HEAR WHAT IS SAID OF IT:

Denton, Md., August 3d, 1887.

Orem & Co., Cambridge, Md. Gentlemen—I have used pulverized oyster shells on all crops, and with the following results: On wheat I used about 300 lbs to the acre, and used it by the side of other fertilizers, that cost about three times as much as the ground shells, and found the shells fully as good as any I used, and the grain when threshed was a better quality and turned out more wheat to the load where shells were used than it did where the high grade phosphate was used. I am so well pleased with it that I shall use this fall principally shells on my wheat crop. I have also found it excellent on corn, potatoes and any crops that I have tried it on. You can ship me twenty-six tons. JOHN W. CLARK.

This is to certify that we have used Ground Oyster Shells and find them to be a most excellent fertilizer for grass and corn, and find the wheat from it heavy and of superior quality, and improved in the quantity of yield. JOSEPH B. SETH.

This company was organized on May 6th, 1886, by citizens of Caroline county with a view of having a company at home, whose working could be easily inspected and fully understood by the members, and at the same time retain the thousands of dollars which are being annually sent away.

Reasons for Becoming a Member of this Society.

First—It is a home institution and purely mutual

Second—Every person insured in this Society at once becomes a member, and as such has access to all the books and accounts of the Association, and can see and judge for himself of the Company's progress. The officers of the Company will at all times be pleased to explain and afford to those members all information appertaining to the Company's progress

Third—After you have been a member for 20 years all interest arising from the reserved fund will be equally divided in the form of a dividend

Fourth—Should you live out your expectation of life the amount of your policy will be paid in cash just the same as if death had occured, thereby giving you the opportunity of enjoying it in your old days.

Fifth—By our plan of working you keep the money in your pocket until a death occurs.

Sixth—You pay but a small amount at a time. It gives its members advantage of life insurance at a small cost.

Seventh—The age at which a person becomes a member remains his assessable age during life.

All persons either male or female, between the ages of 16 and 60 years, who are of sound mind and good health, may secure to themselves certificates by complying with the requirements of the Society.

All persons who have been members for twenty years, in good standing, shall share equally in the interest derived from the Reserve Fund. This dividend will be declared annually. It is fully expected that this dividend will be sufficient to keep the policy in force thereafter.

It is the intention of the company to make this strictly a Rural Peninsula Company. The company has been in operation for more than nine months with but one death assessment yet. This seems to be an evidence that the officers are using care in issuing policies.

that the most delicate stomach will bear.

A SPECIFIC FOR MALARIA, RHEUMATISM, NERVOUS PROSTRATION, and all Germ Diseases.

FOR COLDS KASKINE HAS BEEN FOUND TO BE ALMOST A SPECIFIC. Superior to quinine.

Rev. Wm. Lucas, Rector Grace Church, Ravennr, O. writes: "I cordially endorse Kaskine as being just what you claim, an excellent substiute for quinine, with none of its bad effects. Mrs. Lucas had a serious form of malaria, and was confined to her bed for months. Kaskine had her up and around in a few days, and in a short time cured her."

Living in the mararial district of Maryland I became victim of worst forms of malarial fever. I drugged myself with quinine and other remedies without avail. I was greatly reduced when I heard of Kaskine. Its curative powers were a medical revalation to me. It cured me and I have not had a return of the trophies, (Prof.) J. D. Hird, B. A., Asst. Chemist, Maryland Agricultural College.

Letters from the above persons, giving full details, will be sent on application.

Kaskine can be taken without any special medical advice. $1.00 per bottle. Sent by mail on receipt of price.

An Almost Human Monkey.

Massica was a female chimpanzee, kept in the Dresden zoological gardens. She was remarkable, not only in her habits, but in her disposition. At one moment she would sit still, with a brooding air, occasionally darting a mischievous glance at the spectators; at another, she took pleasure in feats of strength, or roamed about in her spacious inclosure, like an angry beast of prey.

Massica was frequently ungovernable. She would obey no one but the director of the garden. Sometimes when she was in a good humor she would sit upon his knee, and put her muscular arms about his neck, with a caressing gesture; but, in spite of this occasional clemency, he was never safe from her roguish tricks.

She knew how to use a gimlet, wring out wet clothes, and put a handkerchief to its legitimate use. If allowed to do so, she would draw off the keeper's boots, scramble with them to some place out of reach, and then throw them at his head.

Once she succeeded in opening the lock of her cage, and, having done so, stole the key. It was kept hanging on the wall outside, and Massica, observing it, took it down, hid it in her armpit, and crept quietly back to her cage. When occasion again served her purpose she easily opened the lock with her key and walked out.

She died of consumption. Just before her death she put her arm about the director's neck, looked at him placidly, kissed him three times, stretched out her hands to him and died.—Youth's Companion.

Vegetable Pearls.

It has long been known that in some specimens of bamboo a round stone is found at the joints of the cane. This is called "tabasheer," and is supposed to be deposited from the silicious juices of the cane. Another curiosity of this sort is the "cocoanut stone," found in the endosperm of the cocoanut in Java and other East India islands. It is, according to Dr. Kimmins, a pure carbonate of lime, and the shape of the stone is sometimes round, sometimes pear shaped, while the appearance is that of a white pearl without much luster. Some of the stones are as large as cherries, and as hard as feldspar or opal. They are very rarely found, and are regarded as precious stones by Orientals, and charms against disease or evil spirits by the natives. Stones of the kind are also found in the pomegranate and other East India fruits. Apatite has also been discovered in the midst of teak wood.—Engineering.

Education of Russian Women.

Statistics have just been issued as to the number of women who have studied at Russian universities in 1886. The total number of female students amounted to 779, and of these 243 studied philology and 536 different branches of mathematics; 587 belonged to the Greek church and 139 were Jews; 748 were unmarried and 31 married; 437 of the ladies were the daughters of noblemen, officers, or government officials; 89 were daughters of Russian priests, 125 of merchants, 117 of private citizens, 10 of peasants, 4 of soldiers, and 2 were foreigners. That the zeal for female education in Russia is still as great as ever is shown not only by the above figures, but also by the fact that a Warsaw lady has recently given 15,000 roubles for a high school for women to be built at Warsaw.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Must Go Abroad for Our Glitter.

It is a singular fact that the United States, while strong in resources, is entirely dependent upon foreign countries for the gold and tinsel which is used in decorating her officers of the army and navy when on dress parade. A military officer, no matter what flag he fights under, must have a certain amount of glitter about his shoulders or he cannot do justice to the government which employs him. Epaulets and shoulder knots are as essential to a well regulated army or navy as are the guns and ammunition used on the enemy. Yet, in spite of the fact that there are 6,000 or 7,000 officers in the United States who must have gold cord, gold lace and gilded epaulets, there is not a single manufactory in the country where this "war material" can be made.—Boston Advertiser.

Sabot Wearing in France.

In certain parts of France not only peasants, but well to do cafe proprietors, cabmen, tramcar drivers and conductors wear "sabots" in winter time, not the common, clumsy, all wood sabot, but with uppers of stiff leather, the soles only being of wood. They are caled "soques," and are worn with woolen stockings and an extra stout sock, shaped like an ordinary elastic sock, with the toe cut off, called a "chausson," drawn over the stocking, so as to prevent the heel and instep from being unduly rubbed. Children, from the time they walk, wear them, and run about in them just as well as in boots, and never have wet feet.—Boston Transcript.

Building Up an Empire.

Says a gentleman who lives in British Columbia: The way the Canadian Pacific railroad is doing now is positively laughable from an economic point of view. They are carrying goods from the United States through Canada into the United States, paying transportation at both ends and carrying them over their own line for virtually nothing. This may be "building up an empire," but it is certainly not building up a road.

Steel framed cabs are now being manufactured in England, with a view to lightness and greater durability than if wood were used for the purpose.

Wealth covers a multitude of blotches, not only on escutcheons but on bodily forms and mental characteristics.—Dr. Wm. A. Hammond.

A Nautical Clock.

A new clock that is attracting considerable attention represents the after deck of a steam yacht. Coils of rope are laid about the deck and two small boats are suspended from the davits. The dial of the clock is set in the front of the wheel house, and in front of it leading below is the companionway. Above the dial is the wheel; a sailor has his hands on it and is represented as steering the yacht. The wheel moves backward and forward and the sailor moves with it. Sailors holding ropes are standing in various attitudes about the deck.—Jewelers' Weekly.

Cattle of the Kirghese.

Some of the Kirghese are said to possess hundreds of camels, thousands of horses, and tens of thousands of sheep and goats, as will readily be understood when it is added that without reckoning the provinces of Akmollinsk and Semipalatinsk, there were in the remaining parts of Russian central Asia, in the early part of the Russian occupation, no less than 490,000 camels, 1,600,000 horses, 1,160,000 cattle, and 11,000,000 sheep, the total value of the whole being estimated at about £10,000,000.—Henry Lansdell, D. D., in Harper's Magazine.
