FATHER'S DAY

Father's Day is to be celebrated Sunday, June 19, we are told. After Mother had been having her "Day" for several years, the idea occurred to someone that father also deserved a little niche in the family hall of fame, and so a "Day" was created for father.

No one will deny that father is entitled to a little credit. He has never received as much as mother—and the average father doesn't expect it. Father's position has not inspired many poets to glorify him. He is just the bread-winner, the commonplace head of the house who likes three meals a day and a good place to rest his weary bones at night.

Father takes some pride in his home and his family. Though he may fuss about it now and then, he likes to do the odd jobs that fall to his lot to keep the home ship-shape.

Father is sometimes the supreme court of the home. He leaves the majority of the questions for settlement by mother, but when there is insurrection or a disposition to tear away from the restraints of home, it falls to his lot to make the decision. There are occasions when even his rulings are not respected and he has to use force. Of course, force is not resorted to as much as it once was. Some think that father doesn't exercise his authority quite as much as he should—and possibly he doesn't in some homes.

Father has his blemishes. He couldn't be mortal and be otherwise. If he's a good father, he will admit that he's not the whole "works" around the house, though he may storm around on occasion.

Father will also admit, if pressed for truth, that he doesn't exactly object to having someone make a fuss over him, and that he didn't find any good reason to remonstrate when some kind soul suggested recognizing father with a "Day."

COMING

Agriculture, which has insisted upon a revision of the tariff downward, is very liable, within the next two years, to have some very unexpected help and from a source least expected. This will come as soon as the 1928 elections are out of the way, it is sai d,because the present high protective tariff dictated by the manufacturing and individual shrdla manufacturing and industrial interests constitutes a hidden danger for international finance which is rapidly becoming acute.

Agriculture's help will come from the financial leaders. Many have already expressed themselves on the subject. Some of these are powers in the political councils.

Billions of dollars have been loaned to European nations by Wall Stree during the last few years. Interest on these billions have been paid by subsequent loans from the same source. That is the only manner in which interest could have been paid. Even a part of the money to maintain German reparations, under the Dawes plan, came from the U. S.

The process cannot be kept up indefinitely—and already a default of American loans to Europe is foreseen unless Europe can find a way of increasing her foreign markets. The foreign market which she most wants is the United States.

Here of course is the battle ground. Wall Street wants to protect its loans. Manufacturers naturally want the high tariff as now enforced—to keep out imports or low priced European goods.

The most vital financial commitments of the post-war period is due for a severe strain.

CHRIST FOR ALL—ALL FOR CHRIST

The Word of God

"Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path.—Psalm 119: 105.

LOVE DEFRAUDS NOT.—Owe no man any thing, but to love one another. Thou shalt not steal. Thou shalt not covet. Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. Romans 13:8, 9.

PRAYER:—
"O love Divine, how sweet Thou art!
When shall I find my willing heart
All taken up with Thee?
I thirst and faint and die to prove
The greatest of redeeming love
The love of Christ to me."

What reason did Jesus give why we should forgive our enemies?
Answer, read—Mark 11:25.

—Don't fail to see John Barrymore in "Don Juan" at the Lyceum, Friday and Saturday of this week.

—Kent county poultry fanciers will attend the meeting to be held at College Park, under auspices of University of Maryland officials to be held June 24.

—Towers, torture, treachery, fray!
A Lover, a Lady, to horse and away!
See John Barrymore in "Don Juan."

Since the present system of department store education has been in vogue the idea of some wise man, I forget who, that the real university was Mark Hopkins on one end of a log and a student on the other, has gone into decline.

The Mark Hopkins idea was that of education by personal contact. A learned man, such as Hopkins, transmitted his wisdom and virtue to the student, and the student was wiser and more virtuous than before.

The new, or department store system, is to dispense information a la information bureau. Everything from algebra to biology and from Latin to Hebrew is dispensed. A vast amount of information is given out in all the colleges and universities, too.

But there is a difference between information and education. A truly educated man may have no practical information at all and a well-informed man may know everything that's going on and still be a terrible bore.

In the universities and college a large part of the professors are men who stick closely, very closely to the text. You read that water is composed of Hydrogen and Oxy gen and the professor asks you what two elements go to make up water and you answer. Education or information?

Under the present system a college education is merely a higher type of vocational education. Vocational training is a good thing and in a large majority of the cases is all the college student wants or expects.

But what of the true scholar? Is he to be fitted merely for teaching school?

The solution lies in the return to the Mark Hopkins idea. The universities and colleges should spend a little more money for teachers with personalities and less for business managers who take up the teaching profession after failures elsewhere.

But there would still be a fly in the ointment. Unfortunately these sort of teachers are not a commodity to be purchased F. O. B. from a large mail order house. There are but few of them in existence. So what we need is a system for developing this sort of teacher.

To find what we need we must look no farther than All Souls College at Oxford University.

All Souls isn't a college at all, as we understand the term. There are no undergraduates. It is merely an exclusive club of intellectual swells, picked graduates of other colleges who live, at the expense of the foundation, in a kind of divine idleness. They have no duties to speak of. They may read books or write them or they may think or they may do nothing at all. They ripen in the sunshine of pure and unapplied learning; their souls grow wings; their intellects grow vigorous, their personalities acquire flavor. At the appointed time, when they feel the call, they descend to teach.

Is America too far gone in Business to see this need? Have we strayed at too great a length up the road of standarization? Can we imagine a group of free companions, interested in the good things for the mind, brilliant learned, wise, virtuous?

Lets breathe a prayer that in some, not too distant day, a philanthropist with sound and far-seeing sense will come forth and found an oasis from which one may be rested after a tiresome journey in the limitless desert of standardization; a place where with books, a greensward and trees, roaring open fires and good food, a true culture may be developed.

In closing, such culture is possible with out these conditions. But with them it could be more wide spread.

BAKE.

The Alumni Association of the Chestertown High School will hold a bake at Turners Garage on Saturday morning at 11 A. M.

TO HOLDERS OF SECOND LIBERTY LOAN BONDS

EXCHANGE OFFERING OF NEW TREASURY BONDS

Recipients Of Honorary Degrees At Washington

In presenting the names of those elected to receive honorary degrees at Washington College last Monday Prof. Wm. R. Howell of the College Faculty read the following very interesting biographical sketches.

Herbert Clark Hoover, miner, engineer and scholar of the classics; honorary citizen of Belgium, freeman of half the cities of Europe; whose intelligent direction fed the allied armies and civilian populations in the face of disorganized production, and through whose inspired and herculean efforts untold thousands of non-combatant and poverty-stricken aged men and women and little children were saved from the annihilating scythe of starvation during and after the war; whose name has made our country loved and respected by millions in every civilized land, and whose scientific knowledge and experience will be credited in history with the curbing of the greatest peace-time disaster that has ever befallen our own country: Herbert Clark Hoover, Secretary of Commerce of the United States, great and faithful servant of his fellow-men of every race and creed.

General Joseph B. Seth is a native of the Eastern Shore. For sixty years a practitioner of law, he is a senior member of the firm of Seth, Shehan & Marshall. He is the dean of the Talbot County bar. He has served his State as Speaker of the House of Delegates and as President for two years, of the Maryland Senate. As Commander of the Oyster Navy in 1890-1892 he is the father of the present Oyster Force and was instrumental in putting on the statute books much progressive conservation legislation. He built the B. C. & A. Railroad from Ocean City to Claiborne and was its first president. He is now 81 years of age and a most highly respected citizen of the county and state.

Dr. John O. Spencer is a native of Pennsylvania and received his education at Illinois Wesleyan University, Columbia University and Oxford University, England. After some teaching experience in this country, he went to Japan and spent 15 years in the service of the Tokyo Anglo-Japanese College. On his return to America, he became principal of the Hudson River Institute at Cloverach, N. Y., from which position he was called to the presidency of Morgan College in Baltimore in 1902. Here President Spencer is accomplishing an outstanding piece of work for the State in negro education. Under his charge Morgan College has taken its place among the first institutions of its kind in the country.

Dr. Spencer was appointed to the Maryland State Board of Education in 1912 by Governor Goldsborough. In 1925 Governor Ritchie selected him as chairman of the Maryland Interracial Commission. He is a member of the Baltimore Conference, Methodist Episcopal Church; a member of the City Club; of the Hillendale Golf Club; and a life member of the Asiatic Society of Japan.

Millard Evelyn Tydings was born April 6, 1890, at Havre de Grace, Maryland. He attended the public schools at Havre de Grace but did not graduate therefrom. He entered the Maryland Agricutural College and graduated therefrom in 1910 receiving the Degree of B. S. in M. E.

He attended the University of Maryland Law School and passed the State Bar Examinations in 1913 receiving the Degree of LLD. (LLB.)

He was elected a member of the House of Delegates in 1915. served during the Session of 1916 and when President Wilson called for volunteers for the Mexican Border, he enlisted the day the call was issued on June 18, 1916, in the National Guard and served 5 months on the Mexican Border.

When war was declared with Germany, Aprril 6, 1917, Senator Tydings enlisted as a private in Company C of the Maryland National Guard. In May 1917, he was promoted to 2nd Lieut.; in August 1917, he was promoted to 1st Lieut.; on January 12, 1918, he was promoted to Captain; on September 4, 1918, he was promoted to Major and on November 7, 1918. he was promoted to Lieut. Col. He received his training at Anniston, Ala.; went over seas in June 1918 and returned, May 1919.

In November 1919, he was re-elected to the Maryland House of Delegates and was made Speaker of this Body for the Session of 1920. In 1921, he was elected to the Maryland State Senate but resigned in 1922 to become a candidate for the National House of Representatives to which body he was elected.

He was re-elected to the National House of Representatives in 1924 and was elected to the United States Senate in 1926.

KIBLER'S CORNER

No. 10 Wednesday, June 8 Vol. 1

A small boy of our acquaintance asked us this morning what it is that flies, sings, and has four legs. And when we gave it up, he said it was two canaries.

Some good looking wheat in prospect this season. Cash is always acceptable and that's what we pay. Let us handle your wheat crop this season. We pay the highest market price, plus a convenient place to deliver.

We're never safe. We get into the bath tub and zowie! Our feet slip out from under us and we nearly crack our cranium on the porcelain. We step into a little hole out in the back yard and sprain our ankle. And to cap the climax, we slam the car door and nearly amputate a finger. Danger lurks at every turn.

We again have the selected lump coal for threshing which gives entire satisfaction, once tried, always used.

The strawberry shortcake season is on full blast. One of our neighbors says he took home a box of strawberries yesterday and none of his family cared for any, so he had to eat the entire box himself. What a beautiful example of genuine unselfishness.

Mary had a little lamb,
You've heard that fact before,
But have you heard she passed her plate,
And had a little more?

Better coal—this is a very general statement—but, the many satisfied customers who come back proves that they are convinced our coal is "better coal." Try a ton—you'll be convinced, too.

Order your coal now at reduced prices.
