CLEVELAND and STEVENSON,

THE NEXT PRESIDENT AND VICE-PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES.

[Issued by the American Press Association and claimed to be the latest and best likeness yet secured.]

GROVER CLEVELAND.

Grover Cleveland was born at Caldwell, Essex county, N. J., on the 18th of March, 1847. His father, Richard Falling Cleveland, taught a private school in Baltimore, and subsequently spent some time at Princeton, and became a Presbyterian clergyman. He married Miss Ann Neal, daughter of the Rev. Abner Neal, a local minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and one of the pioneer booksellers and publishers of Baltimore. Grover Cleveland's great-grandfather, Aaron Cleveland, was a native of East Haddam, Conn., and a Congregational minister..

Grover Cleveland's ancestry, therefore, presents a blending of New England and Southern stocks, his father being a descendant of the Puritans and his mother a native of Maryland. He was named Stephen Grover after a friend of his father in the ministry, but dropped the first name because he was always called by the second. At the age of fourteen he entered a country store at Fayetteville, N. Y., where he remained two years, when his father's removal to Clinton, N. Y., enabled him to attend a high school there. After his father's death he assisted his brother, who was a teacher in the New York Blind Asylum. In 1853 he set out for the West with a companion, but his friends in Buffalo persuaded him not to continue his journey further.

Young Cleveland, therefore, became a resident of Buffalo, and soon secured a law student's desk in the office of Messrs. Rogers, Bowen & Rogers. Mr. Cleveland was admitted to practice as an attorney in 1859. After his admission he continued with his preceptor for four years, which with the previous four years served as a student, gave him eight years of the best kind of legal experience. He was then appointed assistant District Attorney for the county of Erie, which position he filled with marked ability for a period of three years. He was nominated by the Democratic county convention in 1865 for district attorney, to succeed Mr. Torrance, and was defeated.

Mr. Cleveland formed a law copartnership with the late J. P. Vanderpool on January 1, 1866, which was continued until August, 1869. He then became a member of the firm of Eaning, Cleveland & Folsom, the late A. P. Laning and the late Oscar Folsom being his associates. The firm remained in existence for less than two years, and until Mr. Cleveland retired therefrom to assume the duties of sheriff of Erie county, to which office he was chosen at the election in November, 1870. At the expiration of his official term as sheriff he became a member of the firm of Base, Cleveland & Bissell, with Hon. Lyman K. Base and Wilson S. Bissell as associates. This was a strong and popular firm, and at once commanded a large and lucrative practice.

At the close of Mr. Base's congressional career his failing health induced him to seek a residence in Colorado, resulting in a dissolution of the copartnership and the formation of another under the name of Cleveland & Bissell. In December, 1881, Mr. George J. Sicard was admitted as a partner in the law firm, which was then styled Cleveland, Bissell & Sicard, and continued up to the time of his election as Governor of New York.

It was while a member of this firm that Mr. Cleveland came into prominence as one of the leading lawyers of Western New York. As an advocate before a court or jury his style was marked by a clear, incisive logic and a thorough mastery of all the details of his cases. One of his early associates said of him recently: "Grover won our admiration by his three traits of industry, unpretentious courage and unswerving honesty. I never saw a more thorough man at anything he undertook. Whatever the subject was he was reticent until he had mastered all its bearings and made up his own mind—and then nothing could swerve him from his conviction. It was this quality of intellectual integrity more than anything else, perhaps, that made him afterwards listened to and respected when more brilliant men, who were opposed to him, were applauded and forgotten."

In November, 1881, Mr. Cleveland was the Democratic candidate for the office of Mayor of Buffalo, and was elected by the largest majority ever known, having received the votes of many of the opposing party, under the belief that he would give the city a reform administration. Mr. Cleveland's administration was such as to justify the expectations that were created by his well-known character and previous public record as well, and the people felt, without distinction of party, that they had in Mayor Cleveland an able, fearless and upright Chief Magistrate. He had occasion several times to interpose his veto between the city treasury and the schemes of plundering politicians, and he always did it fearlessly.

In a word, his record was such that the eyes of all the Democrats in the State were turned toward him as the coming candidate for Governor. He was elected to that office in November, 1882, by a majority of 192,854 over Charles J. Folger, the Republican nominee, and he took possession of the executive chamber on the 1st of January, 1883.

Sketch of Adlai E. Stevenson.

Adlai E. Stevenson was born in 1835 in Christian county, Kentucky, near the birthplace of Abraham Lincoln. His parents removed from North Carolina to Kentucky, one of his ancestors being a signer of the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence. At 20 years of age Mr. Stevenson graduated from Centre College, Kentucky, and married Lettie Green, daughter of the president of that institution. Among his classmates were Senator Blackburn, Senator Davidson of Florida, ex-Governor McCreary and many other distinguished men. Soon after graduating Mr Stevenson removed to Illinois, where he studied law with the late Hon. David Davis, and was admitted to the bar at Bloomington. He rosed rapidly in his profession and was elected prosecuting attorney of McClean county. He was a Presidential elector in 1854 and was twice elected to the House of Representatives as a Democrat from a district largely Republican. He was appointed first assistant Postmaster-General by Mr. Cleveland, July 6, 1885. One of last officials acts of Mr. Cleveland was to nominate Mr Stevenson for justice of the Supreme Court of the dsitrict of Columbia, but the Republican Senate failed to act upon his nomination. Since his retirement from the Post Office Department he has been engaged in the practice of law at Bloomington, Ills.

Gun Shoot at Tolchester

The Baltimore gun club has completed all the arrangements for a trip-shooting tournament at Tolchester July 18, 19 and 20. Entries have been received from Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, Delaware and Virginia, among whom are to be found some of the champion wing shots of this country. For prizes the Tolchester steamboat company has offered $100, the Baltimore gun club $200, and mercantile prizes have been donated by the business men of the city amounting to $500. A. G. Alford has donated a handsome diamond ring to the member of the Baltimore gun club making the highest score during the tournament. For the past eight weeks the club members have been shooting every Saturday at Acton's park; and are now in thorough practice for the coming contest. No live birds will be used, as the laws of the state prohibit shooting at live pigeons, besides there is less chance of crooked work at clay birds.

It would suprise the general public to know how many tricks are resorted to by professional trap shooters when live birds are used. For example if two crack shots make a match and one is up to doing underhand business, he goes to the man who is to supply the birds and fixes him. The consequence will be on the day of the match the square shooter will have all old birds to shoot at, which have been kept in a loft and twice a day their owners has fired blank cartridges off in the room until they are wild as March hares, and are regular twisters when thown from the trap on the day of the match. The other contestants who has fixed the bird man has thrown for him what are little more than squabs and cannot fly fast enough to get out of harm's way. Therefore in making a match between two men who know their business it is generally agreed that each contestant supplies the birds for the other fellow, so if a man gets easy birds it is no fault of his but his opponent in giving them to him

One of the crack shooters came near losing the match for Wertzner, of Baltimore, on the day he defeated some 30 of the champion shots of the United States at Long Branch, N. Y. The five traps were placed as usual and the wind was blowing a hurricane directly across the grounds. One die was thrown form a box and when it came 1,2,3,4 or 5, that number of the trap was to be pulled for the shooter without his knowing which one trap 5 was nearer to the wind and therefore gave the gunner a better chance before the bird turned with the wind to fly. The match had narrowed down to three contestants and the crowd of sports made up their minds that the Baltimore man was to be done up. It did not take the boys from this town long to catch on to the fact that there was a "niggar in the wood pile," and on watching the die thrower they soon found that their man was getting the right trap and there was a grand shaking up, the Baltimore boys getting their rights and their man the match.

These are all good points for any man who is not accustomed to trap shooting to watch in case he makes a match at live birds with an old hand. But at clay birds every man has the same show for his money, and there is every chance for trickery if it should be attempted.

Vaccinate in Time.

The Illinois State Board of Health has seen fit to issue a proclamation warning the people of that commonwealth that a smallpox epidemic is among the possibilities of the near future, unless special percautions are taken to secure its abatement. Seven cases of small-pox have been reported recently from one town in Iowa. Some eighty cases are known to exist in Ohio and West Virginia, Michigan has several cases, and two cases in Chicago led directly to the action by the State Board of Health.

The same subject was referred to recently by the health officials of our own state, and the fear of an epidemic of small-pox is begining to run through the country. Proper percantion on the part of local officials and of general vaccination would quickly extirpate the disease, even where it has gained a foothold. But the fact that the malady is allowed to spread and that it is appearing at so many points is ominous. Certainly the Illinois officials are none too soon with their note of warning and their words of good advice.

A smallpox epidemic is a serious calamity in any community. Many will recall Baltimore's visitation ten years ago and not long for a repetition of that experience. A general epedemic of this kind would close the schools, would shut banks and stores, perhaps, would stop traffic in certain streets, and would turn the city into a state strangely suggestive of Military occupation or a state of siege.

It would be vastly better to enforce the vaccination law before it becomes necessary to quarantine the city.—Baltimore Morning Herald.

Wisps of Wisdom.

A man has rights that no one in his house respects after the first baby is born.

It is difficult matter to be popular with the woman who has no baby for you to praise.

Tell of a man who does a good deed and somehow no one shows any curiosity to know who he is.

When a baby is very homely its mother may see some resemblance between it and her husband's folks.

A man shuts his eyes when he falls in love, and claims after he is married that his wife tied a bandage over them.

If anything bad has happened to you, every man you meet, under the guise of sympathy, stops to find out how you feel about it.

After a girl has been married five years and becomes a little faded the most bitter drop in her cup is to meet the pretty girl her husband might have had and who has had nothing to fade her.

ELKTON has decided to put in electric lights and a stock company with $25,000 capital has been formed. The Electric Company offered to furnish sixty-one incandescent lights, of 25 candle power, to burn from dusk until dawn every night, for $18 per light, or $1098 a year; or to furnish arc lights of 2000 candle power at the rate of $84 per light a year.

Headache from Ice Cream.

During the scorching weather of July and August you often rush into the ice cream saloon with the avowed intention of cooling your body to at least a few degrees below the melting point. If you are in a great hurry you are apt to make first few spoonfuls of the cooling mixture rather large. This almost immediately gives you a violent pain in the temples or somewhere in the region of the eyes. Why is this. Did you ever stop to think asks a writer in the St. Louis Republic.

One who has studied the physiology of the case say it is caused in the following manner. The frozen mixture, coming in contact with the nerves of the throat (the larnax, pharynx, etc.,) temporarily paralyzes them. The sensation instantly shoots to the center of those nerves which is in the brain, but finds there a side connections in the shape of the great facial nerve which starts from in front of the ear and extends its branches over the sides of the face. One branch of this facial nerve, extending across the temple, is a "nerve sensation," while the other branches are simply "nerves of motion," utilized chiefly to govern the play of the mouth.

This great facial nerve side-tracles the pain which proceeds from the chill, throwing it out along the nerve branch which traverses the temple, the pain being most agonizing at the points where the nerve branches. If the irritation be extraordinary the "reflew" action which takes place may cause a violent pain in the eyeballs as well as in the temple, the eye pain being simply sympathetic. The person who rashly swallows great mouthfuls of frozen milk should remember that every time it comes in contact with the nerves of his throat the whole nervous system is injured to a greater or less extent.

What Organ First Relapses

It is said by scientists to be a fact that all our senses do not slumber simultaneously, but that they fall into a happy state of insensibility one after another. The eyelids take the lead and obscure sight, the sense of taste is the next to lose its susceptibility, then follow smelling, hearing, and touch; the last named being the lightest sleeper and most easily aroused. It is curious that, although the sense of smell is one of the first to slumber, is the last to awake. Hearing, after touch, soonest regains consciousness. Certain muscles and parts of the body begin to sleep before others. Commencing with the feet, the slumberous influence work its way gradually upward to the centre of the nervous action. This will explain the necessity of having the feet comfortably warm before sound sleep is possible.

—OFFICE OF—

Local Board of Health

AS the County Board of Health has re-elected me the secretary and executive officer of the board, I desire again to call the attention of the public to the necessity of using every means of maintaining as high a degree of health as possible. This can only be done by following hygienic laws and observing sanitary rules. The long, hot summer is before us, and many of the dangers and discomforts of the season can be avoided. In the past there has been published rules and directions looking to this end, attention is again called to them, and an earnest hope expressed that may be of some service, especially as regards the complaints and diseases of children, incident to hot weather.

I am prepared to furnish advice and assistance towards the abatement of nuisances and correction of offensive and unsanitary conditions, and will visit any section at the proper written request of responsible people, but no attention will be paid to anonymous communications, nor to spite cases and private quarrels.
