CAMBRIDGE DEMOCRAT.

Capture of Two Schooners on the Nanticoke.

On Wednesday last the side wheel steamer "Yankee," from Washington, passed up the Nanticoke river as far as Bacon Quarter, where she took in arrest two schooners which had been lying there for several days.

The vessels, we subsequently learned, belonged to Capt. Alward Johnzon, of Lake's District, in this county Capt. J. passed through Cambridge on Monday last en route for Washington, and from him we learned the following particulars:

The vessels loaded in April last, the one at Baltimore with an assorted cargo, the other at Philadelphia with iron. On the 20th of that month they started in company from Baltimore, the one, "Brunette," for Portsmouth, Petersburg and Richmond, the other, "Ringdove," for Richmond. They arrived off Fortress Monroe the day the blockade commenced, where the papers of the "Ringdove" were endorsed and the boats ordered off. The vessels then returned to Lake's Cove, and anchored near Capt. Johnson's residence, where the "Ringdove" remained, while the "Brunette" returned to Baltimore to re-land her cargo. On her return from Baltimore, the two vessels were sailed up the Nanticoke river as far as Bacon Quarter, to prevent the water-worm from damaging their bottoms, where they were found on Wednesday last by the steamer "Yankee" and taken to Washington.

Such are the facts as stated to us by Capt. Johnson. From these facts there can be made out no violation of law. They had no smuggled goods on board; they made no attempt to run the blockade; they have in no degree or instance attempted to give aid or comfort to the Virginians.—And yet they have been ruthlessly torn from their moorings, their hawsers broken and thrown overboard, the vessels themselves towed to Washington, where they are held on some plea, unknown to the owner, but groundless, as the facts show.

We have but to recount these facts to have this act numbered among the innumerable outrages perpetrated upon private rights and property by the Government, for refusing to sustain which we are called traitors and rebels. No doubt these vessels were taken on the representation by some one to the authorities at Washton that they were smugglers. If so, how mortifying and fearful is it to know that Government officials will condescend to heed representations—prompted by malice, it may be—from every irresponsible individual or ragged straggler. If this policy be followed, every safeguard thrown around persons and property by the law for their protection and security are at once abolished, and private rights, property, everything, left at the mercy of malicious enemies, straggling ragamuffins, or still more despicable spies.

We hope the Captain will be successful in obtaining a release of his boats with their cargoes.

☞The latest news from the seat of war is very conflicting. The fight at Bull's Run was commenced again on Sunday morning, resulting in severe losses on both sides, and the reported driving of the Confederates back to Manassas. The Exchange of Monday states that a gentleman talked with Sec. Cameron on Sunday, who stated the Federals had taken Bull's Run, but the Confederates rallied and retook it. It is probable from the news that the Confederate army has fallen back upon Manassas, where no doubt a bloody battle will be fought.

Col Cameron, brother of Sec. Cameron, was killed, besids several other officers. Beauregard has been reinforced by 17,000 from Gen. Jonhson, so reported.

P. S.—Just as we go to press, news reaches us that an extra Clipper of Monday evening had been received at Church Creek, which states the Confederates decoyed the whole army under McDowell, to Manassas, where they opened a full fire upon them and drove them with unprecedented slaughter to Alexandria. It is reported that the Confederate forces amounted to 90,000.

THE ORPHANS' COURT of Dorchester county will sit on MONDAY, the 5th of August.

Local and Personal.

The most delicious present we have received since we have been the occupant of the chair editorial, was made us on Friday last by our much respected and highly esteemed friend, Mr Vachel Keene. It consisted of a basket of large, well grown and fully ripened pears, slighly golden in color, and of delicious flavor. We are not sufficiently posted in pomology, to know the variety to which they belong, but one thing we do know they belong to the very palatable kind. Many thanks to Mr K. for the basket of pears.

Among our advertisements of today will be found a card of B. G. Tubman & Co., by which it will be seen that Mr T. has opened a general commission business for the sale of grain &c. Mr T. is a native of this county and is known universally by its citizens. Our farmers would do well to give him a call.

The July term of the Circuit Court for this county commenced on Monday last, His Honor Judge Spence presiding. The court opens with small dockets. On yesterday several judgments were entered, when the Court adjourned.

Beauregard's Position too Strong to be Taken by the Northern Army.

EXCESSES COMMITTED BY FEDERAL TROOPS.

The following account comes through our occasional correspondent at Washington, on whom we have great reliance:

The following account of the battle at Bull's Run is given by honorables Wm. A. Richardson, John A. McClernand, of Ill, and John W. Noel, of Missouri (all members of the house,) who were eye witnesses of the battle, and aided in several instances in bearing from the field members of the New York 12th, who were wounded.

The action commenced under the direction of Gen. Tyler, of Connecticut, at half-past one o'clock on Thursday afternoon at Bull Run, three miles from Centreville, between several companies of skirmishers attached to the Massachusetts First, and a mask battery situated on a slight eminence. The skirmishers retreated rapidly and were succeeded in the engagement by Sherman's battery and two companies of regular cavalry, which after continuing the contest for some time were supported by the New York Twelth, First Maine, Second Michigan, First Massachusetts and a Wisconsin regiment, when the battle was waged with great earnestness, continuing until five o'clock The Federal troops were then drawn back in great confusion beyond the range of the Confederate batteries, here they bivouacked for the night.

During the conflict the Michigan, Maine and Wisconsin regiments held their ground with a fortitude which, in view of the galling fire to which they wer exposed, was most remarkable, but the New York 12th, and the Massachusetts 1st regiments retired in great disorder from the field, a portion of them throwing away knapsacks, and even their arms in their flight. A number of the members of the former regiments openly asserted that their confused retreat was the fault of their officers, who evinced a total lack of courage, and were the first to flee.

After the retreat had been commenced, Corcoran's New York 69th (Irish) and Cameron's New York 79th (Scotch) regiments were ordered up up to the spport, but arrived too late to take part in the action.

There were three batteries in all. The first to open fire, which was the smallest, was situated on the top of an eminence; the second and most desructive, in a ravine. The latter was totally concealed from view by brushwood, etc., and it was in attempting to take the first by assault that the Federal troops stumbled upon it. The battle occurred at a point in the declivity of the road, where it makes a turn, forming an obtuse angle, and the third battery was so placed as to enfilade with its fire the approaches towards the junction.

Much jealousy, it is stated by the same authority, existed between the regular officers and those of the volunteer corps, each appearing desirous of shifting to the other side the responsibility of any movement not advised by themselves, and the jealousy, it is feared, will seriously affect the efficency of the "grand army." Thus, General McDowell expressly states that the battle was not his own, but that of General Tyler. The former officer said that he would not advance further until he had thoroughly and carefully reconnoitered the position of the batteries, their capabilities, etc; and the inference derived by my informants from his remarks, is that he deems his present force entirely insufficient to carry the opposition before him.

One of the gentlemen mentioned at the commencement of this account, gives it as his opinion that Manassas Junction cannot be carried by 50,000 men in two months, and all agreed in saying that the force under Beauregard has been entirely underrated numerically, and that their fighting qualities are superior. The cheers with which they rushed to the fight frequently raged above the din of the battle. Their numbers were not ascertained, but it is estimated at upwards of 5,000 South Carolinians, under command of Gen. M. L. Bonham, of South Carolina.

Their Artillery was of the best kind. A shot from one of their batteries severed a bough from a tree quite 2 miles distant and but a few feet from where the vehicle of two Congressmen was standing. One ball fell directly in the midst of a group of Congressmen, among whom was Owen Lovejoy, but injured no one, the members scampering in different directions, sheltering among trees, &.

It is said to have been admirably served too, as the heavy list of killed, and disabling of Sherman's battery, amply testifies.

There were a number of rifle pits also in front of the batteries, from which much execution was done by expert riflemen.

The Congressmen were greatly impressed with the extent and magnitude of the earth-works, entrenchments, &c., erected by the Confederates from Alexandria to Centreville and beyond. They were all of the most formidable and extensive character.

It is thought by them that Manassas Junction is encircled by a chain of batteries, which can only be penetrated by severe fighting. All the entrenchments evidence consummate skill in their construction. The entire column under General McDowell fell back at 8 o'clock on Thursday evening, a short distance from Centreville, wher they encamped. They where joined during the evening by Heintzleman's command, and on the succeeding morning by that of Col. Burnside, all of which troops are now encamped there.

Early in the evening Gen. Schenck's brigade of Ohio troops was sent forward on the Hainesville road to flank the batteries, but no tidings had been heard of them up to 8 o'clock yesterday (Friday) morning, when the Congressmen left Gen. McDowell's headquarters, bringing with them his despatches to the War Department.

These despatches put the loss of the Federalist in killed at 5, but Mr. McClernand states that he himself saw a greater number than that killed. All of these gentlemen agree in estimating the number killed at one hundred. The disparity between the statements of these gentlemen and the official despatches is accounted for by the fact that the latter are based upon the returns of the surgeons, and that many of the killed are oftentimes never reported until after the official accounts.

One remarkable fact which commanded the special attention of the members of Congress was the absence from that portion of Virginia visited by them of all the male inhabitants capable of bearing arms. They state that they saw but few people, and those were chiefly old women and children. The women seemed to regard the soldiers with bitter hostility, and, to quote the language of one of the Congressmen, their "eyes fairly flashed fire whenever they looked at a soldier."

General McDowell expressed no fears of being attacked, but seemed apprehensive of some of the volunteer corps stumbling upon a masked battery, and thus "precipitating a general engagement."

The loss of the Confederates is not known, but is conjectured by the Federalist to have been heavy. Among the killed is said to be one Col. Fountain—at least, a negro, deserted so stated.

The excesses of the Federal troops in Virginia are exciting general indignation among army officers. A member of Congress, who visited the scene this morning states that the village of Germantown has been entirely burnt, with the exception of one house, in which lay a sick man, who had been robbed, he was told, by an army surgeon of nearly every article he possessed of the slightest value, even to his jack-knife.

Gen. McDowell has issued orders that the first soldier detected in perpetrating these depredations shall be shot, and has ordered that a guard be placed over the principal residences of any town the troops may enter.

RELEASE OF CAPT. OGLE TILGHMAN.—It will be remembered that this gentleman was arrested at his residence, in Queen Anne's county, on Tuesday, the 25th of June, at the instance of Gov. Hicks, upon a charge of treason. He was brought to Fort McHenry, where he has since been confined until yesterday, when he was released upon his parole of honor. He peremptorily refused to take the oath of allegiance.

The Village of Germantown Burned to the Ground.

Will not Gen. McDowel Put a Stop to such Outrages?

VIENNA, Fairfax County, Va, July 18, 1861, 3 A. M. Washington Star:—The bearer of a letter from near Centreville to you is now here.

I write by him to say that some of our troops have burned the vilage of Germantown to the ground—God knows why. Surely such acts should be stopped. The burning in the vicinity of Fairfax Court house, that took place shortly after noon, where most wanton and inexcusable acts.

The best one destroyed was that of a Union man. The pretence was that assassin shots where fired from the houses, which is postively untrue. If drunken soldiers may, at will, burn down the houses of any man, even though he be as loyal as Gen. McDowell himself, God help us in this section of country.

We suffered more than death from the outrages and villanies of the Secessionsists, and it seems that we are to suffer even more outrages and cruelties at the hands of uncontrolled volunteers, professing to be our friends, than those we lately suffered at the hands of our late persecutors.

If Gen. McDowell and his subordinate commanders do not put a stop to such things, they will utterly destoy all that is left of Union sentiment in this part of Virginia.

FRANCE AND THE UNITED STATES.—The war news from America continues to attract the most grave attention among the commercial bodies of Fance, and it is asserted, as a positive fact, that the government of the Emperor assured the Chambers of Commerce in the leading cities that his Majesty would attmpt a mediation between the government in Washington and the rebels.

DR. PERRY'S VERMIFUGE or "DEAD SHOT" for Worms.—A highly valuable preperation, capable from the promtitude of its action of clearing the system in a few hours of every worm. The origin, development and support of worms in the human system, are to be attributed to a depraved and cebilitated condition of stomach and bowel where the digestion is unimpaired, and the general powers of the system in a healthy state, they can find no sustenance. This Vermifuge will not only destroy worms, but completely remove all unhealthy secretions from the stomach and bowels. It is perfectly safe to take and not unpleasant to the taste.

GREAT DISCOVERY!!!—Ample tests, both by able practitioners and chemical analysis, have demonstrated the great value of Prof. DeGrath's beautiful combination, called "ELECTRIC OIL," for the relief and cure of pain. But the people taemselves are rendering their verdict in a manner both unmistakeable and satisfactory. More than 20,000 bottles have been sold in a very short time, a great proportion to those who heard others recommend it, who had tried it. That it's a splendid discovery is everywhere acknowledged, and nothing like it was ever before prepared.

The only genuine Electric Oil is Prof. DeGrath's which is to be had at all the respectable Druggists in the land, and at wholesale and retail, at the proprietors prices of the agent. jy10-4m
