The extension of the track is being made this week to the river, but the pier will not be rebuilt at once.

R. HESTON HICKS FAILS!

The news that Mr. R. Heston Hicks had applied to the United States Court for the benefit of the bankrupt law, came to this county Saturday night and proved startling to nearly every one. Mr. Hicks has been conducting a large store at Galena, in the Horsey building, for a number of years and was looked upon by the people of that vicinity as good as gold. He is a gentleman of high character, but owing to large book accounts, which could not be collected at once, he was forced to take the step mentioned. Mr. Hicks thinks he will be able to pay every debt.

The statement issued by his attorney places his liabilities at $10,346.15 and assets at $8,233.20. The liabilities are divided among sixty-three creditors. The assets include stock in trade appraised at $3,570.70, and $1,562.50 due on open accounts. The building occupied by Mr. Hicks was sold at public sale to him by Messrs. Barroll & Pearce, trustees, for $2,500, on which there is a balance due of about $2,000. It is hoped that Mr. Hicks will be able to resume business again. Rev. A. P. Prettyman is named as trustee. A meeting of the creditors is called for April 16.

Court Cases—The Court of Appeals Tuesday rendered a dicision reversing the judgement of the Circuit Court for Kent county in the Blakeney case. The particulars of the case is as follows: An indictment was returned by the Grand jury against W. A. Blakeney, charged with violation of local option law. Messrs Wickes and Hynson, attorneys for the accused, demurred to the indictments and was sustained by the Court. State's Attorney Urie entered an appeal, and the decision of the Court of Appeals, just rendered reverses the judgement of the lower Court and sustains the indictment. The opinion in the case was written by Judge Fowler. The Court of Appeals holds that a demurrer or arrest of judgment can not be granted on such a state of facts, but the accused has a right to demand that the indictment be quashed, or that the prosecutor elect which charge he will try. In the present case, however, the charges are not entirely different, but all are based upon alleged violations of the local option law, and are so stated, with the evident design of meeting the evidence as it develops. This course is clearly allowable, and an election of counts in the indictment cannot be claimed as a matter of right.

Hope H. Barroll, Esq., attorney for Mr. John S. Vandegrift, has entered an appeal in the suit for damages against Mr. William A. Burk, which was decided in favor of the latter at the last term of the Circuit Court.

MURDER NEAR GOLTS!

Tobe McCray, a Colored Politician of the First District, While Defending a Colored Woman, Killed by James Brown—The Murderer Escapes.

Tobe McCray, a well-known colored resident of near Golt's Station, was killed Wednesday afternoon about two o'clock by James Brown, another native of the first district. Coroner Roland, accompanied by Dr. W. F. Hines and State's Attorney Urie, visited the scene of the crime Wednesday and held an inquest. The jury composed Messrs A. T. Sweetman, Wm. Turner, John Shelton, John Johnson, Wm. England, Thos. Darrell, T. Deems, C. A. Little, John O. Shelton, Arthur Carroll, W. H. Davis and Samuel Price. After hearing the evidence they rendered a verdict that the deceased came to his death at the hands of James Brown.

James Brown is about 28 years of age, of rather an amiable disposition, very stout, 5 feet 6 inches tall and will weigh 200 pounds. He has lived in the forest all his life. He had become infatuated with Alice Kilson, aged 24, who is married and the mother of two children She is about the same height as Brown and weighs 250 pounds. Tobe McCray and the woman's husband were very intimate and he often visited at her home.

On Tuesday Alice got a note from Brown saying that if she didn't do as he wished he would kill her. This frightened her considerably. The next day, after dinner, she started to go to her cousin's about a quarter of a mile distant from her home, but soon after she had left saw Brown following her, armed with a shot gun. She became fearful lest he would carry out his threat and stopped at Ned Rasin's home, where the murder took place.

Tobe McCray was standing in front of the hut talking to Ned Rasin, about 30 feet from the door, when Alice came up. She called to McCray that Brown was after her and asked him to keep Brown from doing her any harm, Brown came up and McCray stepped inside the hut, slamming the door in his face, the woman having in the meantime ran upstairs.

Brown laid his gun up against the side of the house and asked Ned Rasin if he could get a drink of water, the proprietor consenting. At that time there was no one about the house except this old man, Ned. Brown succeeded in getting in the house and soon he and McCray were in combat. Ned Rasin went in and told them they couldn't fight in there. Ned says Brown asked him to take McCray's pistol away from him. This the old man did, laid it on the table and both went out; but McCray seems to have recovered the pistol, as it was found in his pocket after his death with three chambers loaded. Alice says she heard McCray call soon after they had gone out, "Ned, take that gun away from Brown, I don't want to have any trouble with him!" Then the gun fired and the whole load of shot took effect in McCray's right temple. Brown at that time stood about ten feet off, while Ned turned around like one dazed. Brown then hurried home, left the gun and has not been seen since. He is unmarried and lives with his mother, who at this time is visiting in Cecil county.

Tobe McCray is a noted colored forest politician and has been quite active for a number of years. He was in Chestertown Tuesday, went before Clerk Dixon and made affidavit that he was going out of the county, but would return in time for the election.

STILL POND FARMERS' CLUB.

Interesting Meeting at the Home of James S. Harris, Esq.—The Coming Fruit Crop—San Jose Scale, Etc.

THE LADIES HOLD AN INSTRUCTIVE SESSION.

The club met at the home of Mr. Jas. S. Harris. After the usual address of welcome, the host made an interesting address on the prehistoric origin of the Indian races inhabiting the territory which now embraces Maryland; also upon his suggestion the club appointed a committee of three whose duty it should be to have papers prepared by the members upon interesting topics and have them read at the regular monthly meetings.

A letter from the Maryland Bureau of Labor offering its services free in securing help for the kitchen or farm, was read and discussed. Capt. Hill stated that the Richmond Bureau had rendered splendid service in helping the farmers of his neighborhood in securing men.

What was the prospect for fruit? was asked. A letter from the fruit section of Georgia was read reporting considerable damage to the buds. The opinion was expressed that, while many of the buds had been killed in our own section, enough were left on many of the varieties to make a paying crop.

The San Jose scale was reported as doing considerable damage by some, while in the case of others it was stated that spraying with the lime, sulphur and salt solution had been wonderfully beneficial, checking its growth and giving promise of destroying the scale entirely in orchards where it had been faithfully used. Mr. Harris suggested dipping young nursery stock in the above solution before planting, thereby preventing the spread of the scale in young orchards.

In answer to the question, "Was it practicable to raise one hundred bushels of corn per acre, if so how can it be done?" Mr. W. D. Pennington reported that the American Agriculturist had offered a prize of $500 for the largest crop of corn. The winner in this contest—a farmer in South Carolina—raised 255 bushels on one acre, at an expense of $264.42. The average crop of the forty-five contestants for the above prize, however, was reported to be 104 bushels per acre.

Mr. James S. Harris discussed the question from the practical standpoint of our every day farmers. He would select the best land on his farm, cover it with manure and seed to clover, not allowing this to be pastured, repeat this for another year then plow and apply 600 or 1000 pounds of some good commercial fertilizer. When the ground is in thorough order plant the corn in rows 3½ feet apart and the hills 1½ feet apart in the rows. Use same good weeder for stirring the ground the narrow way and cultivate the rows every five or six days until in tassel. If it became dry he would apply liquid manure.

Mr. E. B. Pennington thought this treatment of the soil would produce the 100 bushels of corn, but stated that his experience had been that it would increase the fertility of the land to pasture the clover rather than plow it under. Mr. Harris approved of the suggestion in preparing wheat land, but thought it beneficial to turn the clover under for corn. Capt. Hill stated that he knew that crops of corn planted four feet apart had produced twice the crop as the land planted in drill or step-corn. All approved of the cultivation of corn by weeders it being beneficial because of its deep and frequent stirring of the soil, the rapidity of its action being an economy. The club adjourned to meet at Mr. J. R. Jarrell's the last Thursday in April.

Ladies' Meeting.

Meeting called to order by Mrs. Shafer, the president. Roll call showed a full attendance with a large number of visitors. In answer to the question, "Is it best to forbid water to young poultry?" it was thought that pure, sweet, clean water would harm nothing and it is cruel to withhold it. Beside if pure water is not given poultry will drink from any dirty, stagnant pool they may chance to find which is decidedly injurious. It has been noticed that poultry require almost double the amount of water in dry weather. No one reported young chickens. A paper was read recommending boiling salt water with some carbolic acid added thoroughly applied to the poultry house, to prevent and rid it of vermin. A lady asked "Why her dahlias made such immense roots and were so very unsatisfactory in blooming?"

After some exchange of opinion it was decided that the soil must be too strong, it was thought that dahlias will do best in a partial shade. One lady reported having kept Marguerite carnations very successfully in the open ground during the winter. Some had turned their rose bushes, while others thought it too early. It was recommended to remove the glass from rose cuttings that were well rooted during warm sunny days but to replace them at night. Rubber plants will thrive very nicely in the open ground during the summer

Dingee & Conard were considered the best florist in the estimation of the club. To prevent hyacinths from deterioating, it is best to lift as soon after blooming as the foliage begins to fade wrap in paper and keep in a cool dry place replanting them in the fall.
