The Democratic-Conservative party of Maryland, in State convention assembled, resolves as follows:

The Democratic-Conservative party of this State will enter upon the State and National campaign of this and the ensuing year with its whole heart.

It will demand that National taxation, in all its forms, shall be limited to such amounts as are necessary for the economical administration of the government.

It will demand such revision and amendment of the Federal laws relating to shipping and the carriage of ocean freights as will restore our merchant marine to its former prosperity.

It has lightened the burden of taxation by abolishing offices not necessary for the public service.

and enlightened policy of governmental reform.

It has progressed in giving full effect to the requirements of the bill of rights.

It has exactly fulfilled all pecuniary obligations of the State.

It has by the amendment and impartial execution of the laws of the State maintained peace and good order within its territory.

It will endeavor to remedy any unjust discrimination against our local interests which may be practiced by corporations in this State.

It will afford such protection as can be given by law to the health, safety and welfare of men, women and children engaged in labor in this State.

It has organized an additional system of free public schools for the use of the people of the State.

That the thanks of the Democratic party of this State are due to Governor Wm. T. Hamilton for his efforts in connection with the Legislature of the State in carrying out the declaration of principles affirmed in the Democratic platform of 1879.

Early Rising.

We wrote for a paper, some years ago, an article insisting that people say in bed till they get rested.

When he goes to bed, he is pretty badly off, and he will not be likely to get over it till some hard-hearted publisher, to whom he offers it to print, calls his affecting lines "weak as dish-water."

He feels that without her he shall die. Perish the universe, and all in it, before he forgets her!

He lives in this high-pressure condition for a few weeks, and then he begins to tone down.

It is a celebrated thought of Socrates, that if all the misfortunes of mankind were cast into a public stock, in order to be equally distributed among the whole species.

"What is conscience?" asked a schoolmaster of his class. "An inward monitor," replied a bright little fellow. "And what is a monitor?" "One of the iron clads."

Counting Days.

Almost everybody has gone courting or wanted to go. Everybody has either gone or seen some one else go.
