Mrs. W. Irving Walker Pays Indebtedness of $60,000 And Takes Possesion of Her Farms.

Judge Morris, in the United States District Court, Saturday decided that the petition in bankruptcy filed by Mrs. W. Irving Walker, of Chestertown, on May 20 last, and all proceedings under it should be dismissed upon the payment by Mrs. Walker of her debts and the costs of the proceedings. The total claims against Mrs. Walker for fees and commissions was $4,800, which was reduced by Judge Morris to $1,100. Mrs. Walker had the money in court to pay all these claims and her liabilities of about $60,000 additional, but payment was delayed by the absence of certain of her creditors.

Messrs. J. Kemp Bartlett and Alonzo L. Miles, attorneys for Mrs. Walker, came to Chestertown Tuesday and settled satisfactorily with her creditors, and the bankruptcy proceedings will be dismissed and her property returned to her.

Nine valuable farms in Queen Anne's county are owned by Mrs. Walker. She applied for the benefit of the bankruptcy law to prevent their sale under foreclosure proceedings.

School Notes.—The school commissioners on Tuesday appointed Prof. F. A. Greenhawk, of Easton, teacher of manual training at Rock Hall in place of Prof. Saunders, resigned.

DO YOU WANT REPUBLICAN JUDGES

The Question a Pertinent One at Present—The White People Should Rally to the Support of Adkins and Hopper and Elect them Triumphantly.

The general election which is to take place in November has a peculiar significance to the voters of Cecil, Kent, Queen Anne's, Talbot and Caroline counties. In addition to voting for State and county officials, whose terms of office vary from two to six years, we will also elect two Associate Judges of the Second Judicial Circuit for a term of fifteen years. The two leading parties have placed in nomination their candidates and it is now for the voters to consider and decide whom they will elect for these very important posts. The task is possibly more difficult because we should hold up the very high standard of qualification which has been regarded in this Judicial circuit for the past half century. The statement is not made in any spirit of idle boasting, but we are at a loss to know where in Maryland, or indeed outside this good old Commonwealth, you can find a record during these fifty years which will eclipse that made by the men who have been our Judges during that period. To mention the names of Carmichael, Hopper, Robinson, Wickes, Stump, Brown and Martin is to excite in all hearts a pride in our Judiciary and to fill us with a feeling of reverence for the memories of those men who so signally honored the bench. They were men of culture, proper dignity, a high sense of honor, broad minded, and of splendid legal attainments. Those who are to become their successors should be of the same type, as there is no occasion for selecting men who do not possess these qualifications. It is hoped that our voters, in the excitement which will necessarily attend the efforts to elect men on the State and county ticket, will not overlook the fact that they must also elect for a long term, fifteen years, two Associate Judges of this circuit, and that the men selected will have much to do with the law and order of the circuit during that time.

The question naturally arises, Who should be elected? The Democratic Judicial Convention held in Centreville on Thursday, August 15th, was a representative body, composed of excellent men from each county, actuated by one desire only, and that was to select the best men possible.

Like the State Convention recently held by the Democrats, the Judicial Convention was absolutely free from anything like bossism or domination by those whose motives were selfish. There was absolute fairness to all concerned, and it was not known who would be nominated until the convention met. The nomination of Judge Adkins was generally expected. He had been appointed by the Governor of the State to fill a vacancy on the bench caused by the death of the late Judge Martin. It is generally recognized that there is no lawyer in the circuit who has in him better "Judicial timber" than has Hon. William H. Adkins. Lawyers and jurors are practically unanimous in saying that he has measured up in a most satisfactory way in the performance of his duties, and has shown that he is a worthy successor of those who have added such lustre to our Judiciary. The people should elect him, as his election will mean no experiment. He has been tried and has not been found wanting.

The other nominee of the Democratic Judicial Convention is Hon. Philemon B. Hopper, the leading lawyer of the Centreville bar. His grandfather was at one time a distinguished Judge of this circuit, and those who remember him know that he was one of the ablest lawyers of his time, and a man of excellent character. His grandson inherited his splendid qualities of mind and heart, and, because of his superior legal knowledge, his courteous manners and consideration for others, he has endeared himself to every man, woman and child who know him. Mr. Hopper was well educated, and has an insight to questions of legal jurisprudence possessed by but few. His elevation to the bench will be in keeping with the policy of the voters in this Judicial circuit continued so long, of electing those most capable; and at the same time his election will be a splendid recognition of an honorable legal career and a private life devoted to the interests of his friends and the advancement of the highest welfare of his community.

The Republican Judicial Convention, held a few day ago, selected Hon. William T. Warbutton, of Elkton, and Albert G. Towers, Esq., of Caroline county. There were no other aspirants for the nominations and it had been plain for weeks that these two gentlemen had consented to take the nominations. They are representative lawyers and are men of force and standing. It is not speaking disparagingly of these men when we claim that in all the esssential elements as regards ability and temperament needed to meet the Judicial duties and perform them satisfactorily, they are not the equal of the Democratic Nominees. Then, there are other considerations apart from special fitness for the work.

We would take a strong position against a partisan Judiciary. It would be an unpardonable blunder to select men for this position who could be blinded by party prejudice or who would in any sense use the office to reward or protect political friends. But we do believe the Judiciary, at least of this Circuit, should be composed of men who are Democrats. The long period which Democratic Judges have sat upon the bench has been marked by an impartiality which has been in every sense commendable. Juries have been made up entirely of white men, and we believe public sentiment would revolt at any departure from this custom. We are not even suggesting that the Republican nominees, if elected, would put colored people on the jury; we are of the opinion that they have in mind no such purpose. But in circuits where the Judges are Republicans, negro jurors have been drawn, and, to say the least, it is exceedingly hard for Republican Judges not to do it. A majority of the Republican voters of this Judicial circuit are colored, and if they make a demand for recognition, we say, it is at least hard for those who are elected by their votes to turn down a demand they might make.

We believe, too that the triumph of the Republican nominees through the votes of those who compose the larger part of their party would be hailed as their victory, and those who are inclined to be lawless—who delight in breaking the law—would feel they had a "friend at court." The election of the Democratic Judges means a continuation of law and order and a continuance of that Judicial influence which has been poison to the lawless class.

These are only a few of the reasons why our Judiciary should remain Democratic. There are no reasons whatsoever why we should try the experiment of a Republican Judiciary. Hence we are at a loss to known on what grounds the Repubblican nominees will ask their election. Mr. Towers will likely use the argument that as he is the only candidate for Judge in Caroline county, our people should vote for him as a matter of county pride. But in this he will be inconsistent. Only one year ago Hon. Thomas A Smith was the only candidate Caroline county offered for Congress; but the same Mr. Towers not only supported Mr. Wm. H. Jackson, but he was at the head of his committee, which disbursed the largest Congressional election fund to influence voters that was ever spent in Caroline. From the very nature of the case, Mr. Towers cannot consistently ask Democrats to vote for him. If he were a candidate for some office where a complimentary vote would not affect the public weal, it would be different. Such is not the case. He asks to be elected an Associate Judge for fifteen years, with all its privileges; and when he asks for Democratic support he is inconsistent and unreasonable. The people will rally to the support of Adkins and Hopper and elect them triumphantly.—Denton Journal.

Fell From Carriage.—Young Jessup Wilmer, the eleven-year-old son of Mr. William B. Wilmer, fell from a carriage near Lankford on Monday and hurt himself very badly. Young Wilmer makes his home with his uncle, Mr. Charles Jessup, in Broad Neck, and was driving toward home when he accidentally fell out and got caught in the wheel. He sustained a fracture of the left thigh and a complete disorganization of the knee joint. Dr. Frank B. Hines carried him to the University of Maryland Hospital on Tuesday.

Death Accidental.—Samuel W. Bullen came to his death from a fracture of the skull, due to an accidental fall. This is the decision of Coroner Otto M. Reinhardt after investigating the death of Mr. Bullen. The case was a peculiar one, and for three days had the police of the Southern district puzzled. Dr. Reinhardt, concluding that no inquest was necessary, allowed the relatives of Mr. Bullen to remove the body from the City Morgue, and the remains were taken to Centreville, for burial. Mr. Bullen was found dead in his room at 206 Hanover street on Saturday morning after being picked up in an unconscious condition in the vestibule. He was at one time the Captain of the police boat Anna B. Smith and was well-known in lower Kent.

Dog Notes.—Mr. Wm. H. Kirby reports a singular accident to a fox hound one day this week. He states that he was awakened Monday night by the pitiful wail of a fox hound and this dog continued to yell all night. Mr. Kirby had heard the dog on Monday but did not pay any attention to him. Early Tuesday he went to the dog and found him buried up to his neck! He had gone into a fox's den and been caught by the earth caving in on him.

Mr. Sir Walter Rawleigh is advertising rabbit dogs for sale.

Mr. Kemp Bordley has a thoroughbred pointer which his friends have named "Carp."

Removals.—In another column will be found the sale of Mr. S. L. Wright's personalty on Riverside farm, near town. Mr. James E. Taylor will tenant this farm next year and Mr. Will Morris follows Mr. Taylor.

Mr. Frank D. Leaverton has rented Mr. Purnell Jump's farm, near Fairlee, Mr. Jump having decided to quit.

Mr. Charles J. Reiche will remove to his farm, near Pomona, and Mr. David Sutton will tenant the Walker farm now occupied by Mr. White.

Capt. James Hyland and four sons, and their families will leave Thursday for Biloxi, Miss., where they have obtained employment in the oyster business. A number of other Kent Countians are already there.

Mr. Frank Cannon and wife and Edward Cannon left Kent this week for Biloxi.

Mr. Frank H. Greenwood will discontinue farming next year and will reside in Chestertown. He will occupy the Kelly property on Maple avenue.

Fine Sheep.—Mr. Harry Graham shipped on Wednesday a yearling registered ram to Portsmouth, Va., which weighed 200 pounds. He has sent rams into several Southern States and gets $25 each for them. Rev. S. S. Hepburn, of Still Pond, is another farmer who is paying special attention to sheep. He received last week from John Campbell, of Ontario, the ram "Regent." He is a two-year-old ram of high Shropshire breeding.

Big Prices.—The sale of Mrs. M. E. Cannon's personalty advertised exclusively in the NEWS was largely attended and fine prices realized. Horses brought from $106 to $156 while cows sold from $25 to $47. Mrs. Cannon was well pleased with the sale and Auctioner Greenwood says it was a "corker."

Court Notes.—Henry Johnson, colored, was arrested by Sheriff Startt this week and given a hearing before Justice Hicks on charge of selling intoxicants in Chestertown on Cross street. The evidence showed that cider which intoxicated had been bought and Johnson was held in $300 bail for court.

"Mickey" Gibson was sent to House of Correction for 18 months from Cecil county last week for attempting to "steal a train of cars!"
