ENGLISH VISITING CARDS. They Usually Get a Very Cool Reception in Boston—Their Bad Luck.

It is a Hard Matter Now to Tell Them from the Real Article.

Of late years jewelry, and female jewelry, in particular, as it were, has become very numerous and ostentatious.

A musical troupe, whose performance we attended not long since, made a pointed allusion at the increased cheapness of gems.

"Yes, sah, $800, and did you see dem ar torches?"

"Dem torches, I mean dems lamps, hanging in her yards."

"Oh, you mean those large solitary earrings. Yes, I saw them. They must have cost you at least $1,500."

"Thirty cents," replies the end man, reaching down for his bones, or rather the bones with which he makes do.

Not everybody knows that it takes an experienced jeweler to detect the real from the bogus diamond, hence it is not surprising that a diamond, but I have found out that it was nothing but a grindstone.

It is pleasing to learn from one of Mr. Lawrence Hamilton's recent letters that, in addition to his old family portrait, he has secured a new one.

What is the Moon? But when we look at the moon with our large telescopes, do we see any traces of water? There are, no doubt, many large districts which at first glance seem like oceans, and were indeed termed "seas" by the old astronomers.

As an example of the spirit which animates the German army, and which doubles in force, Prince Kraft Hohenzollern tells a fine story. At the battle of Chateaudun a battery found itself without ammunition under a heavy fire.
