CAMBRIDGE, - - - MARYLAND.

SATURDAY, - - APRIL 5, 1890.

Mr. A. B. Riggin brought to our office this week a curiosity. It was an oyster on the half shell, and a portion of it was tightly clasped between the jaws of a mouse's head. Mr. Riggin says when the oyster was opened in his establishment, it was found to contained the mouse head. It is supposed that while the oyster had his shell open, in the act of feeding, that his mouse ship poked his ugly nose in to feed on the oyster, when the oyster quickly closed his mouth and clipped off the mouse's head.—Crisfield "Leader."

The extent of the destruction wrought by last week's tornado in Louisville is now estimated at 110 to 125 lives lost and $1,000,000 to $1,250,000 worth of property destroyed. But the Louisville disaster turns out fortunately not so bad as at first reported, when the loss of life was estimated at 500 and the country feared that perhaps, as at Johnstown, the worst had not been told. The first news of the Johnstown flood placed the loss of life at 200, and it was not until 48 hours or more had passed that the wires began to tell the full extent of the disaster, which, in its ghastly completeness of desolation so far outran the wildest imaginings of the news-gatherers first upon the scene, that it was only by degrees that they could realize that the fatalities were measured by thousands instead of hundreds.

A member of the Wyoming Legislature has introduced a bill to tax every unmarried man in the State, over 35 years of age, $2.50 a year. Women will be in demand in Wyoming if this bill should pass. Indeed, they are in great demand. It is said that there is not an old maid in the State. Wyoming is the best meeting ground for husbands in the United States, school marms being particularly desirable. The bill is only the revival of an old idea. Bachelors were subject to a special tax under the old Roman law, as they were in England as late as the time of William III. Frederick the Great limited the mourning period for widowers three months. At present the petition of France is urging that a certain age for marrying be fixed by the government, those who pass this line to be severely punished.

Mr. Dodge, the statician of the Agricultural Department at Washington, tells the farmers that their products are cheap because there is an over production. Neither assertion is true. In the far west farmers are burning their corn because it is cheaper fuel than coal. In the coal regions of Pennsylvania miners are starving for the want of food which western farmers are compelled to burn. The coal barons hold the coal back to keep up the price, and starve the miners rather than allow them to work and sell coal at a lower price, that wages may be earned to buy corn. And railroad companies refuse to transport coal and grain unless they are paid all they will sell for, to pay dividends on watered stock, heavy interest on bonded debt, fabulous salaries to high officials and furnish every accommodation in luxurious grandure for the ease and comfort of the traveling millionaire monopolists who alone use these expensive cars.

This monopoly class has been busy for some months "adjusting" a tariff schedule at Washington, and the new bill has a tariff on wheat, corn, oats, hops, and in short everything the farmer raises, which is intended to keep products of the same kinds out of the country unless a duty is paid for the privilege to sell them in the United States. We wonder if these men think this kind of shamming can longer fool the farmers, who have a surplus of all these things and have to send them to foreign countries to find a market? Not a pound of any of these farm products would come into this country if there was not a cent of tariff duty to pay.

Economical Purchasing.

There are two golden rules in buying. The first is familiar: "Do not buy a thing because it is cheap." This is applicable in more ways than one, but we would place beside it another: Do not buy a thing because it is high priced. The sum of both rules is: Be guided by cost and not by price. Cheap goods may be dear at any price of poor quality. Let the shopper remember always she cannot get "something for nothing." To be sure, there are quite often bargains in goods, and it is a part of art in shopping to look out for these, but must be wary and use careful judgment here. If one be not sure of herself, she would better avoid them altogether.

It is poor policy to buy things that will look shabby. Better have one dress of good quality than two of poor quality. It is bad economy also, to buy cheap imitation of costly goods. Better buy a good wool dress than a cheap silk. Better buy no embroidery at all than that which is coarse and of poor material. It will add no beauty to the garment on which it is placed, and it certainly will not be durable.

Again, high-priced goods are not always the most serviceable. Dress goods at $1.50 per yard are often no more durable, and sometimes less so, than those at $1. The extra price is often charged for fineness in finish or novelty in style. This is especially true, also, with reference to shoes, hose, handkerchiefs, etc. If one can afford to pay the extra price in finish or style, no doubt she will take pleasure in so doing, but we are now considering the subject of economical buying for a family. If one is in the habit of buying expensive goods, only such one will be shown her by the clerks, who know her taste; but no false pride should prevent her from asking to see the cheapest articles.

The habit of rapid calculation is valuable in shopping. For example, we are shown a piece of goods at $1, and another at $1.25 per yard, the difference in quality being slightly in favor of the latter. If no calculation in the matter is used, probably the first piece would be taken, the difference in quality not covering the difference in price; but when we stop to consider that the first is only thirty-six inches wide, and that it will require twelve yards, the second piece is forty-four inches wide, and only nine yards will be required. Thus it is really cheaper to buy the latter piece.

The Value of a Colored Man's Eyes.

In New Orleans, August Johnson, a colored man, some time ago recovered a verdict of $10,000 from the owners of a Cromwell line of steamers as compensatory damages for the loss of both eyes, which was caused, it was alleged, by the negligence of an employ of the company. Two trials had been had with the same result, the jury in both cases being composed of white men, and were unanimous. The steamship company made an application for a new trial in the United States Circuit Court a few days ago before Judge Billings on the ground that the verdict was excessive. Judge Billings asked how much would have been allowed to a master of a slave before the war for the loss of both the eyes of the slave if the slave was such a man as the plaintiff as to the age and strength, to which Mr. Forman, counsel for Johnson, answered:

"Whatever the slave would sell for on the block, added to a sum sufficient to enable the master to support the slave during his life. But the master could recover nothing for the pain and agony of body and mind of the slave. That was not," he said, "a test of the amount of damages proper to be allowed now. The negro was no longer a chattel, or to valued as a chattel, but was on the plane of a free man and a citizen, and all distinctions on account of race and color were abolished. The plaintiff was a young man, in good health and earning $3 a day—he certainly could earn over $500 a year. He had been rendered totally blind and helpless, and $10 000 invested at five per cent. would scarcely yield him an income equal to his wages, to say nothing of his great suffering in having both eyes burned out—the deprivation of all enjoyment."

Judge Billings decided that in his opinion the amount awarded to Johnson was excessive, and ordered that the motion for a new trial be granted unless the plaintiff remits all of said amount above the sum of $5,000. The plaintiff is allowed ten days in which to elect whether he will remit one-half of the judgment or have a new trial. Judge Billings is a Republican.

A NEW TARIFF BILL.

Consumers Entirely Ignored—Duties on Wool Increased—No Raw Material Added to the Free List and no tax Removed From Any Necessaries of Life.

WASHINGTON, March 31.

The Republican tariff bill, which was presented by Chairman McKinley to the members of the ways and means committee to day, affords but little relief to the consumer. The additions to the free list, besides those proposed on the Senate bill, are silk, paintings and sculptures. No raw material is added, nor is the tax removed on any necessary of life. On the contrary, hides are taken from the free list and made dutiable at 15 per cent.

An extraordinarily heavy increase is made in the duty on wool, the very article for which there was the greatest demand for a reduction. The duty on carpet wool, worth less than 15 cts. per pound, is doubled, and on other grades there is about the same increase. Heavy increases are also made in unmanufactured wool, as high as 300 to 400 per cent. on the finest cloths for the wool in them, and an additional duty of 40 per cent. ad valorem. The duty on noils, tops, shoddy, waste, etc., is at present ten cents per pound. McKinley wants this amount trebled.

WHERE THE FARMERS ARE CONSIDERED.

Great increases are made in the duties on agricultural products. It is admitted by the members that there is little or no importation of these, but the idea is to help the farmer or make him think that he is getting his share of benefits from the general increase.

The articles upon which a reduction is proposed are steel rails, a decrease of about $4 per ton; lumber, from $2 to $1.50 per thousand; hewed and squared lumber, 20 per cent. to 10 per cent., and sugars, the schedule of which is as published, a duty equal to 35 and 40 per cent. The principal reduction of the revenue will come from the decrease of the sugar duty. McKenna, of California, a member of the committee, says that it will make a difference of $25,000,000.

THE MINORITY'S PROBABLE ACTION.

The minority is given ten days to file its report, which would bring the bill before the House on April 10. It is understood that the Mills bill of last year will be reported by the Democrats, with the addition of hides, wool, salt, and perhaps coal and iron, to the free list.

When the bill comes before the House it will by no means have plain sailing. The untimely publication of its main features a week or two ago has given time for the organization of a strong opposition to some of its features, and it is more than likely that the House will be making some sweeping changes. The Massachusetts Republicans are taking but little pains to conceal their dissatisfaction.

The removal of hides from the free list, thus increasing the cost of manufacture of shoes, and the increasing of the duty on wool, thus adding to the cost of almost all articles of clothing, makes them especially indignant. Besides hides, they want to put on the free list wool, salt, coal and iron, but in almost every instance they have been disappointed, receiving hardly anything they asked for and in most cases getting heavy increases instead of reductions.

Another source of discontent is the sugar schedule. The Philadelphia, California, Louisiana and Florida Representatives object to the sweeping reduction. On the other hand, Payson, of Illinois, and others from the West, insist that sugar should be on the free list. These are but a few of the rocks upon which the McKinley bill may founder.

A Voice From Lakes.

LAKESVILLE, March 31, '90.

MR. EDITOR:—As the columns of your paper have been filled for weeks past with letters from Straits and Hooper's Island, setting forth the efficiency of the present management of the police boat, Julia Hamilton, those not acquainted with the situation have probably concluded that the Hamilton is invincible, and that the perfection accorded her commander by "fair play" fails to do him justice. I am a Democrat, and have only to do so without violating, and will give your readers the facts as they appear to me regarding the Hamilton's protection. During the past four years the boat has been kept almost constantly guarding the tongers' interest in Fishing Bay, and this explains why you have had so many communications of praise from a very few tongers. If this was the boat's only duty we would add our voice to those who applaud her efficiency, but Honga River and Hooper's Straits are entitled to a share of protection, for from these waters as many people obtain a livelihood as from the tongers' ground in Fishing Bay, and the people who thus live are the good citizens of Lakes. Yet for several years our interests have been sadly neglected by the Hamilton, and I speak this from personal experience. During the past season I worked in Straits for as long as two weeks at the time without ever seeing the police boat, while bay dredgers were taking our oysters and shells all away from the county, which violation, any fair-minded man will admit is worse for our people as a whole, than for our neighbors to take the tongers' oysters.

Now, I don't care anything about the name of the next captain of the Hamilton, and don't complain without cause, nor do I expect any man to keep the boat in Fishing Bay and Hooper's Straits at the same time, but do expect and insist on a fair share of the protection she is supposed to accord. If this share is measured by benefit to party, as some of your Straits correspondents have urged, we are entitled to the lion's part.

The tongers of Fishing Bay are always making a noise about something. If the police boat turns Bishop's Head they set up a wail which lasts until she gets back again, and it would be well, Mr. Editor, for you and other party leaders to remember that unless you give the tongers the entire time of the boat, and leave all other interests out of consideration, you have a continual howl about your ears. But also remember, that it is never safe to count a flock of geese by their gobble.

HO FOR

"Jack Pot,"

SPRING SEASON OF 1890

This Jack will stand as follows: At T. Hubbard's, East New Market station, Tuesday and Wednesday, the 11th and 12th of March. Thursday and Friday, 13th and 14th, he will be at Levin Moore's, in Vienna. Saturday, Sunday and Monday, the 15th, 16th and 17th, he will be at Rufus Fooks's, in Salem. Tuesday and Wednesday, the 18th and 19th, he will be at Wm. Coward's, in Buck Neck, one mile from Aireys Station.

He will then come home and spend the balance of his time about the neighborhood of Cambridge until Monday, the 24th, then he will repeat his same trip every two weeks the balance of the season.

The terms of the Jack are $5, $10 and $20. Any parties parting with mares are held responsible for insurance, unless they prove they are not with foal. Also, any one that wants to know anything of the Jack or wants to see him can either write or come to our store in Cambridge.

For the Spring Season, 1890.

We Offer to the Horsebreeders of Dorchester County the Services of the Standard Bred Stallion,

"SIR BLOSSOM," No. 10137.

By Orange Blossom, sire of Orange Boy, 2:18¾; Garrison, 2:25¼; Orange Bloom, 2:28¼; Hunter Rye, 2:30, &c. 1st dam, Queen Bess, dam of Garrison, 2:25¼; 2d dam, Lady Davies, by Long Island Blackhawk; 3d dam by Abdallah, son of Mambrino. Orange Blossom, No. 238, record 2:26¾, by Middletown, sire of Music. 2:21, Orange Bud, 2:21¼, Nellie Irwin, 2:25, and six others in 2:30 class. Dam Nellie Post by Seely's American Star; 2nd dam by Zuluco, by Grey Eagle.

SIR BLOSSOM is a beautiful golden sorrel 15¾ hands high, foaled August 3rd, 1885. He is a perfect horse all over, having both bone and substance, combined with fine form and finish. His gait is pure and frictionless, and for the chance he has had shows great speed. Though handled a very little for the track, he can easily show a 2:40 gait.

"Garrison," a full brother of "Sir Blossom," trotted against thirteen competitors at the Point Breeze course, Philadelphia, last July, and after a contest lasting two days and requiring eleven heats to settle, came out victor, winning first money and making a record of 2:25¼. He has won first money in every race he has won, except one in which he was entered. The sporting editor of the Baltimore American says of Garrison: "He is believed to be one of the greatest trotters that ever graced Maryland's turf, and with proper handling should produce great things." As Sir Blossom is a brother to Garrison, he also possesses great qualities and has a fine future before him.

Having purchased this fine young Stallion, he will be allowed to serve 40 approved well-bred mares, the spring season commencing MARCH 20th and ending JUNE 20th, at $18.00 the season; single service, $12.00, or $25.00 to insure. 50 cents to the Groom at time of service. All mares served and colts sired will be held responsible for service fee until settled for. The reputation the "Orange Blossoms" have obtained within the past few years for speed and great staying qualities should recommend this fine Stallion to all who have good mares and are desirous of breeding for speed and improving their stock.

☞SIR BLOSSOM'S book is now open, and those desiring his services should apply at once, as it is already more than half filled.

Messrs. H. S. MILLER & CO., Newark, N. J.:

Dear Sirs:—In answer to your letter of several days ago, would say that I used the Vegetable Fertilizer on cabbage, tomatoes, turnips and cucumbers, alongside of stable manure, and the Fertilizer proved equal to the manure in every respect. With the turnips it proved superior to the manure. Also used it alongside of a $60.00 guano, and it was fully as good, no difference being perceptible. The Strawberry Fertilizer I found to be the best I ever used. There was a very marked difference where it was used and where none was used.

A WORD TO THE WISE

I WISH TO INFORM THE PUBLIC that I am prepared to furnish anything that is to be found in a general store, at prices LOWER than the LOWEST. You are all aware that in order to buy cheap you must go to the first hands, viz:—the manufacturers—for them, and in order to buy from the manufacturers you are compelled to buy the quantity to secure the close prices; otherwise you will be compelled to pay as much as the jobbers' price. I go to the manufacturers; I buy the quantity and buy them cheap and sell them at a small profit, and what is the consequence? At the end of the year, when we get out a balance sheet, we are surprised at the amount of goods we have handled, and the reason of it is we are selling cheaper than any one else, and the public buy where they can buy the cheapest. We don't offer you a trifle for a bait, and then charge you an exorbitant price for something that you are not posted in. We have a uniform price on our goods, and not only do we sell you Spool Cotton and Sewing Silk as low as any one else, but everything else accordingly. There is a living profit in the advertised price of Cotton and Silk, and that is all we want on anything. We must sell cheaper than any one else; otherwise what causes the rush at
