SHOW-BOAT LOSES ENGINEER

Drama of stage-land was quickly transformed into tragedy of real life aboard James Adams' Floating Theatre, off the shore of a little Virginia town several days ago, when Jack Johnson, veteran engineer of the pleasure craft, was fatally burned by the back-fire of an engine which ignited his clothing.

He was at work on the engine in the show boat when it back-fired and threw gasoline over his clothing. Johnson jumped overboard, but did not until he had been fatally burned. He was removed to a hospital for treatment but never rallied.

BARTUS, son of Sheriff and Mrs. John T. Vickers, accompanied by a lady friend, met with an accident on Thursday evening while driving Deputy Sheriff Pinder's car. A hearing was held Thursday night before Judge Wheatley and Cooper was sentenced to the House of Correction for four months.

THE Washington College foot ball team will play Drexel Institute, today at Philadelphia.

DOWNS ACQUITTED IN MURDER TRIAL

After deliberating for less than an hour on Saturday afternoon following arguments by prosecuting and defense counsel, a jury in the Circuit Court here brought in a verdict of not guilty in the case of Granvil Downs, a 66-year-old constable of Caroline County, who had been on trial here for three days on the charge of killing Arthur Wooters, a white resident, of Cordova, Talbot county on March 25, last.

The killing grew out of an attempt on the part of Downs to serve a warrant on Wooters charging him with the robbery of a woman resident of Goldsboro. Caroline County, sometime before the killing. Wooters resisted the serving of the warrant at his home and threatened the constable with two pistols which he was carrying.

Downs was arrested by Sheriff Carroll, of Easton, at the home of Wooters following the shooting, and was lodged in the Easton jail until the following day when he was released on $5,000 bond. The case was set for trial in the Easton court last Spring, but counsel for the defense, Owen D. Knotts, of Denton, and W. Mason Shehan, of Easton, asked for a change of venue on the plea that the accused could not secure a fair trial in Talbot County. The plea was granted by the court and the case was removed to the Chestertown court.

Owen D. Knotts and Senator S. Scott Beck, of the Chestertown bar, who took the place of Mr. Shehan, based their case on the plea of self defense, which the jury evidently believed from the evidence produced at the hearing. Downs received the congratulations of his friends who crowded the court house to hear the verdict, following which he left for his home in Ridgely. Oliver S. Mullikin, State's Attorney, of Talbot County, and Stephen R. Collins, State's Attorney for Kent County, prosecuted the case, which attracted wide attention both in Caroline and Talbot counties.

"THE Gateway to the West" and "Wolfe and Montcalm," will be the subjects of the pictures shown next week. Due to large crowds two performances are given one at 2.00 and one at 3.30 P. M. Wednesday.

SCHOOL GIRL INJURED

Nora Hurd, aged 10, was injured Wednesday while alighting from the Church Hill School bus two miles from the school. She had left the bus and was about to cross the road, when a car driven by S. T. Walls, of Washington College, struck her. Her limb was broken and other minor injuries. She was carried to the office of Dr. Dudley who rendered first aid and arranged for her removal to Easton Hospital.

Mr. Walls could not see the child as she ran out from the back of the bus just as he arrived at that point. He assisted in carrying Nora to the hospital.
