FAIRLEE 4H CLUB IS VERY ACTIVE

The last meeting of the Fairlee Senior Club was held on Saturday, November 21st, at the home of Mrs. T. B. Hudson. The hostess for the afternoon was Virginia Miller.

-:-:-:-

The meeting was opened by singing the "Thanksgiving Song," which was followed by a piece of poetry on Thanksgiving by Thelma Urie. Then each member gave a Thanksgiving verse in response to roll call.

Several interesting talks were given. The first one being on "Room Project," by Miss Schellinger. The second "Music Appreciation," by Marian Reinhart and Elizabeth Derker. A demonstration on "Posture," was given by Elizabeth Elliott, and Margaret Hendrickson.

-:-:-:-

A committee of three were appointed by the president to meet with Miss Schellinger to plan the making of some Christmas suggestions. The committee appointed were Virginia Miller, Margaret Reinhart and Elizabeth Dierker.

-:-:-:-

The club is now taking up room project work, and most members are working on the bedroom project.

-:-:-:-

The next meeting will be held on Saturday, December 5th, at 2 o'clock, at the home of Louise and Magel Ackerman.

-:-:-:-

At this meeting each member is to bring a completed Christmas suggestion. In this way more suggestions are brought together, and the workmanship can be shown.

-:-:-:-

A demonstration on "Etiquette," will be given by Virginia Miller, and Louise Ackerman. A talk on "How you can tell a 4-H girl," will be given by Magel Ackerman.

-:-:-:-

We welcome to our club a new member, Thelma Gorsuch.

-:-:-:-

The Junior Club has been having its regular weekly meetings. Much interest has been taken by the members in the cooking project.

-:-:-:-

Miss Schellinger was present at the last meeting on Tuesday and discussed "Christmas Suggestions." with the members. Each member is to make some article for to be sold at the School Bazaar.

-:-:-:-

Miss Frances Morris and Louise Ackerman will attend a meeting at Rock Hall on Monday night at which Christmas novelties will be demonstrated. A number of these suggestions will be worked up by the school children and club members.

The next meeting of the Junior Club will be on Tuesday, December 1st.

BY making good with one of its only two shots at the Chestertown goal the Chesapeake City High School soccer team eliminated the Chestertown High eleven, State Champions in 1930, from the 1931 scholastic title race, 2 to 1. The contest was played Wednesday afternoon on the pitch of the Centreville High School.

CHAS. E. DOLE, fourteen-year-old member of Chestertown Troop, boy Scouts of America, and youngest Scout in Maryland have been awarded the Eagle Scout rank, was given the bronze medal for meritorious service by the Wilmington Council at its court of honor meeting in Wilmington Wednesday night. It is the highest rank ever bestowed upon an Eastern Shore of Faryland Scout. The recipient is a student in Chestertown High School. The bronze medal is a degree higher than the Eagle Scout rank. Young Dole is the son of Dr. Esther F. Dole, professor of history in Washington College here.

L. B. MANLOVE, a farmer of lower Cecil county, reported to Sheriff Albert Buckworth at Elkton Monday morning, that two or more persons visited his farm, located near Cecilton, and shot fifteen of his turkeys Sunday night, which were roosting in a tree near his barn. The thieves hurriedly picked up the dead birds and made off with them.

The gunshots were heard by members of the household, but by the time they could reach the scene of the shooting the intruders were hurrying away. They noticed the disappearing machine.

The officers are working on a clue which it is believed will result in the guilty parties being brought to justice. It is asid that the car was from Pennsylvania.

A WORTHY SERVICE

An unusual service was held in Salem M. E. Church Sunday evening with C. Romie Skirven in the chair. It was in the nature of an honorary program to the first President of the Fairlee W. C. T. U., Miss Ida Crew, in 1891. Miss Crew spoke in a reminiscent mood and in a most interesting manner. A duet by Mrs. Wm. Leaverton and Mrs. Howard C. Jones followed. Then came an address by Mrs. B. T. Hudson on the work of the W. C. T. U., with a quartette next by Mr. and Mrs. Jesse H. Usilton, Mrs. Howard Jones and C. Romie Skirven.

H. Stockton Startt closed the speaking by calling on Miss Crew to come forward and in a very touching manner presented her with a bouquet of flowers and referred to the lasting work of Miss Crew and her companions.

Dr. F. G. Livingood with his College Orchestra furnished the music in good style. There were eleven members. The writer cannot refrain from referring to the man back of this meeting, Frank L. Elliott, of Fairlee. Some propose to hold a similar service annually and to rotate at St. James and Salem. It is also suggested that a local union be organized as a testimonial to the loyal members of former years.

W. C. LOSES LAST GAME

Neither team had a football victory to its credit this year when Washington College met St. Joseph's eleven last Saturday, so somebody had to win. St. Joe turned the trick, defeating the Marylanders, 20 to 0, and scored their own first victory in two years.

A match that started early in the first period carried St. Joe steadily down the field to within scoring distance, when, amid cheers of 2,000 rooters who turned out for the Hawks' last home game of the season, Joe Walker, husky fullback, romped across for the first tally. An attempted forward for the extra point was grounded.

Runs Fifty Yards For Score

The visitors from Chestertown were powerless to stop St. Joe's onslaught and in the second period Jack Kane, St. Joe end, intercepted a short pass by the Marylanders at midfield and made a dazzling 50-yard dash for a touchdown. This time Doherty, a substitute, passed to Zuber for the extra point.

The third period was scoreless, but in the fourth St. Joe got the ball on its 35-yard line and started a victorious attack which carried deep into the visitors' territory. From there Charley McNabb shot across the line for the final touchdown. Morris booted the extra point. The line-up:

The visitors from Chestertown also went into the game seeking their initial triumph without even the solace of a tie and muffed their last chance.

The Washington College football team is a wonder. Being overmatched in weight and otherwise they have entered every game with hope and determination to do their best. This they did. They had but few reserves so that when their first string of men met with injuries they were at a loss. Coaches Kibler and Ekaitis are to be congratulated upon their excellent showing. Next year when the new men enter it is hoped to add to the splendid neucleus now on the field.

IT is no insignificant task to reproduce history on the screen in a manner that is both accurate and entertaining. Yet this has been accomplished admirably by the Yale University Press in producing "Daniel Boone," one of the Chronicles of America Photoplays, which is to be shown on Dec. 2, New Lyceum 2.00 and 3.30, under the auspices of Washington College.

NEXT week the New Lyceum has a fine program of pictures.

KENT COUNTY GRAND JURY MEETS TO-DAY

Hon. Lewin W. Wickes' returned to Chestertown from Easton Court Wednesday and stated that after conferring with Judges Alkins and Keating and State's Attorney Collins they had decided to summon the Grand Jury for Kent County in session this Saturday morning. This Jury, with Eben F. Perkins as foreman, will indict the Negro and the Court will name a lawyer to defend the prisoner. A motion for removel will likely be made.

A posse of about one hundred armed men scoured the country Saturday for George Davis, aged 30, a Negro farm worker, who Saturday morning, attempted a criminal assault upon Mrs. Elizabeth Lusby, age 25, wife of Edgar Lusby, highly respected farm residents of near Kennedyville.

According to Mrs. Lusby, whose night garments were torn and who showed some bruises from her struggle with the Negro, Davis attempted the attack while her husband was in the barn yard milking cows. She said he locked her in another bedroom and fled when her baby boy was awakened by the struggle. She said the Negro threatened to kill her if she screamed.

The Negro got a two-hour start on the posse and officers who started the sweeping search. The attack occurred about 6.30 o'clock Saturday morning, but by the time Lusby drove to town, a distance of about a mile and notified Sheriff John T. Vickers and other officers in Chestertown, the Negro had already sped away on a truck hauling junk, on which he had been given a ride by the unsuspecting driver.

Sheriff Vickers accompanied to the scene by State's Attorney Stephen R. Collins, who came ready to try to check any possible mob violence. The prosecutor began an investigation of the case with an idea of pressing prosecution.

According to the story told the officers by Mr. Lusby, who caused a warrant to be issued charging attempted criminal assault, he left the house shortly after 6 o'clock to milk the cows. He left his wife and their little boy asleep in the bedroom on the second floor. After he finished milking, he went into the house, and was surprised to find his wife had not arisen. Upon going upstairs he found the baby boy crying, and heard moans and groans from his wife in the next room.

Finding the door locked, Lusby broke it open and found his wife in a near hysterical condition on a bed, her garments badly torn.

After Lusby gave his wife a restorative, she told, in a incoherent manner, how she had been awakened to find the Negro sitting on the bed. She said he told her in a low tone that he would kill her if she made a scream, and with that grappled with her. She said she fought him off as best she could, fearing that if she were to scream, he would kill her. Finally, the baby boy was aroused by the struggle and began crying.

The woman said she couldn't quite remember all the things that happened thereafter, but that she thinks that the Negro, fearing the child's cries would bring assistance, forced her into the bedroom, locked her in and fled. Her husband thinks the Negro locked her inside of the room in order to give him a chance to get away.

Lusby said he had discharged the Negro earlier in the week. He believes that the Negro lurked about the farm place waiting an opportunity to enter the house after he went out in quest of revenge.

It was learned by officers that the Negro went to the home of his uncle, Edward Davis, who lives in Kennedybille, shortly after 7 o'clock and asked for money, saying that he wanted to get out of town. The uncle is said to have refused the man money, and he went off, trying to get a ride out of town. According to Postmaster Willim P. Dempsey, the Negro asked Gerald Myers if he would drive him out of town, but was refused. Dempsey said he saw the Negro get in a truck that was hauling junk, but that he didn't know whether it was a Negro or a white man driving the truck.

It was learned that Maurice Turner, employed by Harry Gordon, of Chestertown, Md., junk dealer, had brought him to within a mile of Wilmington following the attempted assault Saturday.

Because of the popularity of the young couple in the community, there was considerable excitement about the town when the news became generally known, and there was fear that there would be mob violence if the Negro is captured by unauthorized members of the posse.

ATTACKER CAUGHT

George Davis was captured in a rooming house at 1127 Walnut St., Wilmington Monday morning, and admitted efbore Sherig Vickers and Captain Wilson of the Detective Bureau that he had attempted to assault the woman Saturday morning because "he lost his head."

No one was in the house with Davis and Sheriff Vickers and the officers had to break the lock to get in.

The Negro was in a third story room in bed and fully dressed.

The Negro's only plea when he was questioned by Captain Wilson, other city detectives and Sheriff Vickers was "Please don't let 'em lynch me."

The Negro when found in the rooming house was unarmed. Detectives Elliott Hynson, Cash and Robinson, with Sheriff Vickers, who had made an all-day search of the city's Negro quarters Sunday, had no trouble making the arrest, for the Negro was evidently badly frightened and had stayed in his room most of the time since he went there. Upon entering the room, Sheriff Vickers told the detectives that he was the man wanted, and the detectives snapped the handcuffs on him and searched him.

Taken to the jail in the Public Building, Captain Wilson, in the presence of a representative of the press, questioned Davis, and he readily admitted that he was the man sought. When questioned about the crime, he is alleged to have said that he went into the house only with the idea of trying to get his old job back. He said the door of the house was open, and that he was familiar with the rooms inside, so he walked in and peering around found that Mrs. Lusby was in bed.

Following the admission of his guilt to Captain of Detectives Wilson, Davis was visited in his cell by Sheriff Vickers, where he secured an additional admission of his guilt in writing, whch was signed by Davis.

Davis was then taken to the police photography room where he was photographed and fingerprinted.

He said he asked her, Mrs. Lusby, if she would help him get his job back and that she replied that it was her husband's business and that he would have to go down to the barn and see him. He said she then told him to get out of the bedroom and at the same time got up out of bed. He said it was then that he lost his head and grappled with her, pushing her over on the bed. He admitted tearing her gown. but said that he became frightened when the baby awoke and began to cry, and that fearing the woman would hasten out to her husband, he pushed her in the room and locked the door.

The Negro was located by Sheriff Vickers through a letter he had written to a family in the Kennedyville section which gave his address.
