VOL. XXXIV. NO. 34. CHESTERTOWN, MD., WEDNESDAY, MAY 25, 1927 $1.00 A YEAR IN ADVANCE

OUT OF THE FRYING PAN

Nell C. Westcott

Lots of people are admiring the colonial architecture of The ENTERPRISE these days. So many columns, you know.

Have you seen the enlargement of the aerial pictures of Chestertown and Washington College? Some are on view at Jefferson's. Chestertown's waterfront would be hard to surpass.

Our pet peeve is the man who parks his feet under our seat in the movies and then keeps time with the music.

Speaking of the movies—last Thursday a wonderful tribute was paid to the art of Lon Chaney and Renee Adoree in "Mr. Wu." The usual crowd of 'well you know some of Mencken's pet words) started to hoot at the first bit of tragedy. Some of us who had read the book and could appreciate a good thing when we had the chance to see it were disgusted enough with the rough necks but as the story developed even they were hushed into silence. It was a fine picture, beautifully staged, Lon Chaney at his best and Chestertown was more than fortunate in having so recent a production shown. We hear that Baltimore has not yet had "Mr. Wu."

One of the town's most prominent Rotarians is now on the briny deep rotating toward Ostend. After a dizzy Convention we understand he will make a tour on his own without all of Chestertown appearing as it has a habit of doing at Basket Ball games in Baltimore. Still, a few Chestertonians are abroad and the world is pretty small after all. Chestertown wishes him Bon Voyage.

Kent's women have not needed the daily dozens lately. Just trying to rains has shrdlu cmfwyp shrdlu shrd keep the windows clean between the recent rains has been exercise enough.

FAMOUS FIRST WORDS:

Plutarch: "I am sorry that I have no more lives to give to my count try.

Samson: "I'm strong for you, kid."

Noah: "It floats."

Jonah: "You can't keep a good man down."

Methusalah: "The first hundred years are the hardest."

Cleopatra: "You're as easy as Mark Anthony."

Solomon: "I love the ladies."

David: "The bigger they are, the harder they fall."

Helen of Troy: "So this is Paris."

Columbus: "I don't know where I'm going but I'm on my way."

Nero: "Keep the home fires burning."

Sir Walter Raleigh to Queen Elizabeth: "Step on it, Kid."

Queen Elizabeth to Sir Walter Raleigh: "Keep your shirt on."

Marion Smith on the Lancastria: "Has the moon come up?"

Flapper: "I don't know, everything else has,"

Saturday nights the movies are generally attended mostly by people from the outlying districts; last Saturday after the long seige of mud roads the many dwellers among those roads appreciated the predicament of the dinosaur that was mired. His name was Mud and he had a sympathetic audience.

The latest thing in the sale of hosiery is the three piece set. One pair and a "spare." Hope the originator makes the fortune he deserves out of the idea.

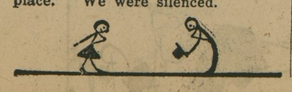
"Do you keep fountain pens?" the timid looking young man inquired.

"No," she snapped, "we sell them." "Anyway" he said as he strolled to the door "you'll keep the one you were going to sell me. Good morning."

London Opinion comments on the fact that a society has been formed each member of which has to sow a packet of flower seeds along country roads. "We presume that motorists are expected to stop long enough to pluck blossoms for a wreath to lay on each pedestrian."

We innocently remarked to a wise young man that our objection to certain ultra modern magazines of criticism was that they were wholly destructive and gave nothing to put in the place of what they tear down.

"You mean then," he answered, "that if you get rid of a pain in one spot you want another to take its place." We were silenced.



LOCAL WOMAN KILLED BY STREET CAR

Mrs. James W. Crouch Run Down And Killed In Baltimore Monday

On Way To Boat For Home

Mrs. James W. Crouch, sixty-one, Chestertown, was almost instantly killed on Monday aftenoon, in Baltimore, when run down by a street car.

Mrs. Crouch, who with her husband had been shopping in Baltimore, was hastening across Baltimore street to catch the boat which was to bring them home. She was walking a few feet behind her husband.

As Motorman E. J. Brown, of the No. 17 line, saw that he was going to strike Mrs. Crouch he applied the brakes to his car. Mrs. Crouch was struck and dragged several feet before the car could be brought to a stop.

A trouble crew was called and extricated Mrs. Crouch from beneath the wheels of the car. She was rushed to Mercy Hospital where she was pronounced dead.

Mrs. Crouch is survived by her husband, Mr. James W. Crouch, who is teller of the Chestertown Bank of Maryland, and one son, Norman.

Talbot Withdraws From Del-Mar-Va

Other Counties May Follow Step

The Kent County Chamber of Commerce was notified yesterday of the withdrawal of Talbot County fom the Del-Mar-Va Eastern Shore Association.

The Talbot County authorities gave as their reason the fact that they felt that Del-Mar-Va was being of no use to their particular section and the money being paid that association might be used with better results elsewhere.

They stated that they did not doubt the value of Del-Mar-Va to some sections of the peninsula but that Talbot was not one of these sections.

It is the aim of the Talbot Chamber of Commerce to sell water front farms to a wealthy class of people and no inquiries of this sort had come their way thru Del-Mar-Va. They also stated, which is true, that for the the past two months all inquiries coming thru Del-Mar-Va had been withheld because some chamber had used them improperly.

It is the belief of many local people that the Kent Chamber will soon follow in the footsteps of the Talbot group and withdraw from the Del-Mar-Va Association.

Plans To Combine Two Kent Churches Discussed

The Rev. Dr. E. C. Makosky, president of the Maryland Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church, met with the official board of the Kennedyville Methodist Protestant Church, the object of which is the combining of the Kennedyville and Crumpton charges.

Since the death of the Rev. Edwin H. Gardner, pastor of the Crumpton charge, some months ago, that charge has been without the services of a minister. Members of the congregation pledged a substantial sum for the support of a pastor at the session of the conference held in Starr Church, Baltimore, in April, but it was not sufficient. and the suggestion to attach the charge to Kennedyville was made during the conference session.

President Makosky and members of the Crumpton charge feel they should have the services of a pastor and the charge is willing to accept a union with Kennedyville.
