BRILLIANT NUPTIAL EVENT.

The Daughter of H. W. Vickers, Esq., Marries a Prominent Physician of Denver, Col.—A Beautiful Wedding.

Chestertown society has been on the qui vive of excitement for over a month in anticipation of the Vickers-Robinson wedding. The Chestertown M. E. Church for the occasion was transformed into a scene of charming loveliness. Busy hands darkened the windows and changed the arrangement of the seats so that a wide aisle was made in the center of the edifice, while the ladies had banked the pulpit and chancel with pryamids of blooming lillies and graceful palms, from the midst of which shone the mellow light of a score of candles held in golden candelabras. Long before the noon hour Wednesday the church was filled with people while from the neighboring windows and porches crowds watched the wedding party as they entered the church.

The interested parties were Miss Jennie Shemmell Vickers, eldest daughter of Harrison W. Vickers, Esq., and the grand-daughter of the late United States Senator Geo. Vickers, and Dr. William K. Robinson, of Denver, Col. Dr. Chas. A. Grise, of Union M. E. Church, Wilmington, officiated.

As the bridal party entered the church Miss Anna G. Lambert rendered the wedding march from "Lohengrin", and "Sweet Genevieve" was played during the ceremony and Mendelssohn's march as they left the altar. Preceding the ceremony Miss Lambert played "I'd Leave my Happy Home for You," "Because I Love You," etc.

Two little ribbon girls, Misses Rose Vickers and Rebecca Eliason, preceded the groom and best man, Mr. John A. Robinson, of the Balto. bar. Then followed the ushers, Messrs. Benj. F. Perkins, of the Phila. bar; Thos. I. Elliott, ex-City Solicitor of Baltimore; George Vickers, of Chestertown; Dr. Armfield Van Bibber, of Belair; Isaac Robinson, of Baltimore, and Frank Phelps, of the Baltimore bar; the bridesmaids, Misses Corinne Vickers, sister of the bride; Mary Robinson, sister of the groom; Katharine Constable, of Elkton; Wilma Graff, of Pittsburg, Pa.; Charlotte Spencer Wickes and Beulah Hayes, of Chestertown. Immediately preceding the bride, who entered on the arm of her father, walked the maid of honor, Miss Clara Vickers, sister of the bride.

The bride was elegantly gowned in a princess train of white peau de soie, covered with liberty silk, finished with a bertha of duchesse lace. The bridal veil of tulle, falling from a wreath of orange blossoms that were worn by the bride's mother at her wedding, was caught by a diamond pin, a gift from her mother.

The maid of honor wore a gown of pink crepe de chine, decolette, trimmed with mousseline, and carried Catherine Mermot roses. The bridesmaids were uniformly dressed in white crepe de chine over silk en train, chiffon tucked gimps, white sashes, white aigrettes, and carried lilies of the valley. The little ribbon girls, in white organdie, with pink sashes, held a ribbon caught with Easter lilies.

The ushers and groom were dressed in Prince Albert coat, light pants and carried high silk hats.

Immediately following the ceremony the bridal pary partook of an informal luncheon at the elegant country home of the bride's parents, Lauretum Place. Dr. and Mrs. Robinson took the afternoon train for the North and West.

The presents numbering nearly two hundred were magnificent.

Mr. and Mrs. Harrison W. Vickers gave their daughter, Miss Jennie, a reception at their home, Lauretum Place, on Tuesday evening. The guests were received in the drawing room by Mr. and Mrs. Vickers, Miss Mary Elliott, of Baltimore, a bridesmaid of Mr. and Mrs. Vickers, Miss Jennie Vickers, and the groom-elect, Dr. Wm. K. Robinson. Mrs. Vickers was gowned in black silk, with diamonds; Miss Elliott, black silk and lace; Miss Vickers, pink satin, pink mousseline trimmings, diamonds and pearls.

Refreshments were served during the evening, Mrs. Hope H. Barroll and Mrs. Wilbur Eliason presiding at the chocolate table and Miss Rose Elliott and Miss Osborne at the coffee table.

Among those present were Mrs. W. Burns Trundle, Dr. and Mrs. Robinson, Misses Grace and Mary Robinson, Miss Juliet Whiteley, Miss Carpenter, Miss Ridie Knight, Miss Charlotte Wickes, Thomas Ireland Elliott, Misses Mary A. and Rose Elliott, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence W. Perkins, James Bunting, Isaac Robinson, Frank Phelps, all of Baltimore; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Constable, Miss Kitty Constable, John and Reginald Constable, of Elkton; Mrs. John H. White, Salisbury; Rodney Sharp, of Lewes, Del.; Dr. and Mrs. Charles A. Grise, of Wilmington; Miss Wilma Graff, of Pittsburg; Armfield Van Bibber, of Belair; Mr. and Mrs. Zeigler, Greencastle, Pa; Miss Alice Osborne, Washington, D. C.; T. Blackiston and Benj. F. Perkins, Philadelphia; Judges James A. Pearce, Frederick Stump and William R. Martin.

Electric Rail Road In Kent!

From Tolchester or Rock Hall via Chestertown and Other Towns to Middletown, Del.

An advertisement in another column looks like business. The "Chestertown Light, Power and Railway Company," incorporated in 1894, is to be put in practical use. The commissioners had one meeting but it failed of substantial results, and the whole subject has lain dormant ever since. The matter has continued, however, to be a subject of general interest and discussion, everybody desiring to see an electric road built but nobody willing to shoulder the labors and responsibilities of such an undertaking. The act of '94 grants large powers to the company, the object as stated in the act being to provide improved communication between Chestertown and Chesapeake Bay and elsewhere in Kent county. The capital stock is placed at $50,000, with privilege of increasing the same to a half million at $50 per share. As soon as one hundred shares are subscribed and one dollar per share paid on same the company may organize and begin operations.

The notice referred to states that Wilmer Emory, Esq., has consented to take hold of the matter. This of itself is encouraging as this gentleman has had much experience in the promotion of such enterprises. He was the leading spirit in the construction of the Baltimore and Queenstown Rail and Steamboat line, and his acquaintance with capitalists and others specially fit him to put our enterprise in practical use.

Mr. Emory has carefully looked over the ground and studied the powers granted under the act referred to and he believes such a railroad as that proposed can be made successful in the highest degree. The stock will pay handsome dividends and every section of the county—especially the larger towns and villages—may be placed in close rail communication with each other and the outside world by a splendid electrical railway service.

Imagination alone can picture the advantages of such an improvement. In a beautiful section like Kent whose thrifty farms, fruitful orchards and orderly villages; her pretty groves, level roads and crystal streams are a constant attraction and invitation to pleasure and health seekers—the facilities of electric cars for passengers and light freights is all that is needed to bring thousands of people from the cities to dwell in summer cottages on the numerous water courses.

Capitalists in the great cities will be glad to put money in this enterprise and it only needs local encouragement and sympathy to make it a success. Stock books will be opened on the 14th of May and an organization will be effected immediately thereafter. With the wisdom and energy of Mr. Emory to guide in the enterprise it may be expected to go forward to quick consummation, and it is possible that the county will have the electric cars running before the end of the year.

The road with its branches, power houses and sidings will cost about a half million dollars. The distance for the main line will be a little over 40 miles—12 to 14 from the Bay to Chestertown, and from here to Middletown 28 miles

COURT NOTES.

In one case delayed from April of las year five jurymen called of the regular panel had served as grand jurymen in finding the indictment.

One of the lady witnesses in a case from Millington neighborhood created much amusement for the court spectators by her sayings. She spoke of some opponents as "Sandtown-Millingtoners," and told Lawyer Smith "You don't know everything, sir!"

There were more than the usual number of bail forfeits. Among them was that of H. K. Stout of $100, given by his mother who lives in Dover, Del. Young Stout who is known here as "Young Kid McCoy" was in jail for disorder on the Kent train while returning from the Bryan meeting at Smyrna, when his mother came down and bailed him out. He has since enlisted in the United States army.

Quite a number of distinguished citizens of our neighboring county were in court Tuesday interested in the Hendrix-Catlin-Trust Co. case. Among them we noticed Col. W. Scott Roberts, of the Centreville Record, who looks as though he could make a successful Congressional campaign and not be worried; Dr. S. C. Dudley, of Church Hill, one of the most popular Democratic leaders of the county; Finley Roberts, Register of Wills; Louis Hergenrather, Charles H. Jefferson and Chas. R. Walls, judges of the Orphans' Court, Dr. J. H. G. Weedon, Henry Newnam, Esq., and many others.

"Smart" is not a good name for a local option detective, but he gets there all the same. He refused to take any part of the fine to which he was entitled as informer.

Mr. Howard Abrahams, the secretary of the American Bonding and Trust Co., of Baltimore, was an important witness in the Hendrix case.

Among the visiting counsel during the week in court we noticed the following: Thos Ireland Elliott, J. Henry Baker, Clarence W. Perkins and James W. Chapman, Jr., of Baltimore; Albert Constable, Elkton; J. H. C. Legg and Charles E. Tucker, Centreville; T. H. Robinson, James J. Archer, L. M. Hanes, Harford.

Mr. Geo. T. Satterfield, a witness from Rock Hall in a dredge case, in reply to a question as to his sight said he could see the State House steeple at Annapolis from Rock Hall, a distance of twenty miles. Capt. Stevens says he can do so also on a clear day.

WHARF IMPROVEMENTS.

The improvements being made to the Thompson-Burchinal wharf at Chestertown are being rapidly pushed to completion. It will be one of the finest properties on the river. A large barge loaded with 9,000 bushels of shells has been unloaded at the wharf this week by Bramble and Nickerson and the old place takes on a new appearance. Lewis & Sparks expect to complete their contract next week, having given to the new owners, Messrs. J. D. Bacchus & F. G. Usilton, a first-class job that does credit to all concerned. White oak piles and wharf logs were used exclusively in the rebuilding. The new wharf is 183 feet front, and will accommodate several vessels at a time. Other improvements will follow.

The Tolchester Company have about completed extensive improvements at Buck Neck. A new wharf has been built, Bowers & Stavely have finished the big warehouse and cattle pens and the old place is taking on new life. The public would appreciate a modern waiting room, Captain.

The new wharf at Fredericktown is also nearing completion.

Capt. C. T. Stratton is making valuable improvements to the Cliff wharf by building heavy breastworks around.
