; vice-president, Mrs. Harry T. Williams; treasurer, Mrs. Linwood A. Sutton; secretary, Mrs. Nell C. Westcott. Directors were chosen to represent each Election District: J. W. Biggers, Mrs. Walter Harris, Carroll Loller, Linwood A. Sutton, Mrs. J. A. Bigelow, Mrs. Daisy Reinhart, Harold M. Baker and Mrs. W. W. Rambo, of Sudlersville, Director at Large.

It was voted that the dues for the year be raised from fifty cents to one dollar and that the regular monthly meeting day be fixed for the fourth Friday. Meetings will be held in the office of the Kent County Chamber of Commerce unless otherwise specified.

It is unlikely that Kent's crop of turkeys for 1930 will be curtailed.

ROTARY CLUB ACTIVE

The Chestertown Rotary Club will hold its regular meeting next week on Wednesday at 1:30 instead of on Monday. This is done in order to listen in on the 25th anniversary program at Washington which will be addressed by President Eugene Newsome.

The speakers last Monday night were State's Attorney Stephen R. Collins and Wilbur R. Hubbard.

The Chestertown Rotary Club passed resolutions thanking Governor Ritchie and Mayor Broening for the interest they had shown in the Chesapeake Bay Bridge proposition. Both of these officials have said that if private capital is not found to build the bridge it should be built by the State of Maryland.

The Rotary Club have also sent a communication to the Delmarva Eastern Shore Association asking that body to get behind the Chesapeake Bay Bridge proposition actively.

The Rotary Club feels that the building of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge will not only benefit Kent but will be a great thing for every section of the Eastern Shore. They want all the help they can get to aid in putting the bridge over the Chesapeake Bay.

"ALL ABOARD" FEB. 24, 25, 26

"All Aboard," the brilliant musical comedy which is the talk of the town will be presented in the Old Lyceum Theatre next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights, Feb. 24, 25 and 26, for the benefit of the Chestertown Volunteer Firemen. Rehearsals, which are being held daily, are fast bringing the large cast of local singers, dancers and dramatists to the professional-like finish that characterizes all Wheeler productions. The play itsself is an extremely funny one, full of clever climaxes and comic situations, peppy songs and bright choruses.

The scene is laid on board a steamer bound for southern climes and the action takes place on the upper deck of the boat. This affords an opportunity for novel stage settings, and these have been built especially for this production.

In the cast of local favorites are found such well known names as Mrs. G. H. Dana, who sings the role of Beatrice, Wilbur Ross Hubbard, who sings the part of San Custis, and Roy Schmidt, who portrays the part of the Captain. Mrs. E. P. L. Bell will be seen as Mrs. Slocum, Mrs. Harry Fowler and Norman Sutton are the Stewardess and Steward, Mrs. Barber Bartley is Mrs. William Carter, William G. Smyth is William Carter, Miss Marie D. Bryan is Alice Carter, J. D. Butherie appears as Jimmy Carter, W. L. Fowler is the Ship Doctor, and Phillip Sewell and Raymond Moffett are the two blackface porters, Eph and Jasper.

Prominent among the many brilliant chorus numbers is the male chorus by the officers of the crew of W. J. Stenger, Wm. Dodds, W. Clifford Bozeman, J. F. Thompson, John E. Barnes, Norman Sutton, Thomas W. Perkins, William Blakeney, Alfred S. Hodgson, Roy Schmidt and and A. L. Sparks, who open the first act of "All Aboard" with the thrilling sea song "Up With The Stars and stripes." The Tourists Group is composed of Misses Louise Simpers, Helen Tyler, Nancy Jean Usilton, Evelyn Bryan, Kathryn Guessford, Dorothy Woodall, Mrs. Jack Stenger, Mrs. Alvin Brown, Mrs. Jesse Blakeney, Mrs. James G. Beck, Mrs. Ernest Strong, Mrs. T. E. Newcomb, Mrs. William H. McKee, Mrs. Howard Pennington.

In the patriotic number, "My Homeland," sung by Mrs. W. J. Stenger, the following Misses present a spirited dance, Betty Thibodeau, Alice Marion Sterling, Rose Gordon, Ellen Zeisel, Carrie Schreiber, Mary Joe Wheatley, Miriam Thompson, Virginia Barnes and Phoebe Pyle.

A feature novelty number is presented by the "Moon Sprites" Misses Barbee Humphreys, Harriett Louisa Rogers, Helen Brown, Miriam Smith, Anna Harris, Lucille Rasin and Patience Pyle. In this dance Miss Humphreys does some clever acrobatic work.

An especially pleasing song and dance is the "Bed Time Number sung by Miss Marie Bryan and danced by the Pajama Girls, Misses Louise Simpers, Mary Simpers, Helen Tyler, Nancy Jean Usilton, Evelyn Bryan, Kathryn Guessford and Dorothy Woodall.

Mrs. G. H. Dana's lovely soprano and Wilbur Ros Hubbard's pleasing tenor voice will be heard to advantage in a number of duets and solos, as will also Roy Schmidt's resonant bass.

Especially colorful and dainty in the attractive "Wedding of the Doll" enacted by the following members of the extremely younger set of our community. In this scene Shirley Fox, Kitty Bringman, Betty Barnes, Elizabeth Baldwin, Fern Blackway, Martha Speicher, Mary Knotts, Marion Aldridge, Myrtle Hadaway, appear as the French Maids led by Mary Joe Wheatley. In the wedding party Cecil Waddell appears as the Bride; Edgar Pyle as the Groom; Jane Goss and Harriett Ann Legg as the Pages; Thomas Massey, Neil Truslow, S. Wickes Westcott, Jr., Stewart Barnes, Charles Gill, Jimmy Metcalfe, Allan Gill, Jimmy Bringman, James Biddle, John Gill, Helen Strong, Jean Cooper, Mary Jean Strong, Betty Beck, Margaret Ann Dukes, Eleanor Russell, Henrietta Gill, Harriett Gill, Eva Solomos, Grace Valliant, Francis, Kreeger, Margaret Ann Turner, Miriam Newcomb, Miriam Sewell, Sara Speicher and Helen Westcott are the attendants.

Tickets are being sold by members of the cast as well as a number of school children who are contesting for a prize offered by the Ladies Auxiliary who are sponsoring the benefit for the firemen. The tickets may be exchanged for reserved seats free of charge at the Stam Drug Company on and after Saturday, February 22. Seats may be ordered by phone but will be held no later than 7.30 of the night for which ordered unless payment is guaranteed by check or money order remitted. This action is necessary owing to the small seating capacity of the theatre. Secure your tickets and seats early.

An orchestra under the leadership of C. Julian Coleman will furnish special music for the production, The Wheeler Producting Company, who are staging this play are well known to all local patrons. Their productions in past seasons of "Melody Land," The Petticoat Ministrels," etc., and the more recent production "Pinafore" will long be remembered. "All Aboard" is an entertainment of the same high standard of clean, wholesome entertainment as are all Wheeler productions and combined with splendid cause, to assist our protectors of life and property, the Volunteer Firemen will undoubtedly be endorsed and supported by the entire community.

BAY BRIDGE TRAFFIC TALLIED

The amount of traffic which the proposed Chesapeake Bay bridge from Miller's Island to Tolchester, Kent county, would draw from Baltimore, the Eastern Shore, other sections of the State and from places outside Maryland is one of the paramount questions to be considered before construction of the bridge is begun by private capital or State banking.

The Chesapeake Bay Bridge Company, which originally proposed to build the seven-mile span, has checked traffic possibilities from all angles, but thus far the company has not revealed their findings. It was learned this week, however, that traffic investigators spent ten days here last summer surveying the type and number of vehicles carried across the Chesapeake Bay by ferry.

B. Frank Sherman, general manager of the Claiborne-Annapolis Ferry Company, estimates the approximate number of vehicles and passengers carried across the bay last year. He said that approximately 75,000 automobiles and trucks and 150,000 persons were carried across the Chesapeake Bay between Claiborne and Annapolis last year. He estimated between sixty and seventy per cent. of the traffic was bound to or from Baltimore.

"On one trip last summer," Mr. Sherman said, "we had thirty-eight machines aboard and I counted seventeen cars from seventeen different states, which may be observed as an example of the tourist trade through here in the summer. Annapolis and Washington both serve as centers to draw tourists, and many of them, anxious to avoid the traffic through and around to Baltimore, that the ferry from Annapolis across to the Eastern Shore.

The survey of the traffic on the ferry line made by the bridge company conducted immediately after Labor Day, Mr. Sherman said, and the results showed that only about half of the traffic was bound to or from Baltimore.

Without definite knowledge of the amount of traffic the promoters expected over the bay bridge, it has been generally held in circles familiar with transportation operations that the company would not attempt to construct the $11,000,000 bridge without some assurance the revenue from traffic would meet the interest and fixed charges on the indebtedness, and the depreciation and maintenance expenses on the bridge.

Not only vehicular traffic, it was held, would figure in producing revenue for the bridge—in the event tolls are charges—since a bus line, which operates on the Eastern Shore has filed application papers with the Public Service Commission for service over the proposed bridge, when and if it is completed, directly into Baltimore.

In proposing that the State should build the bridge, it has been suggested in some of the Eastern Shore counties, that Governor Ritchie and the commission he expects to appoint to investigate the best methods of financing the project should make a study of traffic possibilities for themselves so that an idea may be reached as to what the revenue from the bridge would be.

SITE FOR CHURCH

Representatives of the proposed new Lutheran Church to be erected in Chestertown were here this week. They completed negotiations for a site for the church on High street near W. S. and A. M. Culp's factory. The lot was purchased of W. H. Thawley and is a part of the J. G. Usilton tract.

The first signs of the appearance of Spring have been observed in Chestertown. Robins have made their appearance, and property owners are trimming their grape vines.

FOUNDERS' DAY AT COLLEGE

Founders' Day and the celebration of Washington's Birthday were jointly observed Thursday morning in the assembly hall of Washington College. The principal speaker was Dean J. Nelson Norwood, of Alfred College, Alfred, N. Y., who delivered an address on "Certain Phases in the Life of George Washington." The College Glee Club and orchestra presented a program.

The speaker was introduced by President Paul E. Titsworth, who referred to General Washington's official connection and stressed the fact that Washington College is the only college in the country which bears the name of Washington with his own consent, and that General Washington was once a member of the Board of Visitors and Governors of the institution as well as a generous contributor to its early welfare.

BRIDGE BUILDING PROGRESS

Work on the new Chester River bridge has attracted scores of visitors and a special cop is required to keep traffic moving. There are 256 piles to be driven. About 30 have been placed.

The huge pile driver is at work near the middle of the river this week placing the clusters of piles that will serve around the draw of the new span. After the work at this point is complete the progress in driving the piles will be much faster, according to the workers on the project.

Still another activity in which the Raymond Company is interested is the dredging operation in progress near the Queen Anne's and Kent county shore. Here large quantities of mud are being removed to allow the pile driver to be drawn in close to shore.

W. C. WINS FROM ST. JOHN'S BOYS

Washington College conquored St. John's in a hard-fought basket ball game in Annapolis Monday night. Washington's linup included Giraitis, Alexander, Gainer, Stevens, Robinson, Dopson. Our boys missed 8 out of 18 foul shots while St. John's made 9 out of 10.

The Washington College basketball team closed with a burst of power in the second half to defeat the University of Baltimore cagers, 45 to 33, here Saturday night.

For the first half and much of the second period the visitors made a real battle of it. But, oddly enough, when Capt. Stanley Giraitis went out of the game on fouls in the second half, for the first time in a long time, incidentally, Washington began its winning spurt.

Baltimore had flashed a nice passing combination in Kramer, Chandler and Diehl, while both Fine and Elliott displayed nice eye for the basket. Against these however, Washington was pleased to find unexpected ability in Alexander, reserve forward, and Stevens, center, who played much better than their usual game.

At half time Washington had a lead of only five points, and Giraitis had been taken out when he had three personal fouls, for fear he would not be available in the second half. Reamer, Baltimore University guard, had been ejected from the game via the four-foul route, having become overzealous in his guarding of the ace of the Shoremen.

The teams battled point for point in the early part of the second period until the score stood, 34 to 29, when Giraitis went out on fouls. Instead of causing a slump, this handicap braced Washington and Gainer, who substituted for the captain, acquitted himself creditably. During the remainder of the test Washington out-scored the Maroons, 11 to 4.

Washington — Giraitis, Alexander, Stevens, Dopson, Robinson, Burke, and Gainer.

Dr. Walter Rockwood Ferris, former director of the Oratorio Society of New York, conducted the rehearsal of the Kent County Musical Society Thursday evening. Dr. Ferris took charge of the meeting in the absence of Mrs. Cleveland S. Smith, the director. Everyone was pleased with his leadership.

Farmers throughout the county report an unusually large and profitable crop of young lambs, which will shortly be placed on the market. Local buyers are paying $9 for good lambs.

Fred T. Robinson has purchased of Dan McKee the lot and garage on Maple avenue next to his service station. Mr. Robinson, with this enlarged property, will be enabled to serve his customers more efficiently.
