DENTON, MARYLAND, Saturday Morning, October 6th, 1883.

DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

STATE TICKET. FOR GOVERNOR: ROBERT M. McLANE, OF HAMILTON CITY. FOR COMPTROLLER: J. FRANK TURNER, OF TALBOT COUNTY. FOR ATTORNEY-GENERAL: CHARLES B. ROBERTS, OF CARROLL COUNTY. COUNTY TICKET. FOR THE HOUSE OF DELEGATES: ROBERT B. CULBERTH, JAMES H. DOUGLASS. FOR JUDGES OF THE ORPHANS' COURT: GEORGE H. MOORE, HENRY F. WILLIS, THOMAS E. JOHNSON. FOR COUNTY COMMISSIONERS: M. HOOPER GRAY, BENJAMIN KINAXON, RUFUS C. HARRIS. FOR STATE'S ATTORNEY: MARSHALL S. MUTCHLER. FOR SHERIFF: MATTHEW GAREY. FOR COUNTY SURVEYOR: THOMAS B. JOHNS.

A Democratic Nominating in Kentucky announces its platform as a "tariff for revenue and whiskey for snake bites only."

A Maryland man who strained his intellect in enjoining the Republican State platform has been sent to an insane asylum.

The Democratic ticket is an excellent one, and the Democrats will be content with electing it by a landslide. They intend to roll up an old-fashioned Democratic majority.

NOTWITHSTANDING that Congress man-elect Holton is the Republican candidate for Governor, he is unwilling to inspire his party with confidence by resigning his seat in the House. He is not sanguine of success.

A Maryland Republican paper admits that the grand old party in this State labors under "some disadvantages." One of its obvious "disadvantages" is the lack of several thousand voters whose presence is indispensable to success.

The postal notes don't seem to have achieved the success that was expected of them. It has been found that the punched holes can be altered so as to largely increase their face value, and more than all, they can be used for buying lottery tickets in spite of defiance of the Postmaster General's orders.

A CLEAR majority of the voters of Maryland are Democrats. It is their duty to carry the pending election. Their brethren in other States expect them to do this—Washington Post. Let the Democrats of Maryland not disappoint the Democrats elsewhere. It is our duty to carry Maryland as much as it is the duty of Democrats elsewhere to carry their own States. By retaining our supremacy we can do much in aid of the Democracy.

The process of cheapening postage began in 1845. Before that year the postal rates varied with the distance—from six cents for thirty miles to twenty-five cents for more than 400 miles. By the reduction of that year letters were carried for any distance under 300 miles for five cents, and for any greater distance for ten cents. The law of 1851 made the cost of postage three cents for 3,000 miles, and six cents for any greater distance. The last change, from three to two cents, is trivial as compared with previous changes.

ONE of the most ludicrous exhibitions of partisan folly ever witnessed are the Republican appeals to Governor Hamilton for his assistance in defeating the Democratic ticket. Our sturdy old Governor has given no reason any reason to believe that he could contemplate, without regret, the accession of the Republican party to power in this State. His friends in this county are warning up and will give their best service on election day not only to swell Messrs. McLane, Roberts and Turner's majority, but will work hard for the county ticket.

A Political Novelty. The Democratic ticket in Queen Anne county, on Tuesday was nominated by a convention chosen on the "jury plan." The ticket headed by Mr. Turpin for the State Senate so chosen is published elsewhere in this paper. The "jury plan" was designed to get a convention without factional contests in the primaries. Some time ago a committee was appointed by a county convention to put the plan in operation. This committee was representative of all the districts. Two meetings were held and the sessions were perfectly harmonious, and pledges were given to do everything possible to promote party harmony. On Friday last the committee went into session at 10 o'clock and worked hard all day, only taking one recess of a half-hour for dinner, and were in session until after 8 o'clock in the evening. Thirty names from each district, or two hundred and ten altogether, were taken up, scrutinized, discussed and voted on separately. The names agreed upon were then written on slips of paper and placed in a box by districts, and a man being blinded the delegates and alternates were drawn from the whole thirty names selected for the district.

Five delegates were in this way chosen from each of the seven districts of the county, making a body of 35 delegates to comprise the nominating convention. Alternates were chosen for each district also. When the convention met on Tuesday Dr. N. Comegys was elected president. For State Senator the candidates were W. T. P. Turpin, Dr. Washington Finley and Wm. Henry Legg. Mr. Turpin was nominated on the fourth ballot. For the House of Delegates were A. J. Gadd, William Dudley, Wm. Busted, W. Scott Roberts, Jas. R. Sotler, Wm. H. Legg and M. E. Burton. Mr. Legg was nominated on the first ballot, and Gadd and Burton on the second ballot. Drs. Finley and Legg declined nomination for the Orphans' Court judges, though they were made by acclamation.

Of the effect of the jury plan this tried in Queen Anne for the first time the Centreville Observer says: "It contains all the essential elements of fairness, and although in the wheel of fortune those names may not come out that we hope to see come, yet no man can say he has not had an equal chance with every other man to secure a legal and favored to him. Thus with an impartial central committee bent only upon doing its duty as it understood it, and with an executive committee determined to do the same, the lists have been carefully scrutinized, and the names of delegates and alternates fairly and honestly drawn. The result is that a fairly representative convention has been called together to put forth a ticket. All the aspirants and others have submitted their names to the new plan and all have been fairly dealt with. All have fared alike, and a delegation has been drawn from each district as good as delegations usually are, and without any of the antagonisms and heart burnings incident to a primary contest. The thing has worked smoothly this far, and the people have had no occasion to become excited or bitter or to produce unfriendly and angry feelings. All agree that the thing has worked honestly and well, and those who fail to get on the ticket will doubtless take a philosophical view and wait for another turn."

Hong Cheek's Obsequies. PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 30.—Hong Cheek, a Chinaman, was buried on day at 1 P. M. Ninth street from Cherry to Vine, and Race street from Ninth to Twelfth, were crowded with a mass of humanity. Hong Cheek, a man of middle age, was afflicted with a disease of consumption. Wing Kee, whose laundry is on Ninth street, and Race street, was a friend of Hong Cheek, and it was at his place of business that the chief mourners assembled to prepare for the obsequies. The impression prevailed among the crowd outside that the corpse was in the laundry, and repeated attempts were made to gain admittance. The crash finally became so great that a squad of thirty policemen was called to the scene, and ropes were placed around Race and Ninth streets to keep the surging crowds back so that street cars and other vehicles could pass. In the laundry and in the rooms adjacent to the laundry, a number of the city were gathered. They chanted in unison a wild barbaric air keeping time by patting each other on the head or shoulders. A cauldron of boiling tea stood on the table in one of the rooms, of which each of the mourners at intervals of a few moments drank a sip. After the tea-drinking and chanting had been concluded, one of the chief mourners disappeared into the laundry and through trap doors, and returned in a few minutes with two arms full of red, white and black cambric. Upon the arms, shoulders and head of each of his fellow mourners the master of ceremonies wrapped the cambric, tying also up on each Chinaman's forehead two balls of cambric. A large red flag bearing a curious inscription, colored handkerchiefs, and two banners were distributed, and then the sorrow-stricken multitude filed out into the street, where the corpse was awaiting them in a hearse, accompanied by fifteen carriages.

According to a Chinese custom, even on or night of the Chinaman approached the hearse with the intention of taking the coffin out, opening it, and displaying the body upon the bier. This was prohibited by the police. The grotesque appearance of the Mongolians in their habiliments of mourning, awakened the humor of the spectators, who crowded around the carriages, shouting and laughing. Wing Kee notated the hearse, being with him a large crowd of people filled with his paper about the size of a bank note, water marked with Chinese characters, and perforated with many small holes. The paper was symbolic of money, the Chinese having a superstition that each corner is occupied by a demon, who, if not thus appeased, will prohibit the passage of the corpse's spirit to the next world. Wing Kee was aided in his efforts to exorcise the bad spirits by the chief mourners, who waved banners, frantically and shook their handkerchiefs in the attempt to frighten away all evil spirits who would not be appeased by the money offering.

The cortege proceeded to Macdowell Cemetery, at Tenth street and Washington avenue. Here there was a tremendous crush. Little children were knocked down and trampled upon. Several women, one of whom had a young child in her arms, were removed senseless, and two children were badly injured. The coffin was taken from the hearse and carefully lowered into the grave, which was 12 feet deep. The banners and flag bearers waved their emblems while the first shovelfuls of clay were thrown in. After a slight covering of earth the strips of cloth were eagerly seized by the spectators. After romping over the green sward in boisterous manner, and singing, apparently, their most lusty songs, the Chinamen left for their respective homes.

The Wilmington Evening says: We do not doubt that the greater part of the peninsula is destined to be covered with peach orchards, or at any rate that the business of peach growing will yet reach greater proportions than it has hitherto attained. The peach market both at home and abroad is widening year by year, and it is capable yet of almost indefinite extension. Every improvement in rail or water transportation enables the peninsula to add profitably to the acreage of peach orchards. This year's crop would have been a profitable one probably even had not a single canny or dryish been running. The business is very far from overdone and the peach must stay.

RACES AT PIMLICO.—The Maryland Jockey Club stakes have closed. The nominations for the fall races are unusually good. The Pimlico Stakes which are to be run for on Wednesday, October 24th, have received an addition of $5,000 to the entrance fee of $500 for each horse. The following horses are named for this stake: Mr. P. Esch's "The Flying Miss Wood" and the list closes with Mr. E. B. Wall's "Wall-flower" and Miss Norris, Patton's Meditation and other favorites. Then follow the Dwyer brothers with the redoubtable George Kinney and the flying Miss Woodford and the list closes with Mr. E. B. Wall's "Wall-flower" and Miss Norris, Patton's Meditation and other favorites.

The fall meeting commences October 23d, and continues to the 26th, when the racing program offered by the Agricultural Society will commence, and fill up the interval between the opening of the fall, on the 30th. Altogether, the fall season at Pimlico promises to be exceptionally brilliant.

Courage is a noble trait. With some it requires greater courage to live than it does to die. When disease racks the frame, when some cover the person, when the muscles are soft and flabby, when the mind is looking over the gloom and despondency, what is there in life worth living, and yet many eke out such a miserable existence, living only for those who love them. When it is generally known that Brown's Iron Bitters will cure all the ailments which many hearts will be made glad to try many homes made happy!

"Mrs. Partington, what do you use for a very bad cold?" asked Mrs. Bull. "Handkerchiefs, ma'am," answered the aged dame, looking over her spectacles. Handkerchiefs are a desideratum in the event of a cold, but a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is a necessity, because it not only relieves, but cures the worst cold or cough.

Byron never uttered trite words than when he said, "Physicians don't cure the sick, they only look over and agree all the world is agreed that the best remedy is Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup."

Mr. Mansfield Brown, 40 Mulberry street, Baltimore, Md., says: "I have used Brown's Iron Bitters, and consider it a very good tonic."

Mr. Levi Pearce, Elliott City, Md., says: "I have experienced much relief from dyspepsia and debility by using Brown's Iron Bitters."
