BENJAMIN
FRANKLIN
Staunch Advocate of THRIFT

Born January 17th, 1706.

Few men knew the value of thrift and practised it in their lives as did Benjamin Franklin. In money matters he was not stingy but saving; not foolish, but wise; not miserly, but frugal.

He practised what he preached and many of his homely rules for handling money still live.

Here are three:

Save First—Spend Afterward
To Know The Value of a Dollar—Try to Borrow One
A Penny Saved is a Penny Earned

FORMER KENT MAN SATISFIED WITH NEW HOME

R. Goldey Warren Tells Why He Likes New Brunswick, New Jersey

R. Goldey Warren, a native of Kent County and formerly in the insurance business here, is apparently satisfied with his new home, New Brunswick, N. J. The New Brunswick Daily Home News runs a daily column of interviews with prominent business men of that city under the head "The Pulse of New Brunswick." On January 21 the following interview with Mr. Warren appeared:

R. G. Warren, a popular agent for the Prudential Life Insurance Company in this city, when asked his opinion of New Brunswick, said: "I think New Brunswick is far ahead of any town of its size in the United States—at least I have never been in a city with about the same population that could compare with this town.

"I can't criticize New Brunswick. It seems to me to be a pretty good place to live. Of course, there are projects sponsored by the various organizations for the betterment of the city with which I am heartily in favor. The Junior Chamber of Commerce is a body that seems to take a splendid interest in anything that will be of benefit here. I am a member of this organization and attended its annual dinner last night. Mr. Jacob Whitfield, New Brunswick's industrial secretary, and Mr. C. P. Brewer, the head of the new industrial extension course sponsored by Rutgers University, impressed me very favorably with their speeches.

"There's one thing about New Brunswick that could be improved, and that is the train service. I believe the population could be increased to an enormous extent if the Pennsylvania Railroad would give us more trains that would take people to and from New York in fifty-five minutes. A great many Long Island towns have a large population due to that very fact—that their residents can commute to and from their various business in New York without a great loss of time.

"I have been in this city three years and I can truthfully say that I have never been homesick in all that time. That seems to me to speak well of the town, for in order not to become homesick there must be something to hold the interest."

—Don't fail to see "The Quarterback" at the Lyceum, Friday and Saturday nights.

DEATHS

Charles Brown, foster son of Capt. Charles Ayres, of Rock Hall, died at his home in Chester, Pa., Saturday, Jan. 22nd, 1927, of double pneumonia. A car was sent for Capt. Ayres when it was realized that Mr. Brown's illness would terminate fatally. The deceased leaves a wife. three daughters and a stepdaughter, one of the daughters being Mrs. Graham Joyner of Rock Hall and Baltimore. Funeral services were held and interment made at Chester.

Henry M. Donaldson died at 11 o'clock Saturday night, Jan. 29th, 1927, at his home near Rock Hall, aged 79 years. The deceased had lived in this section about ten years coming here from Wilmington, Del. He leaves a wife, a son, two grandchildren and two great grandchildren. The deceased had for many years been a devoted admirer of the Seventh Day Adventist faith. He was a veteran of the Federal army during the Civil War and always showed great interest in the doing of the various departments of the national and state governments. The body was removed to Wilmington Sunday and funeral services were held there Tuesday.

John Jacob Shriley died at his home in Rock Hall on Thursday last. He was 76 years of age and leaves a widow, Mrs. Emma L. Shriley, and two sons, Wm. L. and Charles B. Shriley and six grandchildren. He has been one of Kent's most respected citizens and one of our best farmers. He was tenant on the Lofland farm for over 20 years.

The funeral was held Saturday at one P. M. from the late home in Rock Hall with interment at Wesley Chapel. The bearers were J. Page Gale, W. H. Hadaway, P. Neal Wilson, Charles W. Wood, Jeff Ayres, Henry Thompson. Rev. Mr. Dawson officiating. C. L. Dodd undertaker.

Funeral services for Mrs. Amelia E. Jones, who died Sunday, were held yesterday at 2 P. M. from her late home at 205 Roland Avenue. Burial was in Loudon Park Cemetery.

Robert, who was the son of Francis Durand Hastings and Maude Wickes Hastings who formerly lived at Napoli, Rock Hall, and who is well known throughout Kent, died from the effects of blood poisoning after an illness of only forty-eight hours. He was eight years af age. The burial took palce at Cherrydale. Va.

Large Crowd Hears Mackall On Better Roads

was confronted by the problem of overloaded trucks, Maryland roads were badly broken by the heavy traffic and one of two things had to be done; either to restrict the loads to the carrying capacity of the roads or to build the roads equal to the strain and to have fewer roads but thicker and wider. The practical plan was to cause the manufacturers of motor trucks to limit loads, the law was passed in Maryland and rigidly enforced until finally the manufacturers have accepted the one safe course and have cooperated with the highway officials with five ton trucks instead of the ten ton truck of former days.

Mr. Mackall admitted that the present lateral roads conditions are most unsatisfactory. The true benificiary of the roads present and to come are the people who use them. Last year one hundred million dollars were spent to operate and maintain cars while fifty millions were spent for new cars, the total of funds for all roads was less than fifty millions, too small a ratio between the cost of cars and good roads. With more good roads a depreciation of forty million dollars on cars would be saved in one year. The proposed gas tax of 1½ cents would average $6.00 per car each year, on a "pay as you go" system. With the proposed gas tax of one cent for railroad crossing elimination in ten years all crossings would be done away with, and who, asked Mr. Mackall, can set a price on human life or who would be willing to see that one cent tax cut in half and have the danger prolonged to twenty years? All railroads are willing and glad to meet the State Roads Commission and pay one half of the expenses toward the elimination of the grade crossing.

Speaking of the proposed bridge across Chesapeake Bay, Mr. Mackall was most encouraging. In his opinion it is the best concrete proposal for the good of the entire State and for Baltimore, the Western and Eastern Shores. The business interests behind the proposed bridge are most substantial and are waiting only for the permission to build and the bridge is bound to bring to Kent and Chestertown greater prosperity than ever in the history of this section.

The meeting was thrown open for questions, one of the first of which was as to the likelihood of a bridge across the Chester River. Other smaller bridges, Mr. Mackall answered, are in greater need of replacement and no question of the local bridge is before the Legislature this year but in all probability the Chester River Bridge which joins Kent and Queen Anne will be the next large bridge to be replaced.

A dweller on the mud roads questioned being taxed when his car was useless three months during the winter to which Mr. Mackall replied that there was one of the greatest advantages of the proposed tax on gas for at least if one was mud bound there was no tax to pay for each one would pax tax in exact proportion to the use he received from the road through his car.

At the close of the meeting Mr. Rogers and Mr. Copper thanked Mr. Mackall in behalf of the Chamber of Commerce and the County for his kindness in coming and speaking to so interested an audience after which the Executive Secretary came forward and received the signatures of a number of new members for the Chamber of Commerce.

Oyster Conservation Bill In Legislature

The state conservation commissioner will have power to select and reserve for oyster conservation any portion of the natural beds and rocks of the Chesapeake Bay to be replenished by transplanting as the commissioner may deem best if a bill introduced by delegate Frank Daley is adopted.

Any resident of the state desiring to catch oysters with rakes or tongs in any of the waters of the state will first have to obtain a license for each person to be employed on every boat under a bill introduced by Delegate Lindsay.
