Breaking up a School.

We see by the dispatches that two boys at Cumberland, Ohio, attempted to whip a school teacher, and the teacher stabbed both the boys, killing one instantly and fatally wounding the other. There is probably no position that has more annoyance than teaching a country school where there is a lot of big boys who seem bent on mischief, and whose highest ambition is to whip the teacher, and turn him out of doors. Occasionally there is a school that becomes so hard that no man will attempt to teach it, and it is a prize fighter, and then does not know anything but how to fight. Sometimes the appointment of a beautiful and accomplished young lady as a teacher of a hard school will have a good effect, as she may be able to win the big boys by kindness. We were very much interested in the case of a young lady who had just been appointed to teach in a school in the State of Maryland. She was a beautiful young lady, and was very kind and gentle, and she was very successful in her teaching.

His Pa Invents a Stove.

"Hi! Hi! Now I have got you," said the grocery man to the bad boy, as he came in and jumped upon the counter and tied the end of a ball of cotton to the tail of a dog, and "kick" the dog upon the other dog that was following a passing sleigh, causing the twine to pay out until the whole ball scattered along the block. "Condemn you, I've a notion to choke you. Who tied that twine to the dog's tail?"

The Young Men of the Period.

While it is always in order to scold at the girls, the epidemic appears to have raged with more than the usual violence this winter. The leading preacher in a great church has just concluded a series of sermons on the delinquencies of the latter day girl. The story has been told anew of her frivolity, her lack of earnestness, her refusal to do her part in making a home, her loss of spirituality and all the other evils which afflict her and through her the community, and the refrain to each accusation has been: "Where are we to get mothers for the next generation?"

Respect for Parents.

If children could realize but a small portion of the anxiety their parents feel on their account, they would pay far better respect to the parental wishes. A good child, and one in whom confidence can be placed, is the one who does not allow himself to disobey his parents, nor do anything when his parents are absent that he believes they would disapprove were they present. The good behavior of parents is often so engraven on the heart of a child that after years of care and toil do not efface it, and in the hour of temptation the thought of a parent has been the salvation of a child, though the parent may be sleeping in the grave, and the ocean may roll between that sacred spot and the tempted child. A small token of parental affection borne about the person, especially a parent's likeness, would frequently prove a talisman for good. A Polish prince was accustomed to carry the picture of his father always in his bosom, and on any particular occasion he would look upon it and say, "Let me do nothing unbecoming so excellent a father." Such respect for a father or mother is one of the best traits in the character of a son or daughter. "Honor thy father and thy mother," that it may be well with thee, is the first commandment with promise," says the sacred Book, and happy is the child who acts accordingly.
